CONGRESS.

Passage of the Tariff Bill by Both Houses.

$53,000,000 REVENUE REDUCTION.

Cruelty to Animals in Transitu.

The Custom House Report in the Senate.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, June 4, 1872.

THE EIGHT HOUR LAW.

Mr. SUMNER, (rep.) of Mass., presented a petition of the International Grand Lodge of the Knights of St. Crispin protesting in the name of 100,000 shoemakers against the repeal of the Eight Hour law.

Mr. THURMAN, (dem.) of Ohio, from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, reported a resolution providing that the pay of Senator Ransom, of North Carolina, shall commence March 4, 1871.

THE CONFERENCE TARIFF REPORT.

Mr. SHERMAN, (rep.) of Ohio, called up the conference report on the Tariff bill, and stated that the aggregate reduction made by the bill as agreed upon was $53,000,000.

Mr. THURMAN said the bill was not what he desired, but it seemed to be the best we could get now, and, therefore, he would vote for the report.

Mr. SCOTT, (rep.) of Pa., believed that the ten per cent reduction was a mistake, but as the bill had been discussed in both houses and had gone to a conference committee the was disposed to accept this report as an earnest of stability, and in the hope that Congress would not be again called upon to consider the question either reducing or raising duties for years to come.

Mr. ALCORN, (rep.) of Miss., complained that the bill was unjust to the people of the South in the duties imposed on cotton bagging and quinine.

Mr. CONKLING, (rep.) of N. Y., criticised the report for its omissions.

Mr. SUMNER said he would vote for the bill because it was the best, if not the only tariff bill, that could be had at this time, and because it was a step in the reduction of taxation.

The report was concurred in.

THE CUSTOM HOUSE REPORT.

Mr. HOWE (rep.), of Wis., submitted the majority report of the Committee of Investigation and Retrenchment on the New York Custom House.

Mr. BAYARD (dem.), of Del., submitted a statement signed by himself and Mr. Casserly, as the minority of the committee, stating that the majority report had been made unexpectedly to them, and before all the testimony on the subject had been published, and asking that in view of this fact the minority be allowed to present their views during the recess, and that there would be published as many copies of their report as of the majority report.

Mr. HOWE said the difficulties of dealing with so large a mass of testimony and preparing a report within so short a time had been as great for the majority as for the minority, and he understood that all the members of the committee had been notified as early as Wednesday or Thursday of last week that the report was to be made.

Messrs. BAYARD and CASSERLY (dem.), of Cal., said they had not heard of the report until Saturday morning, when it was read in committee.

Mr. BUCKINGHAM, (rep.) of Conn., said he was willing that the minority should have a reasonable time, if there could be an understanding that the printing of the majority report should not be delayed thereby.

Mr. EDMUNDS, (rep.) of Vt., objected to granting the request of the minority, upon the ground that it would make their report a mere review of the report of the majority, and also because it was improper to allow the filing of the report of a committee at a time when the Senate would not be in session to decide whether it was a document fit to be received.

Mr. BUCKINGHAM said he was willing that an order should be entered that the minority should have until the 25th of June to file their report.

Mr. EDMUNDS moved to amend so as to require them to report during the present session.

Mr. THURMAN—That is simply a refusal.

Mr. EDMUNDS—Very well; let it be a refusal.

Mr. BAYARD said that the preparation of the report would necessitate the reading over of some two thousand closely printed pages of testimony besides the other labor, and as his he wished to have a few days' rest before beginning the work. However, if the majority of the Senate choose to refuse the request of the minority of the committee of course they could do so.

EYESIGHT WAS A GOOD DEAL BROKEN DOWN,

Mr. EDMUNDS said he would be happy to accommodate the Senator from Delaware in any legitimate way, but he could not consent to do it by sacrificing a principle.

Mr. PRATT (rep.) of Ind., said that six or seven weeks had passed since the last testimony was taken by the committee, and asked whether the minority had not had as good an opportunity as the majority to prepare their report since that time.

Mr. THURMAN asked how there could be a majority or a minority of the committee until the report was read and assented to by a majority. When the report was read to the committee and assented to by the majority it then became the majority report, and in the nature of things the minority report being based upon dissent from the report of the majority, could not be prepared until the views of the majority were known.

After further discussion, without acting on the proposition, the Senate, on motion of Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN, (rep.) of N. J., took up the bill to prevent

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS IN TRANSITU.

Messrs. CASSERLY and THURMAN argued against some of its provisions as unconstitutional, and Mr. Thurman moved to postpone its consideration until December. Lost.

Mr. CASSERLY offered an amendment providing that the act shall not take effect for one year after its passage, and that it shall not take effect in any State having sufficient legal provisions for the prevention of cruelty to animals within the meaning of the act.

Senators STOCKTON (dem.), of N. J., and BAYARD also argued that the bill was unconstitutional in assuming for Congress a power which belongs to the States.

Senator Casserly's amendment was rejected.

Senator SHERMAN moved an amendment providing that the bill shall take effect on the 1st of October. Agreed to.

MAN AND BEAST.

Mr. CASSERLY offered an amendment designed to compel railroad companies to provide better accommodations for immigrants, and in advocating it he described some of the hardships and ill treatment he had seen immigrants subjected to on the great railroad lines of the West. The amendment was lost—yeas 15, nays 23.

The bill was passed, and the Senate then took a recess until half-past seven P. M.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, June 4, 1872.

Mr. WILSON, (rep.) of Ind., from the Committee on the Judiciary, reported the bill providing for United States District Courts at St. Joseph and Springfield, Mo., and moved its passage. Rejected.

Mr. TERRY, (dem.) of Va., from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported a bill to distribute to the late insurrectionary States their quota of arms and equipments for the years from 1862 to 1869. Passed.

THE FISH CATCHERS' NATURAL ENEMIES.

Mr. BUTLER, (rep.) of Mass., presented resolutions of the New England Fishery Association opposing the course of the government in regard to the Treaty of Washington, and urging the importance of passing the necessary laws to carry the fishing clause of the treaty into effect. He remarked that the members of the association were the natural enemies of the fish catchers and fishermen. Referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

A bill introduced by Mr. Speer, of Georgia, to remove political disabilities was amended and passed, so as to comprise the names of Lucius J. Gartrell and Martin H. Crawford, of Georgia; David Clapton, of Alabama, and Martin L. Kimmell, of Missouri.

THE SPEAKER'S TABLE.

The House then went to the business on the Speaker's table, and disposed thereof as follows:—

The Senate amendments to the House bill for filling vacancies in certain territorial offices agreed to.

THE TARIFF CONFERENCE REPORT.

A message from the Senate having announced that that body had agreed to the conference report on the Tariff bill, the report was presented to the House by Mr. Dawes.

The report having been read, Mr. DAWES congratulated the House that this important bill was in its last stage. The report presented the gratifying spectacle of its being unanimous, and it had just been adopted by the Senate without a division. He did not flatter himself that the bill would satisfy everybody; indeed, there were some things in it with which he was himself far from being satisfied. The reductions effected by the bill in the tax and tariff revenues were estimated at $43,053,778. The reductions made by the Senate were:—On the free list, $634,254; on other customs duties, $1,339,227, and on stamps, $7,490,000, making for both houses. He went on to answer questions put to him by various members. He informed Mr. Garfield that books in foreign languages were not put on the free list. He informed Mr. Beck and others that the tax on tobacco was uniform at 20 cents a pound, and that that would go into effect on the 1st of July, 1872. He regretted that the tax on friction matches was restored. In reply to Mr. Kellogg, of Connecticut, he said he had no objection to having the sense of the House tested in regard to friction matches in a separate bill. The estimated revenue from that tax was $2,500,000. All the stamps in schedule B, except on checks, are repealed, and all the stamps in schedule C are retained, together with the stamps on bank checks.

AN AGGREGATE REDUCTION OF $53,057,259

Mr. BUTLER, of Mass., asked Mr. Dawes what had become of the proposition to receive one-third of the customs duties in greenbacks.

Mr. DAWES replied that on investigation of the bearings of that project on the currency of the country it became evident that it would draw from the Western country to the seaboard all of the greenbacks and cause them to be hoarded up in the banks of the cities, thus causing a stringency in the West and everywhere.

Mr. BUTLER—Where did you get that information?

Mr. DAWES—I do not know. It came when we looked into it.

In reply to a question of Mr. Randall Mr. DAWES said that the reduction which this bill would make in the number of collectors and assessors of revenue was from two hundred and seventy to two hundred and eighty.

Mr. KERR, (dem.) of Ind., another member of the Conference Committee, remarked that his views of certain matters in the bill and his reasons for signing the conference report were sufficiently known to render it unnecessary for him to enter into an explanation. On the whole, however, he as compared with recent legislation on the same subject. He expressed regret that the tax on friction matches had to be restored, and also that the House provision in regard to copper had to be yielded to the Senate.

Mr. KELLEY, (rep.) of Pa., the third member of the Conference Committee, gave the report his commendation and support as a matter of compromise and yielding all grounds.

Mr. BROOKS, (dem.) of N. Y., gave the report his assent because, and only because, it made a reduction of taxes. He said he had never seen a bill so ingeniously handled to prevent all discussion of its details. He ventured to say that when the bill passed to-day there would not be twenty members who comprehended it, and that Congress would soon have to make alteration after alteration in the tariff part of it, so as to satisfy the demands of the country. Still he congratulated the country on the reduction of the taxation which this bill would effect. That reduction would be some $53,000,000, and the country would

DEMAND A YET FURTHER REDUCTION.

Mr. DAWES, at the conclusion of the discussion, said that he had some interesting figures which he would have printed in the Globe, and which showed that the reduction of taxation for the last two years had been $85,000,000, which, with the $54,000,000 reduction in this bill, would make $110,000,000. The expenditures of 1871, when reduced to a gold basis and to a peace basis, were only $6,500,000 more than in 1860. The rate of expenditure per capita in 1860 was $1 95, in 1871 $1 76.

The conference report was then agreed to without a division, and the House, at forty minutes past one o'clock, P. M., adjourned to meet on Friday next.

HOOKER'S ATTACK ON HOWARD.

NEW YORK, June 3, 1872.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.—

The HERALD of this morning contains, copied from the San Francisco Chronicle, what purports to be a report of an interview with General Joseph Hooker. As to General Hooker's opinion that Grant "has got no more moral sense than a dog," and that Sherman was "crazy," they are of a piece with his whole utterances respecting other generals. In his testimony before the Committee on the Conduct of the War he attributes the failure of McClellan's campaign on the Peninsula to the incompetency of the commanding general, and of Halleck he says, "If the General-in-Chief had been in the rebel interest it would have been impossible for him to have added to the embarrassment he caused me from the moment I took command of the Army of the Potomac." The Galaxy for May, 1871, contained a paper by me on the campaigns of General R. E. Lee, in which, of course, mention was made of the affair at Chancellorsville. I received from General Hooker a note, of which the following is the essential part.—

In that part of your article relating to myself I find several inaccuracies. There are only one or two of them that I care for. You state that I declared that I fought no battle at Chancellorsville, because I could not get my men into position. Will you have the goodness to inform me what authority you have for making that statement? J. HOOKER, Major General.

To this direct implication of falsification I replied:—

My authority for this statement is to be found in the report of the Joint Committee on the Conduct of the War, 1865, vol. I., p. 142, where the sworn testimony of General Joseph Hooker reads as follows:—"When I returned from Chancellorsville I felt that I had fought no battle; in fact, I had more men than I could use, and fought no general battle for the reason that I could not get my men into position to do so." I think that you will not hereafter question my authority for that statement. You imply that there are several other "inaccuracies" besides those which you specify. If you will mention them I shall be very glad to adduce my authorities.

To this General Hooker replied:—

On turning to your authority for your statement in the May number of the Galaxy I am glad to find it perfectly satisfactory. I had not seen my testimony before the Committee on the Conduct of the War since I delivered it until this morning. I need not say that it had passed from my mind entirely. J. HOOKER, Major General.

General Hooker went on to except to one or two other points, closing, "But I will not mention at this time the remaining exceptions to your article. I may be wrong and you may be right. Life is too short to be bothered with these matters." I replied, justifying my averments in the further points specified, and renewing my offer to do the same in relation to any others. Assuming the report of the Chronicle to be correct, General Hooker's present recollection of what took place at the council of war before the final retreat from Chancellorsville varies considerably from his recollection seven years ago, when he gave his testimony. He now says, "At the council of war that was held Howard voted to stay; but his opinion was good for nothing. He was sore and wanted to retrieve himself." The evident implication here is that Howard was the only commander of a corps who was in favor of staying. But in March, 1865, General Hooker testified under oath:—"I called upon them individually for their opinions. General Meade stated that he was for an advance, for the reason that he did not believe that we could recross the river in the presence of the enemy. General Reynolds had thrown himself on a bed, being very tired that night from hard work, and had gone to sleep, saying before he did so that his opinion would be the same as General Meade's. General Howard voted for an advance, assigning as a reason that he felt as though the army had been placed in the position in which it was by the conduct of his corps, and he had to vote for an advance under any circumstances. His opinion was received for what it was worth. General Couch was of the opinion that the army should recross the river." Thus, instead of Howard being the only one in favor of "staying," three out of five of the corps commanders, as sworn to by General Hooker, were in favor of an advance. Hooker, indeed, says that Meade's opinion, and, consequently, that of Reynolds, for an advance was based upon the impossibility of crossing the river in face of the enemy. But he goes on to testify:—"Subsequently, on learning that General Meade was saying that he was unconditionally for an advance, and that he wished the bridges had been carried away so as to have prevented our return, I sent for him and asked if he had made such a report. He told me that he had." Meade then, at the request of Hooker, wrote to the other corps commanders, asking their recollection of what took place at the council. Hooker gives the replies of Howard, which he wished to be considered as a part of his own testimony. Howard's impression was that Meade thought it best to attack, but, after Hooker had given his opinion, made no further objection.

General Hooker was, beyond all doubt, a thoroughly brave man, and I have given him every credit for his good service. Nothing could have been better than his reorganization of the army when the command devolved upon him; nothing better than the beginning of the affair at Chancellorsville; nothing better than his action at Lookout Mountain; nothing better, indeed, than his conduct after Chancellorsville until he was superseded, though he is not warranted in claiming the real merit of the battle of Gettysburg, for that action was a chance encounter, neither Meade nor Lee anticipating until it was over that they would come in collision within a score of miles, if at all, of Gettysburg. Hooker is a man of that high-strung, nervous temperament which is physically incapable of enduring pain. At Antietam he received a wound in the foot, and was borne insensible from the field. At Chancellorsville he was simply stunned by the falling of a pillar, a shock from which most men would have rallied in two hours, but which rendered him for days really incapable of clear action. To this, most likely, is to be remotely attributed his present condition. But a man whose memory is so defective ought to be cautious in rushing into print.

A. H. GUERNSEY.

JUDGE HOGEBOOM AND THE ALLEGED CUSTOM HOUSE ABUSES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

My attention has just been directed (for the first time) to a communication over the signature of "The Secretary" in your daily issue of the 29th ult. If all public service has not become wholly dishonorable the open administration of an office like this for a period of two years should secure it from the malign influence of anonymous correspondents; and I do not ask the use of your columns to reply to what is quite evident the real object of the writer. But (while suggesting that "fair play" never masks itself under disguises) lest any honest importer or home manufacturer might be misled by the innuendo of the communication, I desire to assure the public, as well as this correspondent, that no importation at an undervaluation of thirty-three and one-third per cent, or any other undervaluation, can be sustained, and that this office will promptly act upon any information from any respectable source. The public, however, has a right also to feel the assurance that this office, created for the protection of an honest commerce, shall be administered efficiently as well as honestly, and can neither be diverted from its purpose of impartial justice by the influence of dishonest importers nor be deprived of its duty of judgment by the clamor of rival interests.

United States General Appraiser.

THE CUSTOM HOUSE.

Majority Report of the Senate Investigating Committee.

Twenty-two Hundred Pages of Conflicting Evidence—The General Order Business—Leet and Stocking Acquitted—Moieties and Compromises—Extra Pay—The Custom House in Politics—Recommendations for a Reform.

WASHINGTON, June 4, 1872.

Senators Buckingham, Pratt, Howe and Stewart to-day made a report from the Committee of Investigation and Retrenchment, to which was referred the examination into the New York Custom House and other subjects.

In New York and Washington

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY WITNESSES

were examined. The testimony, oral and documentary, comprises more than twenty-two hundred pages of print. The sources of information are exhausted. The testimony is conflicting. It could hardly have been expected to be otherwise, as comparatively few witnesses were examined who did not appear more or less in the character of partisans. The committee submit, first, that no monstrous abuse has been discovered in connection with unless it be the misrepresentation, not to say the mendacity, which has been piled upon it. The committee say that Mr. Murphy was appointed by President Grant, whose appointments have been habitually somewhat distasteful to the democratic party. Mr. Murphy's own appointment proved distasteful to a portion of the republican party, and so it happened, perhaps not very logically, but not very unnaturally, that Messrs. Leet and Stocking fell heirs to all the malice which the cupidity, the wealth or the influence of two great trading companies could engender, as well as that the enemies of Thomas Murphy, the President and the republican party could inspire. A storm of obloquy and reproach burst upon their head. In September, 1870,

THE "GENERAL ORDER" BUSINESS,

MESSRS. LEET AND STOCKING

were quite unknown to fame. In twenty months they acquired a notoriety never by the greatest genius and only rarely by the greatest heroes or greatest criminals achieved in so brief a period. Twenty months ago it is probable that these young men had but seldom seen either of their own names in the newspapers. There are now probably but few names more widely known to the readers of American newspapers than those of Leet and Stocking. There is not in the testimony or outside of it the faintest suggestion that Colonel Leet was indebted to any kind of favoritism, political or personal, for his employment on the staff of General Grant. The President, in his letter to Grinnell, merely attested the fitness of Colonel Leet for business. He did not ask any appointment for him. Still less did he ask for any share of the general order business. The fact of preferment in the case of Leet upon the ground of personal merit is too well attested to be denied, even though that theory should be exploded by it. Rumor (perhaps it should be said scandal) has pointed to General Horace Porter and to General Babcock as the parties likely to be interested with Leet, and by whom he was UPHELD IN THE FAVOR OF MR. GRINNELL.

The testimony wholly fails to disclose any foundation for such a suspicion; on the contrary, it proves as conclusively as human testimony can prove anything that neither Porter nor Babcock had any interest whatever with Leet. The committee cannot accept the avowed belief of Mr. Greeley and Mr. Mudgett against the testimony of Porter, Babcock, Stocking and Grinnell. It seems altogether more rational to conclude that Mr. Greeley or even Mr. Mudgett was mistaken in an opinion borrowed only from the

than that Leet, Stocking, Porter, Babcock, Murphy and Grinnell have committed wilful perjury. General Porter and General Babcock must stand acquitted of all participation in the profits of sharing in unclaimed goods. Colonel Leet and Mr. Stocking must stand [illegible] in the republican party. Political events which have transpired since that charge was made have gone far to refute it. So far as is known to the committee every individual who urged that accusation is now arrayed in open opposition to the republican party. There is no longer any known faction in the republican party. It is not yet quite certain whether those who in January last aspired to that character are now a party by themselves or are only

A FACTION OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

But in January last and later it was asserted by Mr. Greeley, Mr. Whitelaw Reid, Mr. Van Cleft and others that the employés of the New York Custom House were habitually removed because they adhered to the so called Fenton faction, or to make room for the adherents of the so-called Conkling faction.

GOING TO TAMMANY.

The committee report the result of the testimony in regard to these removals, saying, among other things, that a number of persons who were removed from the Custom House were subsequently provided with places under the city government, under the influence of Tammany.

The report concludes as follows:—The instructions of this committee seem to be limited to the taking of testimony and reported facts. It is perhaps hardly authorized to suggest changes in the custom service. The committee feel also that much of the testimony submitted is of a kind too partial and partisan to be the foundation of well considered reform. The committee, cannot, however, refrain from calling attention to the very valuable suggestions contained in the report submitted to the New York Chamber of Commerce by a committee, of which Hon. F. N. Conkling was chairman. Some of the recommendations contained in that paper the committee would not be inclined to approve. We are not satisfied that it would be wise to exempt the merchant from giving bonds for the duties on his warehoused goods, or to remit the interest on goods which have been in the warehouse for a year, but this committee concurs in the suggestion of a commission to be appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury and remodel it so far as shall be found necessary. From the investigation by such a commission reforms might be confidently expected which could not be rationally hoped for from the inquiry referred to this committee. When such an investigation is had it is believed that all the questions raised touching compromises, the seizure of goods, the seizure of vessels, the seizure of books and papers, the sale of unclaimed goods, damage allowances, the extra returns of weighers, night permits, the extension of time for paying duties to the cashier, the liability of warehousemen for goods lost from their custody and the propriety of Custom House oaths may be satisfactorily adjusted; but, without waiting for such investigation, the committee venture two recommendations:—

TO REVISE THE WHOLE SERVICE

MOIETIES SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED TO OFFICERS

of the customs, except in the case of a smuggled goods seizure. It is the duty of those officers to assess and collect the duties on imposts. It is their business not to permit any frauds upon the revenue.

Attempts will be made to introduce merchandise upon our markets without payment of duty at all. Whoever defeats an attempt at smuggling should be allowed at least one-half of the net proceeds of the goods condemned. But when goods are entered at the Custom House there should be no cheating in quantities or values. It is the duty of the officers of customs to prevent that. Their salaries should be adequate to all the labor they perform and all the responsibility they assume. Still, in spite of diligence and fidelity, they will be sometimes circumvented. But to be defrauded by holding up to them great fortunes for detecting the frauds. The husbandman who pays his harvester a meagre salary for gathering grain, but offers him one-half for gleaning all that his own rake passes over, should not be surprised to learn that his servant rakes slovenly. If, in spite of all the vigilance and fidelity that can be secured in the Custom House, frauds are perpetrated other agents of the government should be stimulated to ferret them out and expose them; and if they do not always uncover their heads while investigating such alleged frauds, as it is complained some of the special agents of the Treasury do not, it is better, probably, to tolerate even that outrage upon good manners rather than allow the frauds to go unpunished.

ASSISTANT APPRAISERS AND EXAMINERS

in the public stores should be experts. That is manifest. It is quite as manifest that to be experts they not only must have studied, but they must not cease to study. The longer they practice their profession the more expert they will become. In order to adjust the values of many commodities imported a life time of study is none too much; and it is unquestionably true that every year added to one's experience adds to his competency. They should be appointed only upon full written and recorded proof of unexceptionable character and of a certain acquaintance with the commodities which they are called upon to appraise. When appointed they should have a salary adequate to their support, and they should be continued in office until convicted of misconduct or until mentally or physically disabled.

Charles O'Conor's Spirited Address for the Prosecution—Judge Hogeboom's Close Questioning—To Whom Does the Money Belong, and if Collected What Will Become of It?—The Formal Demurrer by Curtis.

ALBANY, June 4, 1872.

The Court met at half past ten o'clock. Mr. O'Conor resumed his argument, he having discussed only the first point yesterday. As to Tweed being culpable in the matter of the division of the money, he said that he ought to have said it was in evidence that these moneys were received and divided from day to day, and that it was all embraced in the conspiracy. He did not know as he had said this yesterday, but he should have done so, and would now dismiss further allusion to that point. He then proceeded to say that it was the common [illegible]

Attorney General of the State had no authority to bring a suit in the name of the people of the State, as they had no manner of interest in the case at all. In this case a town was about to issue the bonds wrongfully, and the Attorney General sought to interfere to restrain the issue. Now, after this decision,

WHY SHOULD THIS SUIT BE BROUGHT?

Besides, are not the people of the city of New York capable of bringing this suit? We have bad men there, he said, and he grieved for it, but there were enough good men to attend to this matter properly. Counsel then asked whether the county of New York was a corporate body, with power to sue, and said the Revised Statutes settled that question. They provide that each county may sue and be sued. But counsel says there cannot be two corporations on the same territory. This is not so. We have a striking illustration of the fact that two corporations can and do occupy the same territory in the general government having authority in every State in the Union. Counsel cited authorities to sustain this position. It has been said that the county has no property. Why, this very court-house in question is county property, and the land upon which it stands had to be bought from the city before it could proceed with the building. (Counsel produced the ordinance showing this fact.) Suppose the court-house was burned to-day, who would bring suit for the insurance? Would the people, through a State officer? Would not that be absurd and preposterous, when the Revised Statutes say a county can sue—and this is county property? Counsel quoted various acts to show that the Legislature recognized in the city and county two distinct corporate organizations—among others the act passed at the last session, which counsel read, providing for paying Charles O'Conor for his services as counsel in these cases.

SPAIN—SERRANO JUSTIFIED BY THE SPANISH SENATE.—A cable despatch which we print this morning justifies what we have said regarding Marshal Serrano. His conduct in the matter of pardoning the Carlists in the Basque Provinces who surrendered their arms, though disapproved by certain political factions, has been, as it ought, approved by the Cortes. The question, when brought before the Cortes, revealed the feeling of the country. One hundred and forty votes as against twenty-two show that Marshal Serrano has the Cortes at his back, and we can afford to wait to know what Marshal Serrano will do with his power. Meanwhile he is at once the savior of the present dynasty and the master of the situation.

GARRISON AGAINST SUMNER.—William Lloyd Garrison, the pioneer abolitionist, has been for many years a warm friend and admirer of Charles Sumner; but the late spiteful attack in the Senate upon the President by the sorely aggrieved Senator has proved too much for the fair-dealing and honest Garrison. He has accordingly written his friend Sumner a letter and a lecture, "more in sorrow than in anger," against the violence and injustice of his charges against General Grant, which, it is to be hoped, will bring down the Senator's wrath within the bounds of reason. However, for the vindication of the cause of truth and justice in regard to General Grant, no reply to this spiteful attack of Senator Sumner is called for. In his ungoverned rage the Senator's assault recoils upon himself, and he is fully answered in the disclosure of his weakness and his folly.

THE JEROME PARK RACES TO-DAY.—The present meeting of the American Jockey Club at Jerome Park opened so auspiciously on Saturday last that a very brilliant attendance may be looked for to-day. The racing programme is especially interesting, comprising five events. First on the list we have the race for the Ladies' Stakes, for fillies three years old, one mile and five furlongs, for which there are thirty-seven nominations. Then comes the Jockey Club Handicap Sweepstakes, with twenty-two names entered, many of which stand high in the annals of the turf. The closing event, a steeple chase, in which members of the club ride, will doubtless be the most interesting with the general public. The Jerome Park races have now become so popular, both on account of their admirable management and the delightful location, that we may look for a steady increase in the attendance during the present meeting.

More Mexican Anarchy and Depredations—The Duty and Opportunity of General Grant.

Mexico is distinguished for two things, just as most of the other Spanish-American republics are—namely, chronic disorder and constantly recurring revolutions and utter unreliability in the statements made to the rest of the world about the internal affairs of the country. For some time past the tenor of the news from Mexico has been that the insurrection against the Juarez government was dying out and on the eve of complete suppression. Day after day this was the intelligence that came through Juarist channels, and that coming from the city of Mexico was particularly rose-colored. We have heard at the same time that the raids, cattle stealing and other depredations across the border and on American soil had ceased—that, in fact, the Juarez government was firmly seated and was powerful enough to perform its duty as a neighboring nation to the United States. Knowing the nature of the Mexicans and the character of the news they generally send out, we were in doubt as to the reliability of this intelligence.

Now, we have from the special correspondents of the HERALD at Camargo and Matamoros news that changes the aspect of affairs both in the interior of Mexico and on our bordering territory. The previous report of the utter defeat of the revolutionists under General Treviño by the Juaristas near Monterey was premature. They obtained only a temporary advantage, apparently, while they imagined they had achieved a great and decisive victory. General Corella, who was in command of the Juarist forces, was quietly resting contented with his fancied laurels, when suddenly Treviño rallied his men, attacked the Juaristas and completely routed them. We have no account of the number of troops engaged on either side; but, considering the importance of the ground contested and the long preparation for the conflict, the main strength of the forces on both sides probably was concentrated in the engagement. The day after Corella had sent a despatch to the Juarez government announcing the total annihilation of the revolutionists—that is, on the 31st of May—Treviño fell upon the Juaristas like an avalanche, taking them by surprise and unprepared, and gained a complete victory. The revolutionists gave no quarter to their enemy, and the whole of the Juarist force, it is said, was killed, wounded, or scattered. General Corella lost everything—all his guns, munitions, siege trains, and even his personal baggage. It is reasonably supposed that General Treviño's retreat on the first day was merely military stratagem to lull the government troops into a feeling of security. If so it shows that Treviño exhibited a good deal of skill, and that Corella must have been stupid. It appears also that Cevallo's advance had been checked by the revolutionists; that he was defeated and driven back near Mier, and that General Quiroga, with a revolutionary force, still holds Ceralvo, the principal city on the road to Monterey. Our latest special despatch from Matamoros, which will be found in another column, gives a complete confirmation of this news, adding that General Corella had arrived at Mier, a fugitive, with a small remnant of his late army, and that telegraphic communication between that city and Matamoros had been cut by the revolutionists. The scenes of panic during the recent temporary siege of Matamoros by Treviño are again enacted, and the Juarez authorities are making desperate efforts of defence in expectation of the arrival of the enemy.

The campaign on the northern frontier, according to this news, is probably ended. Of course the revolutionists are greatly elated. They consider this success will yield a fresh impetus to the revolution and give them the control of the northern frontier. We learn at the same time that the cattle-stealing and other outrages in Texas, which had been stopped temporarily, had begun again on as large a scale as ever. The Mexican thieves were at their old work again, and were keeping the United States cavalry and mounted infantry employed. The arrival of a commissioner to investigate these depredations was anxiously looked for by our citizens. It is evident the civil war in Mexico is far from being ended; that this rich country is fast sinking into ruin; that no stable native government is possible; that anarchy, bloodshed and demoralization must go on till arrested by the United States, and that there is no hope for the people but in an American protectorate or annexation. Juarez may hold the city of Mexico and a small area of territory contiguous, but he can neither extend nor maintain authority over the Northern States and some other parts of the republic. He cannot preserve peace or execute the laws on the border. While our government may be disposed to sustain Juarez he is powerless to perform the duties of good neighborhood to this country. As far as the interests and security of our citizens are concerned along a border of a thousand miles or more there is no government in Mexico and no protection. Our people are at the mercy of Mexican cattle thieves and bandits, except when a few United States troops occasionally check depredations. But it would require an army to do efficient police duty along such an extent of interminous territory. Are we, then, to be at the cost and annoyance of maintaining a force perpetually to do what Mexico ought to do? Are we to sustain a fiction of a government that has no power to execute its laws and to perform the duty it owes to a neighboring nation?

Forbearance might be a virtue if there were any hope of order, a stable government, or a better state of things in Mexico; but no one who understands the history of that country or the character of the people can indulge such a hope. The long forbearance of the United States has surprised the world, and has been frequently adverted to by the leading journals of Europe as impolitic and unaccountable. It has been said that we would neither let other civilized Powers put an end to the scandal of Mexican anarchy nor end it ourselves. We are, no doubt, responsible to a great extent for this disgrace to civilization and the age. It has been and is within our power to terminate the anarchy and save Mexico, the richest country on the globe, from destruction, and we believe it is the duty of the United States to do so. Let us tell the Mexicans plainly that they have no government; that they are incapable of performing the duties of one to this republic and to its citizens along the border; that we cannot suffer the outrages upon our people to be continued, and that we will not maintain a costly military establishment simply as a police to check their depredations. If Juarez or any other acknowledged leading chief will enter into negotiations for an American protectorate, very well. Perhaps that would be the smoothest way and the one least likely to shock the prejudices of Mexicans in solving the question. But if he or any others should neither be willing nor dare to assume the responsibility, let our government send a sufficient force under Sheridan or some other competent General across the Rio Grande to protect our own interests along the line and to secure order. The power of our arms, the humane, generous and well-disciplined American troops, together with the money that would be spent and the trade that would spring up, would soon win over the Mexican population to American rule, and they would bless the day that the Stars and Stripes floated over their land.

But certain timid old fogies like Secretary Fish may open their eyes with alarm and cry out "Invasion, invasion!" Well, what of it? What should we invade? A territory that has no government; a people that are invading our territory and plundering our citizens every day; a rabble that neither can nor will be decent neighbors; a community that has placed itself outside of the pale of international intercourse and that is a disgrace to this civilized age. People might just as well talk of invading a pirate ship in the haunts of savages. If Mexico has no government on the border, and cannot prevent the depredations of her people on American soil, it is the duty of our government to stop the evil, if it be necessary even to send an army across the Rio Grande. Will General Grant look at the matter in this light? We might go much further, and urge the occupation or annexation of Mexico on the ground of a great and beneficent national policy. Yes, great and beneficent both to the Mexicans and to the people of the United States, as well as to the world at large. It would save the Mexicans from continual civil war and bloodshed, would give prosperity to their country, would give them law, order, liberty, enlightenment, and all the blessings of a progressive civilization. It would add immensely to the wealth, commerce, mineral productions and trade of the United States, and would give a vast impetus to our shipping interests and the enterprise of our people. It would, in short, add to our domain the richest country on the globe, and prove far more advantageous than the acquisition of California did. All commercial nations would feel the benefit. If General Grand, instead of peddling in local politics and quarrelling with politicians, would make the annexation of Mexico the policy of his administration, he would arouse and gratify popular ambition, overwhelm all his opponents by this overshadowing issue, and make his name more illustrious in history. The time is ripe, the opportunity is at hand, and if he be wise Mexico will be the crowning laurel of his public life. It is but one short step to cross the Rubicon, and that he can properly and lawfully take. Annexation, with all its fruitful consequences, would follow naturally. Where there is so much good to be accomplished, so much evil to be cured, and such a glorious prospect in view, there ought to be no hesitation.

Judge Gilbert on the Broadway Widening.

The opinion delivered yesterday by Judge Gilbert, confirming in the main the report of the last Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment, will probably put an end to the opposition of the property owners to the widening of Broadway above Thirty-fourth street. The action of the old Commissioners has been affirmed, except in the case of the awards made by Messrs. Thompson, Bagley and Murtha; these have been sent back for correction. All the special pleadings advanced by the opponents of the proposed improvement have been disallowed and the authority and competence of the Commission asserted. In answer to the complaints of the property holders as to the loss that will be inflicted on them, they are reminded that their loss will be only temporary. It is held with good reason that the improvements will eventually more than compensate for the injury which some will suffer.

The important question raised as to whether the Commissioners were authorized to make new assessments or not has been decided in the affirmative, and their right to levy on such property as they considered benefited by the proposed improvements placed beyond doubt. Another point of considerable interest to the public has been settled by the denial of the claim made by Mr. Sacchi for prospective losses, Judge Gilbert declaring their consideration to be inadmissible. As the chief obstacles to proceeding with the work have been removed by the settlement of these points of law we hope that the undertaking will be pushed on vigorously. The procrastination and uncertainty which at present exist tend to delay the improvement of the part of our chief thoroughfare affected by it, and the interest of the property owners is clearly to accept the inevitable and try to carry out the improvements as rapidly as possible. Their opposition is shortsighted, for the result of having the question finally settled and the increased value of the property affected will more than repay them in a few years. But even if it were not so the interest of the city demands that the change should be made, and, as has been properly pointed out in Judge Gilbert's decision, it is the public interest, not that of individuals, which should guide the authorities to their conclusions. We are entirely of the Judge's opinion, and desire to see the matter finally settled and the work in progress.

THE DUKE OF EDINBURG IN IRELAND.—His Royal Highness Prince Alfred, Duke of Edingburg, landed at Kingstown, Ireland, yesterday, and proceeded through Dublin to the Viceregal Lodge. He was accompanied by the Lord Lieutenant and the Countess of Spencer, and enjoyed a most cordial reception from the people. The Prince will preside at the opening of the Irish National Exhibition to-day. The occasion will be a very grand one, and the initiatory of a series of festivities, executive and municipal, which will endure for a week. The Earl of Kenmare will be installed as a Knight of St. Patrick, taking the ribbon of the late Earl of Mayo during the period, so that it may be said that the vista of fortune which the poet hoped would gleam through the gloom of her glory will soon shine out for Erin.

The Philadelphia Convention.

The regular Republican National Convention for the nomination of the Presidential ticket and the proclamation of the Presidential platform of the party meets in Philadelphia to-day. It will be a large, harmonious and enthusiastic convention. It will be harmonious and enthusiastic in the renomination of General Grant because the disturbing elements which did exist within the party lines were drawn off by the Cincinnati Convention and into the new party, of which the standard bearers are Greeley and Brown. It will be remembered that the Baltimore Convention of 1864 was a unit in the renomination of Abraham Lincoln, although there had been a very active movement in the party in support of Chief Justice Chase against Lincoln; but this anti-Lincoln movement had been pushed to the experiment of an independent national convention at Cleveland, which defined its position in the nomination of the independent Presidential ticket of General John C. Fremont and General John Cochrane. The real object of this experiment, nevertheless, was to frighten the Baltimore Convention from Lincoln and to divert it to Chase, in view of unity and harmony in the republican ranks.

The Cleveland politicians in this ridiculous experiment signally failed, and shortly after the renomination of Lincoln by acclamation as the republican favorite against all comers Fremont and Cochrane, as the champions of the "free democracy," quietly retired from the field. Thus far against Grant in the Cincinnati Liberal Republican Convention, and in its independent ticket of Greeley and Brown, we have the re-enactment of the Cleveland diversion against Lincoln. But the Cincinnati movement was undertaken "by and with the advice and consent" of certain active leaders of the discouraged democracy, and with the distinct understanding that a liberal ticket and platform emanating from the anti-Grant republicans would be adopted by the democratic party. Upon this understanding Greeley and Brown hold a much more formidable position than did Fremont and Cochrane in opposition to the administration; for great are the expectations of the adoption of Greeley and Brown by the Democratic National Convention in July.

But while it is certain that this Cincinnati diversion will not deter the Philadelphia Convention from the renomination of General Grant, it is by no means certain that the Democratic Convention will adopt the liberal republican ticket of Greeley and Brown. The democratic old-liners threaten that if this ticket is commended to their suffrages they will, as a choice of evils, vote for Grant; while, on the other hand, it is surmised that if the liberal republicans are left to shift for themselves they will turn the tables against their faithless democratic advisers by voting for Grant. We hold, with the chivalric General Frank Blair, that a bargain is a bargain, and that the democrats are morally bound by their bargain with the liberal republicans. But there is another point upon which this Republican Convention of 1872 resembles that of 1864, and that is the point of the Vice Presidency. Now, as he was then, the Vice President is a satisfactory candidate; but now, as he had then, he has a host of rivals for the nomination. For Vice President now there may be a change, as there was in 1864, although the change from Hamlin to Andy Johnson furnishes a strong argument in favor of Colfax, and Colfax, we dare say, will be the man. In short, we expect that the republican ticket of 1872 will be the ticket of 1868, and that the platform of the party will be the measures and the policy, foreign and domestic, of General Grant's administration, and that Grant will hold the inside track from the start to the end of the race, fusion or no fusion between Cincinnati and Baltimore. At the same time the democracy, in going from Greeley and Brown to a regular old-line democratic ticket, will be going out of the frying pan into the fire.

The Commercial Tariff Tax Question in France.

M. Jules Favre delivered a powerful argument in the French Assembly yesterday in opposition to the Thiers tariff tax on the importation of raw materials to be used in manufacture. He proclaimed the project as being fatal to French trade and manufacture, unproductive as a source of revenue, and objectionable in a diplomatic sense, for the reason that it will alienate foreign Powers from the republic. M. Favre, indeed, advocated the cause of free trade against that of a crude system of commercial protection, the favorite budget construction plan of President Thiers. The concluding words of the orator had reference to the probable alienation of the friendship of Great Britain and Belgium if the present policy of the French Executive be maintained. The whole subject is one of very serious import, not only as a question of economic science which will immediately affect the pockets and wardrobes of the Old World peoples, but also as one likely to produce governmental combinations, the influence of which may be not only exceedingly detrimental to the interests of France, but provocative of a war feeling in Europe which will be to a very great extent reactionary against future democratic experiments in the matter of government administration.

The Increase of Crime and Its Prevention.

The records of the criminal courts in this city are unusually heavy at present in the villanous matter of assaults upon the person, wherein the knife, the pistol and the slung-shot have been brought into deadly play. It would seem, indeed, that an epidemic of this class of crime sweeps from time to time through the lawless classes of the community, and that nothing short of stern, speedy punishment is ever efficacious in stopping it. It will be remembered that some years ago in the city of London this class of violent assaults, combined with robbery, became alarmingly frequent, and that a special act of Parliament, increasing the term of imprisonment and reviving the lash, was enacted in the garroters' interest, and acted almost as a specific in preventing that tiger-crime. The constant use of deadly weapons is a sure badge of social demoralization, and in well-ordered communities should be dealt with as severely as the law will allow. We, therefore, feel that the remarks of the City Judge to the Grand Jury yesterday were well-timed, and hope that the result of the jury's labor will be such as to restrain the tendency of the rowdy element in the use of their lethal weapons. The subject, however, takes a wider bearing, and one that will suggest itself at once to all—namely, that an efficient police force is of the first importance. While the City Judge calls on the Grand Jurors to be vigilant in meting out justice to criminals, on account of an increase of crime, it seems absurd that another branch of the city government should be taking steps to leave the community still more exposed to the knife, slungshot and pistol of the rowdy. Yet this is exactly what will be the effect of the Comptroller's reduction of the police estimates, which will cut down the force by five hundred men. The City Judge's recommendation, coupled with the Comptroller's peculiar economy, looks very like saving at the spigot while wasting at the bung. We want good, cheap government by all means, but the economy which leaves no resource to law-abiding citizens but the heavy punishment of an occasional rowdy taken red-handed is of small account, and will convey little wholesome lesson to the numbers of others who would escape capture under the operation of a reduced police force.

The Passage of the Tariff and Tax Bill—The Revenue Reduction.

With that gratitude which accepts half a loaf as better than no bread, we congratulate the country on the Tariff bill which, being reported from the Conference Committee, was yesterday passed by both branches of Congress. It provides for a reduction of revenue in all of fifty three million dollars per annum. Like everything in the nature of a compromise, it will be unsatisfactory to a great many. Its principal features are an almost general ten per cent reduction on import duties, the equalization of the tobacco tax at twenty cents per pound, instead of, as formerly, at sixteen and thirty-two cents; the consolidation of the tax on distilled liquors, without any actual reduction; the abolition of a number of stamp taxes, and a considerable addition of articles to the import free list. These changes are all in the right direction, but at every step through the bill one is met with trifling exceptions and haltings. Next to the free trader's dream, namely, grouping a few articles on the tariff list at reduced rates, the additions to the free list may be taken as a test of the sincerity of Congressional intentions. On this point it will be found that many articles have been excepted which yield little revenue and do not pay the cost of collection. This will be accounted for, as usual, on the compromise basis, by which support to one course of action is purchased by carefully guarding another. By this means a host of little items were reserved which we must accept as the price of the larger concessions. A most useful reform is that which abolishes a brigade of the vexatious stamp taxes. These internal revenue nuisances, which grew up under the war, should have no shadow of existence in the present prosperous condition of the country. They have given occupation to an army of office-holders whose return to private life should be the dearest wish of agonized taxpayers. It is, therefore, with joy we record the fact that between two hundred and seventy and two hundred and eighty politicians of minor note will be enabled to give up as many collectorships and assessorships, and enter the ranks of more ennobling labor, where their profits may not be so large, but where they will not be looked on as public plunderers. This should console them, and for our part we will applaud the sacrifice. The stamp tax on friction matches, which was abolished by the House, was restored by the Senate, and the Conference Committee failed to move them from their obstinate stand. The House clause making one-third of the custom duties payable in legal tender notes was rejected in the Senate and its rejection confirmed in the Conference Committee. This is not very suprising, as it would upset Secretary Boutwell's plans to an alarming extent as well as making "corners" in greenbacks more practicable in Wall street.

The strong point of the present bill is that it has paved the way for a still further reduction next year, in spite of the Pennsylvania Senator's (Scott) remark yesterday, that he hoped legislation on the tariff was disposed of for several years to come.

The Washington Treaty Before the British Peers.

The subject of the Washington Treaty and the American demand for compensation for indirect damages, with that of the propriety or policy, of Great Britain renewing the arbitration in Geneva, were brought before the House of Lords in a very exciting shape last night. Earl Russell offered his motion, which has been deferred by postponement from time to time, for an address to the Crown praying Her Majesty Queen Victoria to instruct her representatives to retire from the Geneva arbitration if the claims for indirect damages are not withdrawn by the United States government. The noble lord delivered a very lengthy oration. He reviewed the events of the civil war in America and the circumstances which attended the escape of the Alabama, and then proceeded to discuss the negotiations which have been carried on between the two nations relative to the entire subject of the consequences of that event. It must be acknowledged that this was an exceedingly heavy undertaking for a gentleman who is in the eightieth year of his age, particularly when we call to mind the fact that the responsibility of its execution was assumed by him at a very late hour of the evening, and that its finale was not completed in the moments long after that of midnight. Perhaps he got along more rapidly than we imagine. In one portion of the effort—his history of the escape of the Alabama—Lord Russell must have been completely at ease, for it is probable that no man living is better acquainted with all the circumstances which surrounded and all the motives which impelled her exit than is the statesman who was the first in Britain to openly, yet adroitly, in his official capacity as Secretary of State, accord to the Southern rebel confederacy belligerent rights, by addressing to the House of Commons the words "either belligerent" when he announced the neutrality, as he then termed it, of the Queen's government in the war for the Union. But the nature of the man prevailed even against the memories of the ex-Minister last night. Earl Russell was spiteful; but that does not exactly surprise us in Earl Russell. He alleged that the English nation must be jealous of the honor of the British Crown, and that "it must treat the United States as it treated them in the Trent affair." This latter allusion was received, as we see by our cable report, with cheers, although we find, just subsequently, that its utterance was classed as an "alarming" incident by some of the compeers of the speaker. It looks to us as if it had the effect of bringing Earl Granville to a more clear understanding of the dangers which surround the present situation, and to a more acute apprehension of the difficulties which may ensue if the Alabama claims question be fostered much longer as an unwholesome irritating element of political party excitement. The British Foreign Secretary accorded the American right of a free, independent interpretation of the Washington Treaty, and also acknowledged our right to introduce indirect claims. He wished for the completion of a supplemental article, and denied that Earl Russell's argument touched the case. He administered a stinging rebuke for the allusion to the Trent; proclaimed that the sentence will create "incalculable ill feeling," and said that it is by no means certain that the treaty will fail. He closed his address by reference to the chances of settlement which still exist. Earl Grey and Lord Denman were cautious and hopeful, and the young Lord Derby, manly, straightforward and equitable, upholding the dignity of his lineage, as is his wont, by requesting the government to come to the point, and, to use his words, if the indirect claims are excluded, say that they are excluded. Lord Kimberley classed Earl Granville as an American advocate, and the Marquis of Salisbury gave evidence that the aristocrats are convinced that the British Cabinet thinks there is something in the case of the American people, or astute Yankees, as he calls us, after all, and that Earl Russell may become a failure in his character "as a prophet of the past," pretty much as he has been in that of a geographical calculator for the creation and sustention of two separate governmental confederacies on the soil of the United States. The House had not come to a vote on the motion for an address to the Crown when our cable despatch closed. The debate will be renewed after a brief adjournment, and the discussion is likely to produce very decided results.

PERSONAL INTELLIGENCE.

Ex-Congressman Hiram Sibley, of Rochester, is at the St. Nicholas Hotel.

General Quincy A. Gilmore, of the United States Army, is at the New York Hotel.

Judge J. G. Abbott, of Boston, is stopping at the Brevoort House.

Judge E. C. Battell, of Binghamton, is at the Astor House.

George W. Miller, of Albany, ex-Superintendent of the State Insurance Department, is at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

General C. J. Paine, of Boston, is sojourning at the St. James Hotel.

General J. M. Harlan, of Kentucky, is among the late arrivals at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

Francis B. Hayes, of Boston, President of the Atlantic and Pacific Railway, is at the Brevoort House.

Colonel H. F. McComb, of Delaware, has arrived at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

James H. Ramsey, of Albany, is stopping at the Astor House.

J. C. Stanton, President of the Alabama and Chattanooga Railroad, is at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

Christopher G. Fox, of Buffalo, and a large number of other delegates to the meeting of the Grand Lodge of Masons, are stopping at the Sturtevant House. It is reported that Mr. Fox is likely to be elected Grand Master of the State.

Robert H. Pruyn, of Albany, is at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. Mr. Pruyn was formerly Minister to Japan, and in 1868 the democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

Madame Anna Bishop will sail for Bermuda in the steamer Metropolis to-day. She will be accompanied by Miss Sedgwick and Finlayson, who will aid her in the concerts she intends to give.

AMUSEMENTS.

Wallack's Theatre.

Monday night inaugurated the summer season at this popular house, and the opening play was that of "The Long Strike," a piece which is popular with the patrons of this establishment. Many of the actors in the principal rôles appeared originally in the cast, and their acting has been criticised in the columns of this journal. Mr. Moneypenny, a lawyer, as played by Mr. Stoddard, is a piece of acting with which the patrons of Wallack's are well acquainted, and his rendering of the character on Monday night was the same as on former occasions. The scene at the lawyer's house with Jane Learoyd, Miss Effie Germon, was excellent, and that in the telegraph office, one of the most starring scenes in the whole play, was particularly effective. Mr. Charles Fisher's Noah Learoyd, the leader of the strike, was equally well done by that painstaking actor, and the Johnny Reilly of Mr. Montgomery is also deserving of a good word. The other characters in the play were fairly played, and that is about all that can be said of them. A full house received the piece, and brought the principal actors once or twice before the curtain.

The Summer Season of English Opera.

The summer season of English opera was inaugurated on Monday night at the cosey little theatre of Bryant's Opera House under sufficiently favorable auspices. The house was well filled and the audience inclined to be very appreciative, or we should rather say demonstrative. It is not to be expected that the performance should be perfect, and it is not, but those who are not too exacting may pass a pleasant evening. The laureis, such as they were, were carried off by Miss Emma Howson, who sang in the rôle of Arline. This lady has a voice of much sweetness, but it evidently lacks cultivation. Mr. Brookhouse Bowler's singing of the rôle of Thaddeus was scarcely satisfactory, and his rendering of the "Fair Land of Poland" must be pronounced a failure, notwithstanding the applause of his friends. Mr. Henri Drayton filled the character of Count Arnheim acceptably. Mrs. Zelda Seguin as the Gypsy Queen, secured the approbation of the audience. The remaining rôles were filled as follows:—Mr. E. Seguin, Devilshoof; Florestin, J. H. Chatterson; Buda, Mrs. Brand; Captain of the Guard, Mr. Kinross. The concerted pieces were given with much spirit and ensemble, and, if we may accept the audience as a representative one, the performance is likely to give satisfaction to the public.

THE WEATHER.

THE GENEVA ARBITRATION.

Earl Russell's Motion for an Address to the Crown Praying for British Retirement from the Court.

His Lordship Denies the Justice of Indirect Claims and Speaks in Behalf of the Nation—"Extravagances" of the American Case—A Sop for Canada—A Sneer About the Trent—Granville's Defence of Free Interpretation of the Washington Treaty—Cabinet Rebuke to the Aged Ex-Secretary—General Debate.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

LONDON, June 4, 1872.

In the House of Lords this evening there was a full attendance of peers, and the galleries were crowded

Earl Russell moved his long impending address to the Queen, praying Her Majesty to cause instructions to be given to her representatives to retire from the Board of Arbitration at Geneva if the claims for indirect damages are not withdrawn by the government of the United States Earl Russell spoke at great length in support of his motion. He reviewed the events of the war in the United States and the circumstances of the escape of the Alabama, and discussed the subsequent negotiations The government, he said, should remember that England never admitted the justice of the indirect claims. What was the meaning of this delay, this mystery, this hesitation? The nation was in the same state of uncertainty as when the treaty was ratified. The honor of the government required that it should speak plainly. It should say to the United States, withdraw the indirect claims or no arbitration. There was no form of extravagance which was not to be found in the American case. He held the English negotiators responsible He contrasted the conduct of the British government in relinquishing the Fenian claims with that of the American government in advancing its indirect claims This country must feel humiliated by the manner in which the negotiators had mismanaged the business He complimented the Canadians on the loyal spirit in which they had acted on the treaty, and concluded as follows:—"The nation must show, as it has before, that it is jealous of the honor of the British Crown It must treat the United States as it treated them in the Trent case" (Cheers.)

Earl Granville followed He defended the right of the American government to place its own construction on the Treaty of Washington and to introduce the indirect claims The only way to escape from the consequences of the opposite interpretations put upon the treaty by the two governments was through a supplemental article, and of this the government had availed itself, therefore Earl Russell's proposition did not touch the point at issue. He defended the Commissioners who negotiated the treaty, those who acted for the United States as well as those who acted for Great Britain. It was all very well to pick holes in a treaty which when first published was generally approved The British Commissioners believed the indirect claims would be withdrawn, and they believed that the American Commissioners had so admitted. The aspersions on the government and the Commissioners were unfounded and unjust He rebuked Earl Russell for his allusion to the Trent affair, declaring that it would be the cause of incalculable ill-feeling. Should the Treaty of Washington fail, an event by no means certain, England would stand the better for having exhausted the means of removing the misunderstanding. The government had been legally advised that the supplemental article was amply sufficient. If their lordships arrogated to themselves the treaty-making power they would have an enormous responsibility If they required the President of the United States to do that which Mr. Disraeli said in his Manchester speech was impossible for him to do, they would destroy all chances of a settlement. He warned their lordships that there was no good, but much harm in irritating expressions and resolutions.

Earl Grey remarked that if the negotiations proceeded as at present the country would be committed to any mistake the government made.

Lord Denman thought their lordships were needlessly alarmed. Even if the indirect claims were passed, he doubted whether the Commons would pay the bill.

The Earl of Derby disclaimed party feeling on this question. He had been told that he should be careful not to offend the Americans. He could conceive of no poorer compliment to the Americans than the apprehension that a frank, plain statement might be a cause of offence. (Cheers) He did not want to quarrel or break off negotiators. He wanted to know where they stood. The negotiations were either unable to see what was plain to everybody or had determined to make a treaty with their eyes shut. If the understanding is clear that the indirect claims are excluded, why are they not excluded in plain terms. (Cheers)

The Earl of Kimberley regretted that Lord Granville had constituted himself an American advocate. He seemed to be under the impression that the House had determined that the treaty should fail, and the real object and spirit of his speech was its defence. He must know that words whereby the indirect claims would be directly withdrawn could be inserted in the treaty with the consent of the American government.

The Marquis of Salisbury regretted that Earl Granville should throw the responsibility on the High Joint Commissioners. He particularly alluded to the selection the government had made of Commissioners for Great Britain, and hinted that they had been overmatched by the astute Yankees. He confessed he had no very active regard for the treaty, and declared his unmitigated hostility to the indirect claims. He ridiculed the idea that the Americans, if they felt they ought to withdraw the indirect claims, would not plainly do so.

The debate was continued by the Earl of Malmesbury in favor of the motion and the Marquis of Ripon against it.

Lord WESTBURY announced that he would vote with the government, because if the motion of Earl Russell prevailed it would kill the Supplemental Article and destroy all that had already been done.

The Earl of ROSEBERRY said he should follow the example of Lord Westbury, believing that the motion would crush any tendency on the part of the United States to give way.

Lord Cairns supported the motion. He did not think it would endanger cordial relations with America. He assailed with bitterness the treaty, the negotiations and the government. He was repeatedly interrupted by Lords Granville and Argyle. The debate became quite exciting, and there were some lively scenes.

The Lord Chancellor moved an adjournment, and Earl Granville, supporting the motion, characterized the speech of Lord Cairns as the speech of an advocate.

After some confusion the motion to adjourn was negatived by the vote of 85 to 125.

An adjournment was again moved, this time until Thursday, which was agreed to, and the sitting closed at ten o'clock A. M.

THE QUESTION IN WASHINGTON.

Cabinet Despatch to Minister Schenck—Granville Not Unreasonable—Indirect Claims Still a Difficulty—What Mr. Fish Says of His Communications with Minister Thornton.

WASHINGTON, June 4, 1872.

After the Cabinet meeting to-day a despatch went to Minister Schenck reiterating the telegraphic statements of our position with respect to the supplementary article, and intimating that the British suggestion for postponing the business of the Geneva Tribunal, with a view to a better understanding of the article, was not unreasonable, and that our government is willing to bring about the adjournment of the arbitrators in either of the two ways pointed out in Lord Granville's communication of last Saturday; that is by a formal treaty concluded at Washington before our Senate adjourns, or by a joint application to be presented by the agents of the two parties to the arbitration. An important point in this connection is the wish of our government to adjourn the arbitration without first submitting the printed or written argument required by the fifth article of the Treaty of Washington, but the necessity of action on our side to reserve our argument till a later meeting is obviated by the pledge of the British Cabinet to Parliament not to proceed any further at Geneva till the indirect claims are withdrawn.

As these claims are not to be withdrawn till the Senate's article becomes a treaty, and as that treaty cannot be made till the article is discussed and explained by mail communication, the United States already possesses the desired privilege of withholding its preliminary argument with a view to eventualities.

It is understood by our government that if the British government should fail to enforce upon us any change in the proposed article of the treaty, it will at last consent to accept the new treaty in the Senate's own words, and to agree upon its meaning by an exchange of notes, in connection with the whole correspondence of the two governments, both before and after the Supplemental Treaty. These will supply the definition and limitation that Lord Granville is so anxious to impose upon the broadly stated proposition of the Senate.

Secretary Fish in his despatch regrets that in the conversations held between themselves, Sir Edward Thornton should have received from him any impression strongly enough to transmit it to London, there to be repeated to General Schenck. that he was of opinion that the Senate's article was capable of improvement His position with regard to that article is such that he could not with any show of consistency have consented that the British representative should receive from him any impression that he was in the least dissatisfied with either the language or the spirit of the Senate resolution which embodied the agreement the President was recommended to make with Great Britain On the contrary, he is anxious to place himself squarely with the Senate and the President in presenting the modified article as the uttermost concession to save the material interests that have been persistently urged upon the administration is entitled to regard, so far as they could be regarded without abatement of the dignity and honor of the country. The friends of Mr Fish say that he stands as strongly as ever by our first case, but anxiety to save the treaty, to save the example and establish a principle of international arbitration, and to concede something to the actual commercial and financial feeling of the country, induced him to seek a fair equivalent for the original demand. This equivalent he considers to be gained to both sides in the supplementary treaty proposed by Great Britain and amended by ourselves, and if it were left to him he would not consent to any modification of the intent and meaning placed here upon the supplemental article.

The pending difficulty arises from the failure of the amended article to contain Lord Granville's definition of what constitutes indirect claims and the British apprehension of the result of such an omission is that some of our claims, that are to be put to rest as indirect may reappear as within the scope of direct losses, or, failing that, that we may find it to our interest, in future changes of circumstances, to so enlarge the area of indirect damages, in the absence of an acknowledged definition, as to make the observance of neutral obligations of no pecuniary consequence when measured against the profits of privateering and the supplanting of a rival's maritime commerce.

IRELAND.

The Duke of Edinburg in Dublin—Loyal Reception of the Prince—Progress of the Cortege Through the Capital—Opening of the National Exhibition.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

DUBLIN, June 4, 1872.

His Royal Highness Prince Alfred, Duke of Edinburg, arrived here to-day. He drove in an open carriage from the railway station to the Viceregal Lodge, and was repeatedly and enthusiastically cheered on the way. He will open the National Exhibition to-morrow

RECEPTION OF THE DUKE AND HIS PROGRESS THROUGH THE METROPOLIS.

His Royal Highness was received, on landing at the Carlisle pier, Kingstown, by Their Excellencies the Lord Lieutenant and the Countess Spencer in state. The journey from Kingstown to Westland row was performed by special train, and awaiting their arrival there were the Lord Mayor and members of the Municipal Council of Dublin, in their official robes No address was presented on the occasion, that interesting proceeding being reserved for the occasion of the opening of the Exhibition to-day. A royal guard of honor, with band and colors, received the party on its departure at Westland row Lord and Lady Spencer, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburg and suite, drove through the town to the Viceregal Lodge, where a dinner party in the evening took place.

OPENING OF THE EXHIBITION.

To-day (June 5) the Exhibition will be opened by His Royal Highness, the progress from the Viceregal Lodge to Earlsfort terrace being in state.

The orchestral and choral arrangements promise to be very successful. The ode composed with other appropriate music, will be performed in the Grand Concert Hall, in the centre of which a dais has been erected for the royal and viceregal party. After the inauguration of the Exhibition the Lord Lieutenant and Lady Spencer and the Duke will proceed to the lawn of the Royal Dublin Society, where the statue by Foley of the Prince Consort of England will be unveiled. A grand military display will be observed on the occasion, the lawn being filled with troops and military bands.

A SERIES OF FESTIVITIES.

In the evening Their Excellencies and their distinguished visitor will be present at a ball to be given by the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress at the Mansion House.

On the 6th the Royal Duke will attend the concert of the pupils of the Irish Academy of Music.

The other arrangements for the week include a State ball, given by Their Excellencies, and the installation, at the Viceregal Lodge, of the Earl of Kenmare as Knight of St. Patrick, taking the ribbon of the late lamented Earl of Mayo. The late Earl of Mayo, on his appointment to the Order, was an Extra Knight, but on the death of Lord Gough, according to the provision in the warrant of creation, he succeeded as an Ordinary Knight of Edinburg.

GREAT PANIC IN MATAMOROS.

Desperate Efforts to Defend the City.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

The HERALD correspondent at Matamoros has forwarded us the following special despatch:—

MATAMOROS, Mexico, June 4,
VIA BROWNSVILLE, Texas, June 4, 1872

Despatches reached here last night from Mier stating that General Corella arrived in that city with a few men—a small remnant of his army, which was completely destroyed by the revolutionists under Treviño The telegraph line between Matamoros and Mier was cut to-day by the revolutionary forces.

GREAT PANIC.

The greatest excitement prevails among the inhabitants and the government troops in the city. The National Guard is being reorganized, the work on the fortifications has recommenced and the ferry restrictions between Matamoros and Brownsville have been re-established. The Juarez authorities are seizing all the private arms they can find and endeavoring to purchase others. Three hundred pieces of arms will be sent to General Cevallos to-morrow, under escort of a portion of the National Guard

FRANCE.

M. Jules Favre in Protest Against the Tariff Tax on Raw Materials.

Cabinet Discrimination Against British and Belgian Interests—The Commercial Question Approaching a Crisis.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

PARIS, June 4, 1872.

Telegrams from Versailles report that in the Legislative Assembly this afternoon M. Jules Favre made a powerful speech against the tax on raw materials. He pronounced it fatal to French trade and French manufactures, unproductive as a source of revenue and objectionable in a diplomatic sense, because it will alienate foreign Powers.

The Difficult Points of the Tariff Tax Crisis.

It has been frequently anticipated of late that the commercial policy which President Thiers is determined to insist on for France is likely to assume a very decided political interest. France has commercial treaties with Spain, Austria, Sweden and Switzerland, which do not expire for several years. Again, one which it has entered into with Portugal remains in force until the year 1879, and Germany, in virtue of the "favored nation" clause inserted just lately in the Treaty of Frankfort, can enjoy all the privileges of this treaty for the next seven years When the French government announced its intention of reverting to the tax upon raw materials, and it was understood that a "transaction" had been entered into with the left of the Chamber by virtue of which the tax was to be voted, the Powers (England and Belgium) whose treaty rights were to be affected by the imposition of a duty thus at variance with the commercial obligations by which France is bound determined to protest against the act, and it was understood that at the weekly reception of the Minister of Foreign Affairs, which was held on Friday, a representation would be made to M. de Rémusat on the subject Here the parliamentary affairs tended to prevent the action. The attitude which the Thiers government now proposes to take in the Chamber in this matter is original. In reply to the very natural curiosity of the Assembly as to how the duties are to be levied on raw materials, even if they are voted, M. Thiers replies, "Leave that to me. all you have to do is to vote me the power of obtaining the seventy millions from this source. I will undertake to levy that amount" It seems that the clause which the President relies upon to enable him to escape the obligations imposed upon the country by these treaties is the one permitting the levying of compensatory duties. In his opinion these are fiscal duties, and do not come under the letter of the treaty, being duties which the government has a right to raise for its own internal revenue purposes. The financial element in the French Chamber is the strongest it contains. There are many men of sound business capacity in the Assembly who already resist to some purpose the tariff scheme, and of the Paris press nearly all the leading journals express their opposition to the government policy in very decided terms.

TERRIBLE MURDER.

Captain Colvocoresses, of the Navy, Murdered and Robbed in the Streets of Bridgeport.

ESCAPE OF THE MURDERERS.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 4, 1872.

One of the most cold-blooded murders that have ever taken place in this part of the country occurred last night in this city. Captain George M. Colvocoresses, a retired naval officer, and member of the Retiring Board of the United States Navy, came down from his home, in Litchfield, Conn., on the Naugatuck train last evening, reaching Bridgeport at about nine o'clock. He went immediately down to the boat and secured a passage for New York, taking his stateroom key with him. He then came up town from the steamboat dock, called at the Sterling House and inquired if it was too late for supper. He was told that it was, and he went out, going, it is supposed, to some saloon in the neighborhood He subsequently returned to the hotel and conversed with the landlord and clerk, and finally left, at about half-past ten, on his way to the boat He carried with him an umbrella, a cane and a small satchel, which latter he guarded with extreme care, keeping it constantly with him and even taking it to the water closet instead of leaving it at the office, as is usual.

Between half-past ten and eleven the policeman detailed at the steamboat dock heard a pistol shot in the direction of Clinton street, which runs from Main street to Water, and through which Captain Colvocoresses passed on his way to the boat Running in the direction of the sound, the policeman came upon the unfortunate man just as he breathed his last He had a fearful wound from a bullet in the lower left breast, and a cut from some sharp instrument over the right hip. His sword cane, which he had evidently drawn, was bent nearly double, and the case was shattered in pieces, showing that he had made an effort for his life when assailed. Near him was found a large single barrelled pistol, evidently the instrument of the murder. His satchel was missing and his watch was also gone, showing that robbery was the object of the murder.

The body was immediately taken to the station house and a jury of citizens empanelled, who examined into the facts in the case and brought in a verdict, at half past one, of murder by some person or persons unknown. Mr. James E Dunham, Councilman Kiefer and other members of the Common Council, which had just adjourned, acted on the jury, many of them being personal friends and acquaintances of the unfortunate gentleman, who was well known here. The following is the verdict of the Coroner's jury:—

The undersigned jurors being duly empanelled and sworn to inquire of the cause and manner of the death of a body supposed to be that of Captain George M Colvocoresses, whose death was sudden and untimely, and the cause and manner of which was unknown, having viewed the body of said deceased and considered the evidence given to us, do, on our oaths, say that said deceased came to his death by a pistol or gunshot wound in his lower left breast by some person or persons to the jury unknown, at about eleven o'clock P. M., June 3, 1872, near the corner of Clinton and Main streets, Bridgeport, Conn.

F. A. KING,	J. S. READ,
S. W. THOMPSON,	D. HOLDEN,
P. SMITH,	M. TUTTLE,
E. OSBORN,	JOHN COGGSWELL,
F. SHERWOOD,

From memoranda on his person it was concluded that Captain Colvocoresses had from eight to ten thousand dollars on his person, or, more probably, in the little satchel which he carried, and which was found opened and rifled this morning on the railroad track some distance from the scene of the murder The theory is that parties either in Litchfield or in this city, knowing that Captain Colvocoresses had upon his person a considerable sum of money, tracked him possibly from Litchfield and dogged him about town till in the quiet and darkness of Clinton street they set upon him and completed the murder. The horse pistol which was found near the scene of the tragedy, a box of caps tied up in a piece of cloth and other traces will, it is hoped, lead to the detection of the murderers. Every effort that can be made will be, and the police are untiring in their endeavors.

The utmost horror was occasioned throughout the city by the announcement of the murder this morning, and many friends of the unhappy man have visited the remains at the station house. The family of the deceased has been telegraphed, and his wife and daughters are hourly expected. One of the latter was preparing to be married in a short time to a gentleman formerly associate editor of the Standard in this city, and now in the editorial department of Messrs. Harper & Brother, of New York.

It is stated here this morning that the pistol which was picked up near the scene of the murder was seen yesterday in the hands of persons in this city and has been identified. It was an old-fashioned horse pistol and had a string tied around it, and there were other peculiarities about it by which it could be recognized.

Captain George M. Colvocoresses, the victim of this foul murder, was born in Greece, and came to this country when quite young. He was appointed to the navy from Vermont in February, 1832, and attached to the frigate United States in the Mediterranean squadron. He was promoted to passed midshipman June 23, 1838, and served on various ships till 1861, when he was commissioned Commander, commanding the sloop Saratoga, of the blockading squadron, till 1864, and the sloop St. Mary's, of the Pacific squadron, from 1865 to 1866. He was retired with the rank of captain in 1867. Captain Colvocoresses was a gallant and deserving officer, and took an active part in the late war of the rebellion, receiving a large amount of prize money from various captures in which he participated. He was a man of about sixty years of age, was a gentleman of agreeable manners, and was greatly esteemed and respected by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances the country over. He has a son in the navy an acting ensign. Mayor Goodsell, of Bridgeport, this morning telegraphed to Secretary Robeson of the Navy informing him of the murder of Captain Colvocoresses. The Captain had an insurance on his life to the amount of about sixty thousand dollars.

REV. DR. HUSTON'S TRIAL.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 4, 1872.

The investigation of the charges against Rev. Dr. Huston was resumed to-day by the Ecclesiastical Committee, after a week's adjournment. Soon after assembling this morning the Presiding Elder stated the motion submitted by counsel for Dr. Huston previous to adjournment last week, namely, to quash all further proceedings and let the matter go before the General Conference for final adjudication, on the ground that the prosecution had utterly failed to sustain their case, had been considered and denied, and that the investigation would now proceed. It is said an offer was then made by Dr Huston's counsel to submit the case as it now stood, on the ground of the vague and indefinite character of the remaining charges. This proposition was declined by the prosecution. and the investigation proceeded. It will probably be concluded to-morrow or the following day, and the decision of the committee will soon thereafter be given to the public. The present investigation is merely preliminary, to decide whether Dr. Huston shall be formally tried by the Ecclesiastical Court.

The Philadelphia Convention and the Vice Presidency.

THE PRESIDENT FAVORS WILSON.

WASHINGTON, June 4, 1872.

Greeley's Friends Using Sumner's Speech.

Arrangements were completed to-day by the Greeley Campaign Committee to circulate 80,000 copies of Sumner's last speech, at Philadelphia, on Thursday.

Speculations on Wilson's Chances for the Vice Presidency.

The hope here in administration circles is that Senator Wilson may receive the nomination of the Philadelphia Convention for the Vice Presidency. It has been known for some time past that the President gave Senator Wilson his preference for the nomination with him on the Presidential ticket, and the personal friends of both parties have been zealously engaged in promoting the Senator's chances for this nomination. The reason of the President's sympathy, however, did not transpire until to-day. The nomination of Wilson for the Vice Presidency is not only believed to be a popular card with the working class, but if elected would create a vacancy in the Senate from Massachusetts, and so strong is the belief that that vacancy is to occur that there are already two candidates for the position—George S. Boutwell, Secretary of the Treasury, and Henry L Dawes, chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means. The President is confident that Boutwell would be chosen, and that would leave him free to appoint a new Secretary of the Treasury, a freedom which Grant desires above all else to enjoy.

The House and the Tariff Bill—Adjourning for the Philadelphia Convention.

The House to day showed signs of a single purpose—the passage of the conference report on the Revenue bill. General Butler originated a pleasant play upon the name of Fish in connection with a resolution of the New England Fish and Salt Dealers' Association, asking legislation to carry into effect the provisions of the Washington Treaty relating to the fisheries. He alluded, too, to the fact that the fish dealer is the fish catchers' natural enemy as a point against the resolution.

The Revenue bill report finally arrived, and Mr. Dawes explained its provisions in answer to inquiries of different members. After an hour's debate the previous question was seconded, and the report was adopted without a division and with less than ten dissenting votes. The House then, at two P. M., adjourned till Friday, in order to give the members a chance to go to the Philadelphia Convention and be back in time to receive and act on the remaining appropriation bills from the Senate. The adjournment was made with the understanding that the House shall meet to-morrow at eleven o'clock, and no business is to be done, except to allow the Speaker to sign the Revenue bill. The bill will then go to the President, and probably be signed to-morrow

The Tobacco Interest and the Tax Bill—A Stupid Omission.

In arranging the details of the Revenue Tax bill the rate on tobacco has been one of the chief obstacles to harmonious action. The interests of the plug and cutting manufacturers clashed, the former asking for a uniform rate and the other that the old tax—viz., sixteen cents for cutting and thirty-two cents for plug tobacco—should be maintained. The House, under the direction of the Ways and Means Committee, agreed to a uniform rate of twenty cents tax. This was amended in the Senate by inserting twenty-four cents. The Conference Committee on the bill fixed it at twenty cents, and it was so announced to both houses.

To-day a watchful manufacturer in the plug interest, called on the Clerk of the Senate Finance Committee to see that the tobacco clause had been inserted in accordance with the views of the committee. The bill had not been ordered printed, and the original copy, he was told, was at the Globe office, in which paper of this morning the bill was printed in extenso. A careful examination disclosed the remarkable fact that the important clause had been altogether omitted. The plug man rushed back to the Senate, and Senator Johnston, of Virginia, had barely time before the bill was acted on to notify the Chairman of the Finance Committee, Mr. Sherman, of the omission. The same thing was done in the House, at the suggestion of Mr Kerr and others, and the mistake rectified. This is regarded here as an outrageous piece of negligence, and will probably be the subject of inquiry.

Admiral Polo Declares the Steamer Edgar Stewart a Filibustero.

Admiral Polo, the Spanish Minister, has filed at the State Department the declaration, supported by a number of affidavits, that the steamer Edgar Stewart, which cleared from New London and was recently menaced at Kingston, Jamaica. is filibuster, and engaged in furnishing arms and munitions of war to the Cuban insurgents. The Stewart cleared for Key West, a port which she never touched, and when first heard from after leaving New London was at Kingston, having been compelled to go into that port in consequence of dissatisfaction among her crew. The Spanish Minister alleges that it was known then that she had been guilty of violating our Navigation laws, and was not entitled to proceed to sea; that the protection given by a United States war vessel under the circumstances is equivalent to the government aiding and abetting an expedition against a Power with which we profess to be in friendly relation, and calls upon the United States to fulfil its treaty stipulations. The Treasury Department has been notified of the matter, and collectors of customs will be instructed to detain the Stewart should she enter any of our ports. It has been reported that since the Stewart left Kingston she has successfully landed a cargo of arms and munitions of war on the south coast of Cuba. The Navy Department has not received a word from the commander of the Wyoming, who was ordered to protect the Stewart, and the impression is that an officer was put on board and ordered to bring the vessel to Key West, and may have been overpowered. The report of Commander Davis is anxiously looked for, as the present understanding of the case is not regarded here as creditable to our government.

Public Documents in the War Department.

John Coburn, Chairman of the House Military Committee, visited the War Department to-day, and gave the archives his personal examination. He is satisfied that all the important papers are there, and that the statements made that valuable documents are missing is wholly untrue. The committee will be ready to report regarding the Buell records on Friday or Saturday.

The North Pacific Survey.

Congress having made an appropriation of $50,000 for the survey of the North Pacific Ocean, the Navy Department has commenced making arrangements for the surveying expedition, which is to be under the supervision of Commander Sherrett, an able and experienced officer. A great deal of work is to be done, and to thoroughly survey the route and make the proper connection with parts already surveyed it would take two ships five years or more. Determinations of longitude are among the important duties to be performed by the expedition.

Congressman Cox Convalescing.

S. S. Cox is still confined to his room. The danger of his disease—pleuro-pneumonia—is believed by his physicians to be passed, and that he is safely convalescing. He will not be able to attend West Point as visitor. General Stoughton, of Michigan, and Sargent, of California, co-visitors with him, leave for West Point to-morrow. It is not probable that Mr. Cox will be able to take his seat again this session in the House.

Congressmen On to Philadelphia.

A large number of Congressmen and others left to-night to attend the Philadelphia Convention.

Protection to Immigrants.

The bill for the better protection of immigrants, introduced by Mr. Conger, of Michigan, will fail to pass at this session of Congress for want of time to discuss it Internal Revenue Appointment.

Elizur Wagur has been appointed Internal Revenue Gauger for the Twenty seventh district of New York.

Pleading for the New Orleans Collector.

The Louisiana delegation waited on the President to day to protest against the removal of Colonel Casey, speaking kind words in his favor and saying it was the wish and for the interest of the republican party that he should be retained.

No Japanese Loan Contemplated.

The rumor that Japan is negotiating for a loan is founded on a misapprehension. Minister Mori and Ambassador Iwakura are said to be decidedly opposed to any such scheme.

A West Point Cadetship for New York.

Representative William R. Roberts, of New York, has appointed the son of the late General Thomas Francis Meagher to a cadetship at West Point, and the young man has entered upon his studies. Mr. Roberts offers the appointment of cadet midshipman at the Naval Academy to the schools of his district, the selection to be made by competitive examination on the 25th inst.

Delegates and the President.

The Georgia and several other delegations on their way to the Philadelphia Convention had interviews with the President to-day.

Presidential Nominations.

The following nominations by the President were sent to the Senate to-day—

Abram T. Hoyt, to be Register of the Land Office at Santa Fe, N. M.; William N. Granger, to be Register of the Land Office at Belmont, Nevada; Major Benjamin Alvord, to be Paymaster General and Colonel; Lieutenant Colonel and Deputy Quartermaster General L. C. Easton to be Assistant Quartermaster General and Colonel, Lieutenant-Colonel Stewart Van Vliet to be Assistant Quartermaster General and Colonel; the following majors and quartermasters to be lieutenant colonels and deputy quartermaster generals —Alexander Montgomery, Treadwell Moore, Hyatt C. Ransom, Asher R. Eddy and Rufus Saxton the following captains and assistant quartermasters to be majors and quartermasters—William Myers, Herbert M. Enos and Benjamin C. Card.

Presidential Approval.

The President has approved the bill authorizing the Secretary of War to make certain appointments in the Quartermaster's Office, thus removing the cause of trouble heretofore existing on that subject.

OBITUARY.

Marshal Vaillant.

A telegram, dated in Paris at a late hour last night, informs us that Jean Baptiste Philibert Vaillant, Marshal of France, died to-day, aged eighty-two years.

The news of the death of this distinguished soldier reached us this morning. Marshal Vaillant related his own biography in a simple and characteristic fashion a very short time since A shoeing-smith of Dijon, M. Vaillant, having written to the Marshal of France of the same name to know if they were not related, the latter has replied in an interesting letter, giving such particulars as he knows of his ancestry, in order to assist the writer in his researches. After referring to his deceased parents the Marshal concludes thus:—"I entered the Polytechnic School at sixteen, and on leaving it joined the corps of engineers. The promotion, from which I experienced the greatest pleasure in the whole course of my career was that of corporal at the school. I went through the Russian campaign and that of 1815. I was made prisoner at the end of 1813. I was at Waterloo, and was wounded in the defence of Paris in 1815. I had my leg laid open by a shell at the siege of Algiers in 1830. My superiors said they were well satisfied with me at the siege of Antwerp in 1832. The Emperor told me that he was pleased with me at that of Rome. Such, sir, is my history nearly complete. If you find in all that any proof of community of origin between your family and mine I shall be very well pleased. In 1851 he was raised to the dignity of Marshal of France. Since then he received the title of Count, and was made Marshal of the Palace. In 1854 he succeeded Marshal St. Arnaud in the functions of Minister of War. Marshal Vaillant, as a reward for his services was, in 1853, appointed a free member of the Academy of Sciences. Though an aged man, yet, like the veteran war-horse, the blast of the trumpet always revived his military ardor, and there were few French generals in the field whose services proved more valuable.

THE COURTS.

Interesting Proceedings in the New York and Brooklyn Courts.

An Alleged Counterfeiter on Trial—Efforts Made to Suppress Straw Bail Giving—Another Minor Habeas Corpus Case—Mandamus as to the Assessed Value of Property—Important Decisions—Assignments in the Marine Court—Business of the General Sessions, Parts 1 and 2.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT.

A Counterfeiter on Trial.

Before Judge Shipman.

The trial of Llewellyn Williams, charged with counterfeiting, was begun yesterday in the United States Circuit Court. Williams was arrested by one of Colonel Whitley's men on the 26th of October last at his residence, 438 Fifty fourth street, and upward of $5,000 in counterfeit fifty cent stamps, together with two plates (back and fibre) and a seal plate found in his possession. Williams, as alleged, was engaged in striking off some counterfeits when he was seized. The plates and counterfeit stamps were produced in court by Detective Kennock, who made the arrest, and his testimony was corroborated by the evidence of Detective Applegate, who was with Kennock at the time of the arrest and seizure.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

Straw Bail—Vigorous Effort Being Made to Put Down Bogus Bail.

A man named Joel T. Rice was brought up before Commissioner Shields, in the United States Courts, yesterday, charged with giving fraudulent bail in the case of Frederick A. Goodal, who is at present locked up in the Ludlow Street Jail, charged with washing revenue stamps. Another man, named Rosenfield, was brought up before Commissioner Shields a few days ago, charged with giving straw bail for Goodal also. The latter was liberated twice from Ludlow Street Jail, but was twice rearrested by Detective Sullivan, of Colonel Whitley's secret service force, when it was discovered that the bail was bogus. On Monday he was arrested for the second time in Wall street by Officer Sullivan. Rice protested his innocence.

The Commissioner committed him in default of $5,000 bail. Commissioner Shields and District Attorney Purdy are determined to put an end to the practice of giving sham bail in the Federal building, a class of crime that a short time ago was much in vogue in both the State and Federal Courts.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

"Where Burning Sappho Loved and Sung."

Before Judge Barrett.

In re Kate F. Ellis.—George D. Brown made application yesterday in this Court for a writ of habeas corpus with view to obtain the control and guardianship of Kate F. Ellis. Brown is known in the theatrical world under his own proper patronymic. Miss Ellis is also well known in Thespian circles, but under the soubriquet "The Sappho." Mr. Brown, in his petition, states that in September, 1871, at Prescott, Canada, Henry W. Ellis, an actor, and his wife entered into an agreement with him by which he was to have control of the professional services of Kate F. Ellis, their daughter, for two years. She was to have half the net profits and $300 besides each year for her wardrobe and education in music and the languages. The parents were to travel with her and their expenses to be paid by Brown. If practicable they were also to be engaged to act with her. Brown also was to give her a star engagement in this city within six months for six nights at least. He says that he has faithfully fulfilled his part of the contract, but that the parents of Kate prevailed upon her to leave him, and that since the 23d December she has been under their control and prevented from fulfilling her agreement. The cause of her leaving him, he says, was because of her father insisting on engagements being made for her in variety concert halls. The writ was made returnable to-day, and it is not improbable that some spicy developments may be made.

Important Decision—A Mandamus Asking the Comptroller to Change the Assessed Value of Property Refused by the General Term.

An application was made on behalf of John Koch in the Supreme Court, Chambers, for a mandamus directing the Comptroller to change the valuation of his property on the books of the Tax Commissioners for the year 1870 from $105,000 to $65,000, claiming that a mistake of $40,000 had been made in the assessed value of the property. This was opposed by the Comptroller on the ground that he had no authority to make the desired change, and the Tax Commissioners declared their inability to act in the matter, the six months allowed by statute for correction of the books having elapsed. The Court denied the order for a mandamus, whereupon appeal was taken to the General Term and argued yesterday, when the order of mandamus was again refused and the order of the Court below affirmed.

During September only Parts 1 and 2 will be held, and only non jury cases will be tried.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS—PART 1.

A Stationery Clerk Acquitted of Alleged Larceny.

Before Gunning S. Bedford, City Judge.

The fore part of the day was occupied in the trial of an indictment against Henry Oughton, charged with stealing $80 worth of paper envelopes, the property of his employer, George Wilson, 53 Maiden lane. The proof showed that the accused was in the habit, by order of his employer, of taking envelopes to the establishment of John Fitzgerald, in order to have mourning borders put upon them, and that he did so in this instance without orders. The accused proved good character by highly respectable witnesses, which resulted in his acquittal.

Police Commissioner Barr the Victim of a Car Pickpocket.

Joseph Dollard, alias John Smith, who was jointly indicted with Joseph Oliver, charged with stealing $100 in greenbacks from Thomas J. Barr, one of the Police Commissioners, while riding upon a Forty-second street car on the 1st of April, was arraigned and pleaded guilty. At the request of counsel Judge Bedford remanded the prisoner.

Another Car Pickpocket.

Phillip Blunket was tried and convicted of stealing a gold watch from Henry Kunz, on the 20th of last month, while riding upon a Third avenue car. The testimony pointed clearly to the guilt of the prisoner, and the City Judge, being informed by the officer that Blunket was an associate of thieves, sent him to the State Prison for four years.

Young Burglars Sent to the Penitentiary.

Philip Doyle and James Devine pleaded guilty to an attempt at burglary in the third degree. They were discovered on the 24th of May secreted in the coal hole of David Parker's dwelling house, 46 West Forty-sixth street, which was unoccupied at the time. When arrested by the policeman Doyle remarked that he was sorry he had not a revolver or he would have shot him, but Devine said nothing. Judge Bedford punished Doyle for that indiscreet observation by sending him to the Penitentiary for two years and six months, while the sentence of his confederate was modified to eighteen months' imprisonment on the Island.

Stabbing a Police Officer.

Henry Arnassen, charged with cutting Officer Mattison, of the Twenty-third precinct, in the arm with a pocket knife on the 21st of May, pleaded guilty to an assault with a dangerous weapon. Mr. Hummel stated to the Court that the prisoner was intoxicated at the time he got into trouble with the officer and that he was never arrested for any other offence. The Judge took these extenuating circumstances into consideration and modified the sentence to one year's imprisonment in the Penitentiary.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS—PART 2.

A Housebreaker Sent to the State Prison for Ten Years.

Before Recorder Hackett.

George Revolt was tried and convicted of an attempt at burglary in the first degree, the indictment charging that on the 10th of May he effected a burglarious entry into the dwelling house 85 East Fourth street, which is called the Working Girls' Home. Officer Little found the prisoner at the basement door, and noticed an indentation made in the wood, which corresponded with the width of a "jimmy" in his possession. When searched at the station house there were a number of keys found in his pocket.

The Recorder sent Revolt to the State Prison for ten years.

The House of Refuge Revolt—The Youth McDonald Sent to Sing Sing for Seven Years and a Half.

Thomas McDonald was tried and convicted of an assault with intent to do bodily harm, the charge being that, on the 17th of May, he assaulted Thomas Buchanan, an assistant foreman in the House of Refuge, with a knife. He was sent to the State Prison upon the charge for five years. McDonald also pleaded guilty to a similar indictment for stabbing William J. Adams at the House of Refuge on the same day, and was sentenced to the State Prison for two years and six months, making the punishment, in the aggregate, seven years and six months.

Assault and Battery.

James Johnson and Joseph Clark, indicted for assaulting Michael Brew, on the 9th of May, with intent to steal ten cents from him, pleaded guilty to assault and battery, and were each sent to the Penitentiary for one year.

Larceny of Jewelry—The Female "Receiver" Sent to the State Prison.

Mary Elkin was tried for receiving stolen goods. On the 25th of March about eight hundred dollars' worth of diamond jewelry was stolen from Mrs. Anna Baver, and it appeared from the proof that the prisoner received a pawn ticket representing a portion of the stolen property, which she obtained at Simpson's and afterwards endeavored to sell to Joseph Benggl, in Hoboken. She was convicted and sent to the State Prison for five years.

BROOKLYN COURTS.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

A Collision Case.

Before Judge Benedict.

Peter K. Baillie brought suit against the steamship City of Washington to recover for the sinking of the pilot boat by reason of a collision with the steamer. The collision occurred about two hundred miles from Sandy Hook on the night of the 20th of March last. Judge Benedict has just ordered a decree in favor of the libellant, with a reference to ascertain the amount of damage.

Decision.

John Schenck vs. The Canalboat Sunshine, &c.—Upon the pleadings and proofs the libellant is entitled to receive herein the sum of $375, for which amount, with costs, let a decree be entered in favor of libellant.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

Not Paying the Tax.

Before Commissioner Winslow.

A retail liquor dealer, named William Stemmerman, was accused of carrying on his business, at the corner of Lorrimer and Meserole streets, without paying the special tax required by law. The Commissioner announced that he would hear the case to-day.

Henry Forman, a retail liquor dealer at Dutch Kills, was accused of a similar offence. He was held to bail to appear to-morrow morning.

CITY COURT.

The Westfield Disaster—Proposal to Transfer All the Cases to the New York Supreme Court—Can There Be No Fair and Impartial Trials in the Brooklyn Courts?

Before Judge Neilson.

The cases of Mary Buckley, Daniel Mahoney and Honora Foley against the Staten Island Railroad Company were tried at the last term together, and the jury disagreed. The second trial was set down for yesterday morning; but the company's counsel stole a march on their opponents, and obtained, from Supreme Court Judge Pratt an order staying proceedings in all the cases pending in the City Court, and requiring the plaintiffs to show cause on Saturday why all the cases should not be transferred to the New York Supreme Court for trial. These three cases were, therefore, adjourned from yesterday until Monday.

Counsel for the company based their application for the order on a lengthy affidavit of President Jacob H. Vanderbilt, the principal points in which are as follows:—There are now pending 141 actions against the company in various Courts, twenty nine of which are in the City Court of Brooklyn. One of the Judges of the City Court has been sick for over a year, so that no General Term can be held to review the judgments recovered in that Court, and the defendant, unless relieved, will be compelled to incur the labor and expense of trying upward of twenty separate causes without the possibility of having any of the judgments recovered against it reviewed upon appeal. The Judges in the City Court have compelled the defendant to try the cases as they came up, notwithstanding they (the defendants) agreed to stipulate that if the City Court would stay the trial of the other actions pending therein until the final determination of the appeal from any one of the judgments which have been recovered against it therein the defendants would carry such appeal to the Court of Appeals with the utmost diligence, and in case the decision of the Court of Appeals should be adverse to the defendant on such appeal it would make no further defence to any of said actions except to require an assessment of damages in each case. This course on the part of the City Court has delayed cases on trial in other Courts, where an appeal could be taken and heard without delay. More than three fourths of the witnesses in the cases reside outside of the county of Kings and are compelled to pass through New York on their way to the City Court. Captain Vanderbilt also alleged that whenever juries had disagreed on previous trials of Westfield cases certain newspapers in Brooklyn made such disagreements subjects of unfriendly criticism and published false reports concerning them. He was of the opinion, in view of all the facts and circumstances stated, that the company could not have a fair and impartial trial in the Brooklyn City Court, and that the ends of justice required the removal of all the cases to the New York Supreme Court. The names of the witnesses and a statement of what he expects to prove by them are included in the affidavit.

The argument on the company's motion will be heard on Saturday next. Ex-Judge Morris and Thomas E. Pearsall appear for the plaintiffs, and Messrs. Beach, Brown and Vanderpoel for the company.

A CRUSADE AGAINST CRIME.

Judge Bedford's Charge to the Grand Jury in General Sessions—War Against Abortionists, Garroters and Thieves.

Upon Judge Bedford's opening the Court of General Sessions, Part 1, yesterday, the Grand Jury who were yesterday impanelled for the June Term, presented themselves and awaited the charge of His Honor preparatory to entering upon the business of the month. In view of the extraordinary increase of crime in this metropolis of late, which has necessitated the passage by the Legislature of a statute granting the Recorder and Judge Bedford power to hold two sessions of this Court simultaneously, and in view also of the glaring necessity of dealing rigorously with that dangerous portion of the community who to the serious detriment and well-being of society, the following remarks of the learned Judge will be read with interest, and while meriting the sincere commendation of the right-minded citizen, will, no doubt, tend in no trifling degree to cause the criminal and would-be criminal to pause ere continuing in or entering upon a course which is certain, sooner or later, to end in severe punishment.

JUDGE BEDFORD'S CHARGE.

MR. FOREMAN AND GENTLEMEN OF THE GRAND JURY—In charging you to-day I deem it my duty to mention the fact that of late crime in this city has been greatly on the increase, and offenders seem, as it were, to grow more bold and daring in their operations. The daily press teem with fearful accounts of and pistol and the terrible consequences ensuing therefrom.

The June term of this Court commences to-day, and with it we assume its labors, its duties and responsibilities. The calendar will be a heavy one, and many cases of interest and importance will be laid before you. In view of all these facts and circumstances, after consultation with my colleague, the Recorder, we have concluded to hold a double session of this Court during this term, thus giving the people the full benefit at the earliest possible moment of the statute, so wisely passed by the late Legislature, vesting in the Recorder and myself the right to hold whenever in our judgment the public business may demand, our aim and object being the full vindication of the law, the better protection of the community, the prompt punishment of crime and the more speedy trial of criminals. The people look to the authorities to stem this dark current of crime which has of late set in, and which is now jeopardizing the safety of our citizens. Let them not look in vain. The lawless, under an must succumb. Let the statute book be strictly and literally enforced, irrespective of persons or consequences, let the penalties prescribed by law be dealt out in no false measure—in one word, with certainty, as well as severity—and it seems to my mind that the result must prove most beneficial to the law abiding citizens of this community.

A DOUBLE SESSION OF THIS COURT

Among the important and grave cases which will be laid before you will be the dark and fearful doings of

THE PROFESSIONAL ABORTIONISTS.

Gentlemen, fully investigate and analyze each and every case of this character, and I have every reason to believe that, whenever the evidence will warrant, you will act promptly thus aiding by your official action the endeavor to drive from existence these traffickers in human life, and at the same time prove instrumental in having in all cases of this fiendish character by staying the murderous hand of the heartless abortionist.

The Grand Jury were then sent to their room to attend to the business coming before them. The court room was crowded, and during the delivery of Judge Bedford's address a breathless silence was observed.

METHODIST GENERAL CONFERENCE.

Closing Up the Church Legislation for the Next Four Years—Fixing the Conference Boundaries—Colored Delegates Asking for and Opposing Separate Conferences—Appointment of Fraternal Delegates to Corresponding Bodies—Miscellaneous.

Bishop Ames presided yesterday, and after the religious and preliminary exercises, the matter of settling the Conference boundaries was taken up and a discussion arose on the restoration of some territory taken from the Northwest Indiana Conference four years ago and which that Conference delegation now demand. The report of the Committee on Boundaries which leaves the above Conference without possession of the city of Indianapolis, the point of dispute was adopted. A similar fight took place between the Iowa and Des Moines Conference delegations, the former demanding some territory from the latter. This demand was denied and the boundary was left as it is. The southern boundary of Kansas was fixed at the thirty sixth parallel of latitude. When North Indiana Conference was defined, Dr. Goode offered an amendment to restore the boundary of that Conference to what it was previous to 1868. The amendment was voted down and the report adopted. The Philadelphia Conference, which on Monday had to give up Harrisburg, demanded a strip of territory including Beaver Meadow circuit as an offset. It was not granted. The boundaries of the other Conferences were either agreed to or remain unchanged. The committee asked that the Missouri and St. Louis Conferences be authorized to between them if, in their judgment, they should deem it advisable and the Bishop presiding shall concur. A resolution permitting the Georgia and Alabama Conferences to divide their colored and white ministers and people into separate Conferences called out the Rev. Mr. Lynch, a colored delegate from Mississippi, against making any such distinction on the statute books of the Church or in the State or nation. He wanted his people to stand on equal footing in every respect with their white brethren.

Rev. Mr. MUIR, of Lexington, Ky., a colored man, favored the separation of the two races or elements into distinct Conferences as being for the good of the colored people, who are now persuaded by designing men that they are still under the white man.

Mr. MIDDLETON, another colored delegate, opposed the resolution. There should be no distinction made between the two races. His people are Americans, they are Christians and Methodists; their own and their fathers' blood has enriched our soil, and the argument made in favor of separating the colored from the white, because the former are ignorant and the latter cultivated, he deemed conclusive against the separation. He therefore moved to lay the resolution on the table. It was so disposed of, amid the applause of the Conference.

Oregon, California and Minnesota Conferences were authorized to divide their territory into two Conferences during the next four years, if they shall deem it desirable, the presiding bishop concurring. Part of California, if divided, may be put into Nevada Conference.

A resolution permitting the Providence Conference to so divide certain portions of its territory that all of the State of Connecticut now held by it shall go into the New York East Conference, and certain other portions of Massachusetts to New England, was laid on the table.

Another resolution, authorizing a

STANDING COMMISSION ON CONFERENCE BOUNDARIES,

to act during the interim of General Conference, was adopted. The report itself was adopted.

Trustees were appointed for John street Methodist Episcopal church; a publishing committee for the Pittsburg Advocate was chosen; the California Branch Book Concern was changed to a book Depository. The Committee on Episcopacy reported Bishop Morris on the non effective list; preachers on trial were given the standing of travelling ministers, so as to make them amenable to Annual rather than to Quarterly Conferences while on trial.

The Fraternal delegates were appointed:—Drs. McAuley and Hibbard, to the British and Irish Wesleyan Conferences, to the Canada Wesleyans, Drs. Raymond and George; to the Canada Methodist Episcopal Church, Drs. Hill and Eaton, to the German Evangelical Association of the United States, Revs. Rothweiler and Chalfant; to the Presbyterian Assembly, Drs. Nesbitt and Grow, to the Baptist Union, Drs. Foss and Stevenson, to the Methodist Protestants, Dr. Trimble and Mr. Kenney; to the Congregationalists, Drs. S. Allen, Watson and Tiffany, to the African Zion Methodist Episcopal Church, Drs. Matlack and Lynch. The Bishops were authorized to appoint the commissioners to the Church South and to all other bodies not herein provided for.

THE BISHOPS TO VOTE FOR LAY DELEGATES.

The bishops were allowed to vote in future for lay delegates and all members of the Church not in the travelling ministry are classified as laymen.

A report on common schools, which was adopted, pledges the Methodist Episcopal Church to resist by every means any attempt to exclude the Bible—the chart of our liberties and the guide of our Christian civilization—from the common schools.

Resolutions of thanks were given to the press and to various other persons and associations for favors received.

Miscellaneous reports were read and adopted. The roll was called to ascertain who were present and whether a quorum or not. Present, 309—207 ministers.

Dr. Watson, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, was introduced.

CLOSING RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Bishop JANES said a few parting words. The action of the Conference had been both conservative and progressive, and would tend to the good and prosperity of the Church. The harmony and unity of action of the Conference the bishops consider as remarkable, and their stay here for so long a time as worthy of the commendation of the whole Church. The older superintendents have taken to their hearts the new bishops, and thank God and the delegates for giving them such assistance. And the Bishop believed that the future of the Church would be as the past and much more abundant. He prayed God's blessing upon the delegates on their return home, and on their respective charges, families and friends.

The closing exercises were then conducted by Bishop Simpson reading a portion of Scripture, the hymn, "Blest be the Tie that Binds Our Hearts," &c., was sung, prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Curry, the "Doxology" was sung and the benediction pronounced, after which the Methodist General Conference adjourned sine die.

THE ALLEGED DISHONEST BROKER.

Partial Examination of the Case Against Edward R. McIlvain.

Examination in the case of Edward R. McIlvain, of the firm of E. T. Selsmer & Co., No. 11 Broad street, who is charged with having, on the 20th day of last month, obtained on a worthless check stocks of the Lake Shore Railroad Company of the value of $9,580, from the firm of Geiston & Bussing, 38 Wall street, was commenced yesterday morning at the Tombs Police Court by Judge Hogan. From the evidence adduced it appears that Geiston & Bussing received an order from a Mr. Patterson, a broker, for 100 shares of the stock above mentioned, with instructions to turn the same over to E. T. Selsmer & Co., who would pay for them. The stock was sent to the office of the last-mentioned firm, where it was received and a check drawn on the National Bank of the Republic for the amount required, and signed by E. T. Selsmer & Co. and endorsed by Mr. McIlvain, given for the same. On presenting the check the bank refused to honor it, as Selsmer & Co.'s deposits would not meet it. McIlvain in the meantime disposed of the stock, and took the money which he realized for the same and deposited it to his own individual account in a Brooklyn bank.

This is the substance of the testimony of the prosecution, and the defence will be heard this morning. In the meantime the prisoner is remanded.

PROBABLE MURDER.

A Boy's Head Split Open With a Hatchet.

On Monday night a fight took place between James Rose, of 161 East Twenty-eighth street, and James Burke, of 214 East Thirty-second street. They are boys about sixteen years of age, and were playfellows before the present quarrel, the cause of which is not known. Rose, while the parties were quarrelling, picked up a small hatchet and threw it at Burke, striking him on the forehead and sinking the iron into his skull. Burke was at once removed to Bellevue Hospital, and the physicians in attendance there are now doing everything in their power to save his life. A certificate sent by Dr. Mitchell yesterday to Justice Coulter, before whom Rose was taken by Officer Callaghan, of the Twenty-first precinct, says that Burke is in a most critical condition, and it will be several days before a definite opinion can be given as to whether the wound will prove fatal or not. The young culprit was committed to await the result of his victim's injuries.

THE TRINITARIAN QUAKER CONFERENCE.

Fifth Day's Proceedings—Revising the Church Discipline—The Expenses of Itinerant Ministers—The Condition of the Church—Money for the Indians—Changing the Place of Convention—The Feast of the Righteous.

The Conference of the "orthodox" Friends gathered at the usual hour yesterday morning in separate sessions, and the attendance was unusually large.

MORNING SESSION.

The meek minded men—who, by the way, belie their poetical sobriquet of "the lords of creation"—sat in the hall in the basement of the church, while the women convened in the main oratory up stairs. In the assembly of the former some mild argument took place early in the session upon the subject of the proposed which had been recommended in the minutes of the the Representative Committee. One of the most radical of these changes is one which authorizes ministers to draw on the subordinate Conferences to which they belong for the expenses of journeys made by them in preaching the Gospel. The proviso is made, however, that they must go forth with the full concurrence of the Conference, otherwise they will not be considered as fully ordained to preach abroad, and so can not have access to the Church's pocket. Should the monthly conferences to which they belong be unable to furnish them with the necessary funds they are to appeal from them to the quarterly conferences, and if this resort fail, to the Yearly Meeting. The clause also provides that, if there be such necessity, their families shall be cared for in their absence.

This sweeping change is a wide departure from the primitive custom of the Society of Friends, and one which separates this branch farther than ever from the one styled the Hicksite. All from Fox to Elias Hicks were obliged to spend their own substance in the prosecution of their missions in the ministry, and the care of their families was left only to the conscientious promptings of the other members of the congregations. This sort of injustice made all of the most prominent and able men of the Church very poor in earthly goods, and made the performance of what they conceived to be their duty like the wearing of "a crown of thorns." The young generation which now has sway, in this, as in other things seems bent upon making the pathway to "the reward of the righteous" broader and easier than it was for their ancestors.

After a deal of discussion the subject was referred to a special committee of forty men and women for consideration.

Next came a proposition to revise all of the disciplinary queries which also occasioned much debate, and it was finally given into the charge of the same committee.

THE CONFERENCE OF 1873.

The proposition that when the Conference adjourn it ad ou n to meet at Rochester in 1873 was then received and approved.

REVIVALS.

The "general meetings" which were held during the past year throughout the country were next discussed, and it was finally ordered by the Conference that they be continued and the proper provision be made.

MONEY FOR THE RED MEN.

The Conference has also, since the adoption of the report of the Indian Committee, ordered the appropriation of $2,000 as its quota to the general fund of the Yearly Meetings for the education and civilization of the tribes on the Western reservations.

The Conference adjourned its morning session at about one o'clock and all of its members then partook of bodily sustenance in the refectory. One curious fact is that, despite the weightiness of the question under consideration, the ministers and elders seldom permit spiritual affairs to dull the warnings of appetite, and they all seem to appreciate good beefsteak and mutton chops as well as if they were dressed in a more worldly garb and did not affect the old Saxon style of speech. This is "a sight for gods and men." Ranged along the whitely spread tables sit the matrons and patriarchs in opposite rows, and the young men and maidens, not without some sly flirtation, perform the office of servitors, carrying boiling cups of tea hither and thither, which frequently, we regret to remark, in the bestowal of bright glances and blushing smiles, they spill all over their dainty attire, or over that of some staid and decorous personages, whose seriousness is thus scandalized. White arms are unsuspiciously displayed, and we will not undertake to say that some hearts even of old and white haired elders are not partly broken.

Afternoon Session.

The afternoon hour was consumed in the consideration of the State of the Church. Reports were received from all the subordinate conferences, and from them it appeared that the progress of the denomination was quite considerable in numbers and zeal.

The women approved the proposed adjournment of the Conference to Rochester, and also the appointment of the committee on the revision of the discipline, half of which was selected from their delegates. It held a secret session in the afternoon and is expected to report on Wednesday or Thursday. On the latter day the Conference will probably close its business. To-morrow, at half past ten o'clock, there are to be public services, at which there will undoubtedly be some impressive preaching.

BROOKLYN AFFAIRS.

The Brooklyn Board of Estimate.

The Board of Estimate will meet on Thursday next and receive the estimates from the heads of the different departments of the amount required by them for the ensuing year. The estimated expenses of the Police Department for 1873 is $670,850, an increase of $158,060.

A Brooklyn Jewelry Store Broken Into.

The jewelry store of John D. Chase & Son, 392 Fulton street, was entered by burglars yesterday morning. They forced open a back window and then proceeded to blow open the safe with powder. The noise of the explosion, however, attracted the attention of Officer Chambers, of the First precinct, and the thieves, finding they were discovered, fled, leaving behind them a can of powder, crowbar, several chisels and a dark lantern.

How Brooklyn Convicts Escape Justice.

For a long time past it was a matter of "town talk" in Brooklyn that prisoners who were sentenced to imprisonment by Justices in the lower Courts on one day were seen strolling through the public streets or visiting their usual haunts on the following day, and the inference drawn was that the committing magistrate was blamable. The matter, however, was fully ventilated yesterday forenoon in Justice Elliott's Court, Williamsburg. The driver of the prison van, or "Black Maria," John Connolly, was charged with the offence of allowing prisoners to escape while taking them to prison for a consideration. The complainant in the case was H. C. Conrady, a keeper in the county jail. Connolly pleaded not guilty to the grave charge preferred against him and asked for an immediate examination. This being granted, it was clearly proven that on the 28th of May John Wittenauf, a prisoner in his charge, paid him $8 50 for his release while on the way to prison. Justice Elliott thereupon committed Connolly to the county jail to await the action of the Grand Jury, and he was sent down there in the same vehicle in which he had so often conveyed other unfortunates to Court and prison.

Police—Appointments of Captains and Sergeants.

The Brooklyn Police Commissioners met yesterday at the Police Headquarters, corner of Court and Livingston streets, Brooklyn, and made the following appointments:—First precinct, Captain Smith; Second precinct, Captain McConnell; Third precinct, Captain Ferry; Fourth precinct, Captain Waddy; Fifth precinct, Captain Woglom; Sixth precinct, Captain Mullen; Seventh precinct, no appointment; Eighth precinct, Captain MacKellar; Ninth precinct, Captain McLaughlin, Tenth precinct, no appointment.

The Police Surgeons are Drs. Kissam and Brady.

The sergeants appointed are as follows:—Second precinct—Kane, Dunn and Croft. Third precinct—Dobbins, Matterson, Kellett and Quick. Third sub-precinct—Riley, Kenney and Porter. Fourth precinct—Campbell, O'Brien and Story. Fifth precinct—Calahan, Corr, Brennan and Bunce. Sixth precinct—Adrian, Keiser and McNamara. Seventh precinct—Fielding, Clancy, Boodly and DeBevoise. Eighth precinct—Meagher, Delmar, Kelley and Lord. Ninth precinct—Smith, Hambler, Latty and Miller. Ninth sub-precinct—Leavy, Worth and Wilmarth. Tenth precinct—Lamb, Sheridan and Weeks. Headquarters—Sergeants Rogers and Van Wagner.

A resolution was adopted by the Board complimenting Captain Ferry, of the Third precinct, for his efficiency in arresting a gang of thieves and recovering a large amount of stolen property. The resolution was ordered to be sent to all the captains, with the request that they act with similar vigilance.

WALL STREET, TUESDAY, June 4—6 P. M.

On 'Change to-day wheat was inclined to weakness and flour was heavy and lower.

THE ADVANCE IN COTTON

was the feature of commercial circles, the market rising to 26⅛c. (basis of low middling). Cotton is now just about twice the lowest price it reached in the great depression of March, 1871, when the quotation declined to 13⅞c. (basis of low middling), and is higher than it has been at any time since the "cotton break" of the fall of 1869, following the culmination of the gold "corner" of the same year.

MONEY UNSETTLED.

The effort at a disturbance of the money market was repeated this afternoon, but with renewed failure, so far as it aimed at advancing the rates and keeping them so. It was successful to the extent of making a good many of the more timid brokers pay 6 and a few of them as much as 7 per cent. At the close the market settled back to a quiet condition, and was quoted finally 4 a 5 per cent on governments and 5 a 6 per cent on stocks. Prime mercantile paper is current at 7 per cent discount.

Foreign exchange was steady on the basis of 109¾ a 109⅞ for prime bankers' sixty-day sterling and 110⅜ a 110⅝ for sight bills.

GOVERNMENTS STRONG.

The government list was strong throughout the day, the investment and speculative interest being more discernible and prices in some instances a fraction higher. Thus the 67's sold pretty freely at 118. The following were the closing prices:—United States currency sixes, 114⅞ a 115; do. do., 1881, registered, 114⅞ a 115; do. do., coupon, 120⅝ a 120⅞; do. five-twenties, registered, May and November, 114⅞ a 115; do. do., 1862, do., 114⅞ a 115; do. do., 1864, do. do., 114⅞ a 115; do. do., 1865, do. do., 115⅛ a 115⅜; do. do., 1867, registered, January and July, 113⅞ a 113⅞; do. do., 1865, coupon, do., 117⅛ a 117⅛; do. do., 1867, do. do., 117⅞ a 118; do. do., 1868, do. do., 117⅞ a 117⅞; do. ten-forties, registered, 111⅞ a 111⅞; do. do., coupon, 112⅛ a 112⅛; do. fives of 1881, registered, 113⅛ a 113⅛; do. do., coupon, 113⅛ a 113⅛.

GOLD 114⅛ A 114¼.

Gold was steady in so far as the extremes of the day's fluctuation were the same as those of Monday, but firmer in the respect that the closing quotation of to-day was the higher of these extremes and the highest of the season—viz.: 114⅛. The specie shipment for to-day was $300,000, although previous calculation had estimated the amount to go out as ranging from $250,000 to $700,000. The market led off heavy on account of this fact, and a concurrent plentiness of cash gold in the early business for the Clearing House developed later in the advancement of the carrying rate to 7 per cent. This increased difficulty in managing the pool gold was a reflection in great measure of the tenor of the money market, although many believed it to be a device to encourage the speculators for a decline—a view not unlikely when the subsequent firmness of the gold premium is considered. London prices had no fresh influence upon the market, for everything was steady on the other side; but the unfriendly discussion in Parliament last night of the Supplemental Treaty tended to help the stronger feeling, especially as, late in the afternoon, a Washington despatch announced, on the authority of Secretary Boutwell, that the Washington government was without any news in the way of overtures from the London Cabinet. The Sub-Treasury paid out $583,000 on account of redeemed five-twenties and $250,000 on account of interest. It is, doubtless, this steady outflow of coin from the Treasury that retards the operations of the gold clique and compels them to defer pushing the fighting until the diminution of the stream to proportions not likely to help their antagonists when the scramble for cash gold takes place. For this reason and the further one that the July interest is likely to begin coming on the market by the 25th of June, the impression exists that the next few weeks must witness a lively movement in gold, probably in the loan market thereof, because within that period the clique must do or be undone. The fluctuations of the day are shown in the table:—

10 A. M.	114⅛	1 P. M.	114⅛
10:15 A. M.	114⅛	2 P. M.	114⅛
11 A. M.	114⅛	3 P. M.	114⅛
12 M.	114⅛	4 P. M.	114⅛ a 114¼

In the gold loan market the rates ranged from 2 to 7 per cent for carrying. The operations of the Gold Exchange Bank were as follows:—

Gold cleared	$48,403,000
Gold balances	1,291,882
Currency balances	1,599,916

The engagements of specie for the Wednesday steamers is estimated at $1,500,000 to $1,700,000.

The aggregate amount of exports (exclusive of specie) from the port of New York for the week ending June 4, 1872, was $3,831,742.

SOUTHERN SECURITIES HEAVY.

The Southern State bonds were dull with a heavy tone, and the Tennessees were lower to the extent of fully one half per cent. A movement is on foot to revive the litigation in the Courts of Virginia, having for its object the compulsory reception of the consolidated coupons in payment of taxes. Advices from Columbia assert the prompt collection of taxes in that State, preliminary to the resumption of interest payments on the bonds. The printed list of sales below will show transactions in some of the new issues of South Carolina bonds, legalized by the late Legislature, among them the 7 per cents of 1888, which sold at 33⅛. The North Carolinas were firmer, and after sales at 30¼ were not offered at less than 31½. The following were the closing prices:—Tennessee, ex coupon, 72 a 72½; do., new, 72 a 72½; Virginia, ex coupon, 44 a 50; do., registered stock, old, 38 a 45; do., sixes, consolidated bonds, 54½ a 55; do. sixes, deferred scrip, 16 a 17½; Georgia sixes, 74 a 80; do. sevens, 88 a 90; North Carolina, ex coupon, 30¼ a 31½; do., funding, 1866, 24 a 26; do. do., 1868, 21 a 22; do., new, 20 a 21; do., special tax, 14½ a 15½; Missouri sixes, 96⅛ a 97; do., Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad, 93 a 94; Louisiana sixes, 60 a 65; do., new, 55 a 60; do. levee sixes, 63 a 67; do. do. eights, 79 a 82; do. do. eights, 1875, 83 a 87; do. Penitentiary sevens, 60 a 70; do. railroad eights, 70 a 80; Alabama fives, 60 a 65; do. eights, 88 a 92; do. eights, Montgomery and Eufaula Railroad, 85 a 90; South Carolina sixes, 52 a 55; do., new, January and July, 34⅛ a 34⅜; do. do., April and October, 31⅛ a 32; Arkansas sixes, funded, 56 a 60.

STOCKS DULL, HEAVY AND LOWER.

The stock market lost its strength under the wider canvass of the situation of the Supplemental Treaty, and became dull and spiritless after an hour or so of moderate steadiness, if not firmness, in the early forenoon, and thenceforward drooped to lower prices, the decline ranging variously from ⅛ to 1¼ per cent. (Yesterday the printer, whose views of the market are not always orthodox, insisted on limiting the day's fluctuation to ⅛ per cent, although the money writer had given it as his experience that the variation was 1½ per cent. These emendations by the typo will occur in the best regulated paper.) On Monday the ratification of the treaty was accomplished by Wall street, and our news columns, in reporting side by side the sentiment in Wall street and the facts in London, offered the public a striking contrast between opinion and reality. To-day the total failure of the treaty was a foregone conclusion, and stocks reflected the less enthusiastic feeling of the street, where, despite a growing indifference as to the result of the negotiations, a sort of impression existed that the whole thing would yet be amicably and satisfactorily adjusted. We may also look for the cause of the weakness in the absence of many of the leading spirits of the market, who have gone to attend important stockholder's meetings, the Rock Island, C. C. and I. C., Canton, and New York Central annual elections, being held to-morrow, to be followed by those of Northwestern and St. Paul on Thursday and Saturday respectively. Canton, in anticipation of the election of Daniel Drew to the Presidency at the meeting in Baltimore to-morrow, jumped to 97⅛, being an exceptional feature in respect of strength, its example being emulated by Harlem, which recovered to 121⅛.

TUESDAY, June 4—6 P. M.

ASHES.—Receipts since our last, 56 packages. The market still remained quiet and unchanged. Small sales of pots were made at $7 75 a $8 25, but pearls continued nominal.

BUILDING MATERIALS.—Bricks are arriving quite freely, but the demand has been fair, and no stock accumulated. Prices remained about the same. We quote cargoes:—Pale, $6 a $6 50; Jersey, $6 a $8, North River, $8 50 a $10; Philadelphia front, from yard, $40 a $45. Lime, stock light, demand only moderate, and prices unchanged; quoted at $1 50 for common and $2 for lump. Cement remained dull and nearly nominal at $1 60 per bbl. for Rosendale. Laths were dull, parties generally apart in regard to prices, bids of $2 50 were made, but the asking price was $2 75 for Eastern spruce.

CANDLES.—Market unchanged and quiet. We quote:—Sperm, 32c.; patent do., 43c.; stearine, 23c. a 29c.; paraffine, 26c. a 27c.; adamantine, 16c. a 18½c., according to weight.

COFFEE.—The transactions to-day have been moderate and the market remained firm. We learn of sales of 4,122 bags Santos, ex Countess Dudley; 3,800 bags do., ex Tallec, and 1,000 bags Rio, ex North America, all on private terms. The current quotations are:—Ordinary cargoes, 15c. a 15½c.; fair do., 16½c. a 17c.; good do., 17½c. a 18c.; prime do., 18⅝c. a 18⅞c., gold, in bond, 60 a 90 days, Maracaibo, 16c. a 17⅛c.; Laguayra, 17c. a 18c.; St. Domingo, in bond, 13c. a 13½c.; Java, 18½c. a 19½c., gold, in bond.

COTTON, on the spot, was quiet, but firm at yesterday's quotations. Future deliveries continued in brisk demand, the remote months ruling higher. The sales sum up as follows:—

—Wheat was quiet at about $1 66 a $1 68 for Chicago spring in store and afloat, $1 70 a $1 72 for Milwaukee, $1 90 a $2 for red winter, and $2 a $2 05 for amber. The sales were about 60,000 bushels, at $1 68 a $1 72 for No. 2 Chicago and Milwaukee afloat, $1 90 a $2 for amber State to choice amber Michigan, and $2 a $2 12 for white wheat. Corn was decidedly lower for damp, and at the close unsettled. The sales were fair, aggregating about 150,000 bushels, at 62c. a 64c. for "steamer," 65c. for good do., 70c. a 72c. for dry "sail," and 72c. a 73c. for yellow; other kinds remained nominal. Oats were dull and lower. The sales were about 50,000 bushels, at 53c. for Western afloat, 54c. a 55c. for mixed afloat, 55½c. a 56c. for white on the track, 55c. for State mixed afloat, and 56c. for white in store. Rye was dull and nominal at about 93c. a 95c. Sales yesterday 8,000 bushels Western at 94c. in store. Barley was dull and entirely nominal.

FREIGHTS.—Berth room continued in fair request, and rates steady, excepting on grain, for which higher figures were paid. Vessels for charter were also in good demand, but chiefly for suitable vessels for grain. Rates throughout remained about steady. The engagements were:—To Liverpool, by steam, 22,500 bushels grain at 8c. a 8⅜c.; 1,000 boxes cheese, 30s.; 100 boxes bacon, 25s.; 650 bbls. rosin, 2s. 6d., and by sail, 22,500 bushels wheat, 6d.; 200 bbls. rosin on private terms. To London, by sail, 7,000 bushels corn at 6⅜d., 300 bbls. rosin on private terms. To Rotterdam, 7,500 bushels rye at 4d. per 56 lbs. The charters comprise:—A Dutch brig, 157 tons to a direct Continental port, full cargo corn, at 8d. per 56 lbs.; a Norwegian bark, 2,300 quarters grain, to Cork for orders, 5s. 9d., or if direct, 5s. 6d.; a Swedish bark, 3,000 quarters grain, same voyage, 5s. 6d., or if direct, 5s. 3d.; a Swedish ship, hence to Havre, 4,500 bbls. crude petroleum, on private terms; a British bark, 517 tons, from Bathurst to Liverpool, deals, 80s.; an American ship, 1,213 tons, hence to West Coast South America, general cargo, lump sum; a brig 125 tons, to St. Domingo and back, $1,600, port charges paid.

GUNNIES.—Trade in this market continued very light. There was some call for cloth for the Southern trade, but the bids, as a general thing, were below the views of holders, and but comparatively little was accomplished. The current quotations were:—Native cloth, 9c. a 9½c. gold, in bond, and 14½c. a 15c., currency. Domestic cloth, 16c. a 16½c. for prompt delivery; 17c. for June; and 17½c. for July, August or September. Bags quoted at 14½c. a 15½c. for light to heavy.

HEMP AND JUTE.—Hemp was dull and nominal. Manila quoted at 12c., gold. Jute was also nominal, within the range of 6⅛c. a 6⅞c., gold. Jute butts sold moderately, at 3⅛c. a 3⅜c., currency.

HAY AND STRAW.—Prices are rather in buyers' favor, owing to free arrivals. Shippers are holding off in anticipation of a further decline. We quote.—Shipping hay, $1 50 a $4 55; retail qualities, $1 60 a $1 55; clover, $1 10 a $1 15; salt, 95c. a $1; long rye straw, $1 15 a $1 25; short do., $1 a $1 05; oat, 95c. a $1 05, and wheat, 60c. a 75c.

HOPS.—Prime qualities for brewing continued in fair request, but of this quality there is little offering; in fact they are very scarce. Prices throughout remained firm and unchanged.

LEATHER.—For the week under review hemlock sole has been in moderate demand, the inquiry being principally from manufacturers. Prices on the better grades remained firm, while that of inferior tended in buyers' favor. The receipts were small and stock pretty well assorted. Oak continued in good demand at full prices. The current quotations were:—Hemlock—Buenos Ayres, heavy, 28c. a 29c. per lb; do., middle, 28c. a 29c.; do., light, 27½c. a 28c.; California, heavy, 27c. a 28c.; do., middle, 27c. a 27⅞c.; do., light, 27c. a 27½c.; Orinoco, &c., heavy, 26c. a 26½c.; do., middle, 26⅛c. a 27c.; do., light, 25⅞c. a 26c.; good damaged, all kinds and weights, 22½c. a 25c.; poor damaged, all kinds and weights, 18c. a 20c.; in the rough, 30c. a 33c. Oak—Slaughter, heavy, 33c. a 36c.; do., middle, 34c. a 38c.; do., light, 37c. a 40c.; cropped, heavy, 37c. a 38c.; do., middle, 38c. a 41c.; do., light, 37c. a 42c.; in the rough, heavy, 31c. a 33c.; middle, 31c. a 35c.; light, 32c. a 35c.; bellies, 17c. a 19c.

METALS.—There has been a moderate demand for copper since our last, with prices tending slightly in buyer's favor. The sales aggregate about 600,000 lbs. lake at 33c. a 33⅛c. cash; and 33c. a 33⅛c. for forward delivery. Tin remained quiet but firm. We learn of sales of 300 boxes charcoal tin plate, on private terms and 300 boxes charcoal terms at $11 75, gold. Spelter remained very quiet. Silesian quoted at 7c., gold. Other metals were very quiet and without change in prices.

MOLASSES.—The market remained quiet for all kinds, but no change in prices was perceptible. There were small sales of domestic, aggregating about 50 bbls., at from 54c. a 70c. We quote:—

	Old Crop.	New Crop.
Cuba—Centrifugal and mixed	19c. a 20c.	— a —
Clayed	22c. a 23c.	32c. a 34c.
Muscovado, refining	29c. a 33c.	33c. a 35c.

English Islands	— a —	30c. a 40c.
New Orleans	30c. a 45c.	40c. a 80c.

NAVAL STORES.—The market for spirits turpentine was less active, still there was a moderate business, but prices were a shade easier. The sales were 60 bbls. at 56⅛c., 50 bbls. at 56c. and 50 bbls. at 55c., the market closing at about 56c. a 56⅛c. Rosin remained quiet but steady. We have only to note sales of 500 bbls. good strained at $3 75. Strained quoted at $3 65 a $3 70. Tar continued dull, and in absence of transactions, entirely nominal at $3 50 a $4 for all kinds.

OILS.—There has been a quiet market for all kinds of oils since our last, and prices have shown no material change. We quote:—Linseed, 90c. a 91c. in casks and 94c. a 92c. in bbls; crude whale, 72c.; natural winter do., 78c.; crude sperm, $1 50; natural winter do., $1 73 a $1 75; menhaden, 48c. a 50c. for choice light; crude cotton seed, 52c. a 54c.

PETROLEUM.—The market for refined continued quiet, although there was more inquiry noticeable on 'Change, but the firmness of holders checked business; quoted at 23⅛c. a 24c. for spot or month. We hear of sales of 500 bbls. at 23⅞c., and 2,000 bbls late last evening at 23⅞c. Crude, in bulk, was quiet and steady at 13⅛c. a 13⅜c. for Western or city gauge. Naphtha remained entirely nominal at 18c., in shipping order. Case oil quoted steady at 28⅛c. a 29⅛c., but nominal at these figures. At the creek the market was a shade firmer on the upper and easier on the lower road; quoted at $4 05 on the upper and $4 07½ on the lower road. The Philadelphia market was quiet and steady. We hear of sales of 1,800 bbls. standard white for prompt delivery at 23⅞c.; quoted for balance of month at 23⅞c.

PROVISIONS.—Receipts—Pork, 491 bbls.; cut meats, 582 packages; lard, 1,660 bbls. and tierces and 50 kegs. The market for mess pork was quiet and unchanged. We heard of no round lots changing hands; quoted at $13 25 for June, $13 35 for July and $13 50 for August. In jobbing lots about 400 bbls sold at $13 25 for mess, $15 75 for sheer clear and $12 75 a $13 for prime mess. Bacon continued quiet and unchanged; quoted at 7⅞c. for city long clear, 8⅛c. a 8⅜c. for short do., 8c. for Stretford and 8c. for long rib. Dressed hogs were in good demand, but at lower prices. Sales at 5⅛c. a 5⅝c. for heavy to pigs. Beef continued quiet and unchanged. Sales in lots were made, aggregating 60 bbls., at from $9 a $11 for mess, $10 a $12 for extra mess, $15 a $18 for prime mess tierces, and $16 a $28 for India mess tierces. Beef hams were unchanged in price and quiet; quoted at $24 a $28. Cut meats—The demand was principally for pickled meats, and sales were made only in a jobbing way from stores. We quote:—Smoked shoulders, 6c. a 6⅛c.; do. hams, 10c. a 12c.; pickled hams, 9c. a 10⅛c.; do. shoulders, 5⅛c. a 5⅜c.; do. bellies, 7c. a 8c.; dry salted shoulders, 5⅛c. a 5⅜c. Lard—The market for Western remained about steady at 9⅛c. for June. There was, however, very little disposition to do business, and nothing of importance transpired.

RICE.—The market to-day has shown a moderate degree of animation and prices remained steady. The sales have been:—30 tierces Carolina at 9 a 9⅛c., 300 bags Rangoon at 6⅞ a 7⅛c., and 125 bags Patna at 7½ a 7⅞.

SUGAR.—The market for raw continued strong, but the transactions have been light. We have only to report sales of 400 hhds of molasses sugar at 7⅞c., 110 hhds Porto Rico at 9⅛c., and 191 boxes clayed at 9⅛c. Refined remained steady under a moderate demand; quoted at 11⅞c. for A, and 12⅛c. a 12⅜c. for hards. We quote:—Cuba—Interior to common refining, 7⅞c. a 8⅛c.; fair to good fair refining, 8⅜c. a 8⅞c.; good to prime, 9c. a 9⅛c.; fair to good grocery, 9⅛c. a 9⅜c.; prime to choice grocery, 9⅛c. a 9⅞c.; centrifugal, hhds. and boxes, 9⅛c. a 10⅛c.; molasses, hhds. and boxes, 7⅛c. a 8⅜c., melado, 4⅛c. a 6⅞c. MYSTERIOUS CASE OF SUICIDE.

A Beautiful Lady Cuts Her Throat—Domestic Trouble the Supposed Cause.

A sad case of suicide occurred at the residence of Mr. William Keteltas, 141 East Sixtieth street, on Monday evening. On Saturday last Mrs. Jane Farley, a lady twenty-nine years of age, called to make a visit upon the family, with whom she had long been on friendly, if not intimate terms, and a parlor on the third floor was set apart for her use.

Mrs. Farley, although of a cheerful and happy disposition, seemed dejected and downcast most of the time, but entered no serious complaint to the family, who, however, suspected something wrong. Mrs. Farley was questioned by the family in regard to her health and other matters, with the view of learning the cause of her sorrow, but without eliciting any satisfactory information. At the supper table on Monday evening Mrs. Farley was unusually despondent, and excusing herself, hastily left the table without finishing her tea, and proceeded to her room, where an hour or two later Mrs. Keteltas was shocked to find her guest lying on the floor, with a terrible gash in her throat, from which the blood was flowing copiously. There was also blood on the marble mantel and other portions of the room, showing conclusively that after inflicting the violence Mrs. Farley had ran around the room, probably in a state of despair.

As there was blood on the handle of the bell communicating with the basement it is presumed she was in the act of ringing it when she fell to the floor from exhaustion caused by the great loss of blood.

Medical aid was instantly summoned, but without avail, as death ensued soon afterwards. Captain Gunner, of the Nineteenth precinct, subsequently informed Deputy Coroner Cushman, who, on making an examination, found that the carotid artery and windpipe had been severed. The weapon used was a common pearl-handled pocket knife.

Yesterday afternoon Coroner Schirmer held an inquest over the remains of Mrs. Farley, who was a most beautiful woman. Mary C. Green, living in the house, testified that she had been acquainted with deceased ten or twelve years: she heard Mrs. Farley say that she was in great trouble, but would not explain the nature of her trouble.

Mrs. Farley told Mr. Keteltas that she had domestic trouble, some trouble with her husband, but made no further explanations. Deceased had been living with her husband in a boarding house in Fourth avenue, near Twentieth street. The testimony showed that deceased evidently had not been in her right mind for at least two or three days, and the jury accordingly found that she took her life while laboring under temporary aberration of mind.

MORE POISONING IN BROOKLYN.

Another Woman Arrested on Suspicion of Poisoning Her Husband—The Alleged Murder of Richard Van Thone.

At a late hour on Monday night Captain Ferry arrested Mrs. Van Thone, at her residence, No. 25 Union street, on suspicion of being concerned, with William Verrellman, in causing the death of her husband, Richard Van Thone, who kept a lager beer saloon at the above place. Mrs. Van Thone does not possess an enviable reputation among her neighbors, and is credited with having proved false to her marriage vows. Verrellman, it is said, was her paramour. Van Thone suspected that all was not as it should be, and when Verellman entered his saloon on Saturday night last he accused him with being too intimate with his wife. Sharp words led to blows, and Van Thone was knocked down and beaten until he was almost insensible. He was removed to his bed, and at four o'clock on Sunday morning he died. Mrs. Van Thone, when asked as to the cause of his death, replied that he had committed suicide by taking Paris green. Verrilman had carried some Paris green about him for some time, and this seemed to confirm a suspicion that the poison had been given to him. The deceased had his life insured for $500. Two young men, named William Rayner and William Rangon, who, as alleged, heard Verrilman say that he would finish the old man, have been arrested and held as witnesses. An inquest will be held to-day by Coroner Whitehill.

ANOTHER BROOKLYN HOMICIDE.

A Man Fatally Stabbed at a Picnic—Arrest of the Assailant.

A party of festive young men and girls went out to Lefferts Park, on Gates avenue, to participate in enjoyments under the auspices of the M. E. A. Association. Several of the young men drank freely at adjacent liquor saloons and last evening were under the influence of liquor. While on the way home four of the young men, named John Cline, Thomas Shandley, John Rabl and —— Brammenger, with two of the young ladies, stopped at the liquor store of Mr. Simpkins, at the corner of Lafayette and Tompkins avenues. The girls remained outside while the young men went in. After imbibing again they all started down the street together. Shandley got possession of a parasol belonging to Miss Gilbert and began to tease her with it. John Cline interfered and a fight ensued. Shandley, thinking that Cline was getting the best of him, drew his knife and stabbed him in the left side. He then drew it out and stabbed him in the left shoulder. Shandley made his escape. He was arrested at the house of Mrs. Mullen, in Pearl street, near Concord, yesterday. Cline was removed to the hospital, where his wounds were pronounced of a fatal character.

The body of an unknown woman, about thirty years of age, was yesterday found floating in the dock foot of Stanton street, East River, and was sent to the Morgue for investigation before Coroner Herrman.

THE CONSPIRACY CASE.

No Further Developments as Yet—Admiral Nelson and His Son Abraham Admitted to Bail.

Up to a late hour last night there were no new developments in the burglary and conspiracy case against the firm of Phelps, Dodge & Co. The detectives, however, are still exerting every effort in their power to secure other implicated persons. Admiral Nelson—the particulars of whose arrest appeared in the HERALD of yesterday—was taken before Judge Dowling yesterday morning, at the Tombs, for examination. This, however, at the instance of his counsel, Mr. William F. Howe, he waived, and consequently the only business done was the taking of the affidavit of Mr. James, one of the firm which has been so shamefully wronged. This affidavit sets forth the facts of the burglary, and that in the safe of Nelson, at 295 Pearl street, were found blank drafts, bill heads and circulars, the property of Phelps, Dodge & Co.; also a written list prepared by the branch house in Liverpool, duplicates of letters and contracts; also two books containing copies of matters taken from the private books of the firm, and a private letter containing information of great value.

Mr. James further states in his affidavit that Admiral Nelson was found in possession of the establishment 295 Pearl street when the search was made, and is believed to be a partner of Abraham Nelson, his son. Judge Dowling fixed bail in the case at $5,000, which was promptly furnished by Mr. Giuseppe Sagliabue, after which the prisoner was allowed to go his way. During the forenoon Abraham Nelson was also admitted to bail in the same amount as that fixed for his father.

THE MEN AND THE HOURS.

Progress of the Great Labor Movement.

The Coach Blacksmiths, Steam Fitters, Organ Builders, Wood Workers, Tin and Slate Roofers, Planers and Moulders, Clothing Cutters and Shirt Cutters.

A little more enthusiasm was manifest among the movers in the eight-hour reform yesterday. New organizations have given it an impetus, and a few retiring crowned with success have cheered on the still struggling and almost despondent ones. The Eight-Hour League has shown the weakness of organization referred to in the HERALD some days since in a striking manner. The picture-frame makers, who constitute a branch of that League, have seceded, and many of them have returned to work under the old system. It seems they demanded from the financial managers of the central organization, when the latter were engaged in paying the strikers of their body on Saturday, an allowance of $20 per week for each man in their Union. The Finance Committee could not, with their limited organs of vision, perceive the justice of the claim, alleging that the sum asked for was greater than they, the frame makers, could earn when working at their trade.

The housesmiths are jubilant over the capitulation of the firm of Jackson Brothers, employing several hundred men. They now claim that only one of the larger shops refuses to grant their demand. Fifteen hundred of them are reported as now working under the eight-hour rule.

The upholsterers have ceased to report the general mass of employers as having acceded to their terms, and now talk bitterly of many of them as having discharged the men of the Union. They claim to have written agreements from the firms alluded to, and these, they say, have been repudiated.

A despatch received from the cabinet makers of Philadelphia announce their determination to strike on Monday next.

The horseshoers have many of them returned to work, as only a few of the street car and stage companies by whom they were employed resist them.

More than one-third of the iron moulders, who number about twelve hundred, are working but eight hours, and it is generally believed that the system will be adopted by their employers voluntarily.

Among the trades reported as about to strike are all the wheelwrights, blacksmiths and workmen in the sewing machine factories.

The Women's Typographical Union is considering a movement for pressing the adoption of the new order of things, and will undoubtedly unite in demanding the reform.

Meeting of the Steam Fitters.

A meeting of the steam fitters was held last evening at Putnam Hall, Third avenue. The meeting was called for the purpose of organizing in order to co-operate with the Amalgamated Society of Machinists in the impending strike. Delegates were appointed for that purpose, and after an address from a member of the Machinists' the meeting separated.

The Shirt Cutters to Strike.

The majority of the shirt cutters of the city met last evening at 91 Walker street, and effected a temporary organization for the purpose of demanding eight hours a day. The chairman selected was Martin Brubaker; the secretaries, Messrs. Joseph C. Darcus and Adolph Wild; the treasurer, Edward Knickerbocker. About the total number of cutters in the city is one hundred and fifty; the number of shops, forty. Representatives from most of the shops were present, and these stated that no difficulty whatever would be experienced in getting the eight hours for a day's work. It was resolved to demand the eight hours on Monday next. The full number of men working in each shop are to act as a committee to announce the determination of the meeting to the bosses, and a committee of three was appointed to look after those shops that had no representative present last evening. A check for $50 was received from Meyer Finn, of Chambers street, to help the men in establishing the organization.

The Clothing Cutters.

The result of the clothing cutters' strike has been a great success. At the meeting held on Saturday night preliminary to the strike it was announced that more than three-fourths of the firms engaged in the clothing trade had acceded to the demands of the men, and in consequence only about 200 men left off work on Monday morning. On Monday evening all the firms had acceded, with the exception of one or two, which gave in yesterday, so that the strike may be pronounced over. The Union numbers more than one thousand men, the principal part of whom are Germans, and in the struggle they have stood to each other with the greatest harmony and union. The custom cutters have not struck, as it would be difficult to control that portion of the trade in the busy season.

Coach Blacksmiths.

The coach blacksmiths and finishers held their second meeting in a secret session at Germania Hall, Third avenue, last night. They claim a membership already of 500 and expect to double it by Saturday night. It is stated that there are 5,000 men working in this one branch of mechanics in this city. There was some discussion in regard to their action on the eight-hour question, but all definite action was postponed for the present. No members of the press were admitted, and the officers requested that their names might be withheld from the public.

Meeting of Tin and Slate Roofers.

A meeting of the tin and slate roofers was held last evening at 307 Third avenue for the purpose of finishing up the affairs connected with the strike, which has proved a complete success. The strike commenced on Monday on the part of all the men who were refused the eight hours; but on Monday evening all the bosses gave in, and all the men commenced to work at the reduced time. The organization numbers 1,400 men, but heretofore it has not been a permanent one. Measures were taken to make it so last night. A number of speeches were made by the members who have been most active in the strike, and the meeting broke up amid mutual congratulations.

The Planers and Sawyers.

The planers, moulders and sawyers held a meeting last evening at No. 458 Ninth avenue, and arranged things to suit their own ideas. They are determined to strike for eight hours, and their employers will probably concede to the terms the men propose.

The Workers in Wood.

The wood workers amalgamated themselves at Academy Hall last night. They arrived at certain conclusions, the sum of which seemed to be that if their employers refused to grant their demands they would refuse to work another day.

The Organ Builders.

The organ builders, to the number of sixty, assembled at Teutonia Hall last evening, for the purpose of organizing an Eight-hour league. Mr. Seaman was elected temporary chairman, Mr. P. Lord secretary and A. Hecker treasurer.

On motion it was agreed to adopt the name and style of the Church Organ Builders' Protective Union.

Mr. KEARNEY addressed the meeting, urging that the employers should be given an opportunity to complete their contracts before any decided issue should be made in the effort to establish the eight-hour system.

Mr. MORSE moved that the Union should strike at once, and Mr. SOHE moved to give the employers three months' notice.

Mr. CUMMINGS said the employers had three years' notice already, and moved as an amendment that they should join the strike of the mechanics of the city.

The motion was carried at this point to give the employers three months' notice. It was shortly after reconsidered, however, and a committee of five moved to visit the employers and confer with them urging the adoption of the short time rule. This was again changed to the choice of a committee of two from each shop to inform their respective employers of the organization and demands of the organ builders.

Mr. Eyerson was chosen permanent President and took the chair. At this moment a delegation from the cabinet makers that had been in the rain begging the privilege of making an address became tired and retired.

Two corresponding secretaries were chosen to establish communication with the organ builders outside of the city.

The following shops were represented:—Henry Erben's, Jardine & Son's, Odell's, Stuart's, May's and Labeau & Kemp's.

The Strike of the Williamsburg Carriage Painters.

Nearly all the trade societies of Williamsburg having succeeded in the eight-hour movement, the carriage painters took a similar stand on Monday morning, with bright hopes of an easy victory, but they came to the conclusion yesterday that they had been badly deceived by the false promises of many of their employers.

BEACON PARK.

First Day of the Spring Trotting Meeting.

Fine Attendance—Phil Sheridan the Winner of the 2:35 Purse.

BOSTON, June 4, 1872.

The first of the spring trotting meetings to be held in New England this season was begun at the Beacon Park this afternoon in the presence of quite a large number of spectators. The entries for the various purses comprise some well known horses, and among the gentlemen upon the quarter stretch were many from New York and more distant places. There was but one race on the card, that being for horses that never beat 2:35, and the greenbacks offered amounted to $800. The entries were Sawyer's chestnut gelding Royal Mike, Sargent's brown stallion Phil Sheridan, Bigley's chestnut mare Fanny, Cudney's bay gelding Allston, Brown's gray gelding Bristol Bill. Hayes' black gelding Black Prince, Beckler's bay gelding Charles Dickens, Brock's sorrel mare Josephine, and Goldsmith's bay stallion Abdallah. The last three did not start, a fact that made the transactions at the pool box lively, although Sheridan had shown fast time both here and in Potsdam, from which place he hails. Sheridan was the favorite, Bill second choice, the balance in the field.

First Heat.—On getting the word, Fanny went to the front and Black Prince to the rear—the latter breaking badly, and at once losing all chance to get even a place in the summary. At the quarter pole, Fanny had two lengths the best of it in the excellent time of 35½ seconds, but Bill was gradually drawing up to her; the pace was too weak for the mare and she was forced off her feet, Bill leading to the half in 1:15½, Sheridan taking second place, Allston and Mike two or three lengths in the rear. On the last quarter Sheridan was forced well up to Bill and the pace was too fast for the gray, who broke just inside the distance and did not become settled until he had crossed the score, beating Sheridan half a length, but the heat was given to the latter in 2:31½. Prince distanced.

Second Heat.—The odds were three and four to one on Sheridan, and the showing made by Bill gave him friends to take the odds. A very good start was made on the third trial, Fanny taking the lead as they went around the turn, Allston in the second place, Sheridan third, then Bill and Mike in the rear. Sheridan trotted well, and before the quarter was reached had his nose to Fanny's wheel, the time being thirty-six seconds. Up the straight side Sheridan continued to force the pace, and gradually got on even terms with the chestnut mare. The latter indulged in a slight break, but they passed the half with no daylight between them in 1:16. Bristol was third, a length away, and about that distance separated Allston and Mike. The race home between Sheridan and Fanny was an excellent one; but the mare was forced to a break, the stallion beating her half a length in 2:34½. Bill second, Mike third, Allston fourth.

Third Heat.—On getting the word Royal Mike went to the front at the first, followed by Bill, Fanny, Sheridan and Allston, in the order named. Mike led a length at the quarter pole, in thirty-six and a half seconds; Sheridan second, having passed the mare and Bristol Bill while making the turn. Before reaching the half Sheridan passed Mike, and had half a length the best of it at that point, in 1:15½. Entering the last half he shook the others off, and opened a length or two of daylight between them, the other three well together and Allston in the rear. The race home was well contested by Bill, Mike and Sheridan, the latter winning by an open length, in 2:35½. The following is a

EASTERN DUTCHESS ASSOCIATION.

Opening of the Spring Trotting Meeting—Wild Oats the Winner of the Four-Year-Old Race.

AMENIA, N. Y., June 4, 1872.

The Spring meeting of the Eastern Dutchess Association opened here to-day under the most favorable auspices. The track was in excellent condition and there was a fine show of horses and some good trotting in the morning. After dinner a heavy rain came on and prevented further trotting. Some of the best horses in the country are here. The races are to continue three days, and during that time special trains will be run on the Harlem and connecting road.

In the four-year-old race, for a purse of $300, Edwin Thorn's stallion Wild Oats won. Time, 3:06; 3:02; 2:58; 3:05. There was a high wind blowing.

AMERICAN JOCKEY CLUB.

The Races To-Day—Pool-Selling Last Night.

Should the weather prove favorable the racing to-day at Jerome Park will be attended with much success. There are five events on the card, the first being the Ladies' Stakes, for fillies three years old, one mile and five furlongs. For this are entered the stables of D. J. Crouse, J. W. Hunt Reynolds, A. Belmont, Grinstead & Chamberlain, Clark & Grinstead and Bush & Parks.

The second race, the Jockey Club Handicap Sweepstakes, two miles, will bring to the post Tom Boston, 110 lbs.; Wine Sap, 105 lbs.; Quintard, 104 lbs.; Alroy, 113 lbs.; Ortolan, 111 lbs.; Abdel Koree, 113 lbs., and Tubman, 108 lbs.

The third race, one mile and a quarter, is for a purse of $600. In this are M. H. Sanford's Jerseyman, $500, 104 lbs.; Hunter & Travers's Alarm, $1,500, 90 lbs.; R. N. Walden's Echo, $500, 101 lbs.; James Thompson's Nickajack, $500, 95 lbs.; Jos. Donahue's Lord Byron, $500, 93 lbs.; D. McDaniel's Eastern Star, $500, 95 lbs.; D. J. Crouse's Rounder, $500, 95 lbs., and J. F. Chamberlain's Impecunious, $1,500, 105 lbs.

The fourth race is a selling premium—one mile and three-quarters. This will bring to the post Flora McIvor, Gayo, Doctor, Midday, Wine Sap, chestnut colt by Asteroid, and Frank Swift.

The last event of the day will be the steeple chase, over the usual course. The starters will be McIntyre, Jim Tisdale and Mary Hennessey. Pools were sold on these events last night at the Jockey Club rooms, Twenty-seventh street and Madison avenue, with the following result:—

THE COLUMBIA YACHT CLUB.

The members of the Columbia Yacht Club held one of their regular monthly meetings last evening in the Club House, at the foot of Fifty-seventh street, North River. Commodore J. Nobles presided. Three new members were elected and reports from the standing committees read. The Regatta Committee reported that they had chartered the steamer Fort Lee to accompany the yachts round the course. The Fort Lee will leave Christopher street at nine A. M., Thirty-fourth street at half-past nine and Fifty-seventh street at ten A. M. The regatta will take place on Wednesday, June 12. The course is from a stakeboat off the Club House to a stakeboat off Fort Lee, thence to a stakeboat off the Coal Docks at Hoboken, and back to the Club House. Twice over the course, making in all a distance of twenty miles. In rounding the stakeboats will be left on the port side. The judges of the regatta will comprise Judge M. Connolly, Stephen S. Simonsan, John Masterson, Judge Coulter and Commodore Edward Morton of the New Jersey Yacht Club. A special meeting of the club will be held next Tuesday night to close the entries and make some final arrangements. The meeting adjourned at ten P. M.

DISASTER IN A ROCHESTER BREWERY.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 4, 1872.

This afternoon a section of a floor in Bevier's brewery, on Water street, gave way with several hundred bushels of grain and a mash tub containing several thousand gallons of hot liquor. Three men working in the grain were carried down with the wreck. Two men were at work on the floor beneath. All five of the men were fearfully scalded, and the injuries of three of them will probably prove fatal.

Marine Disasters.

STEAMSHIP TRIPOLI (Br), from Liverpool for Boston, which was wrecked upon the Irish coast, went to pieces on the 20th ult. Only a portion of the cargo was saved. It appears from the accounts by the latest English mail that at about 4 20 on the morning of May 17, the weather being somewhat hazy, the Tripoli drove heavily upon the Southwest Rock, near the Tuskar Lighthouse, the rock penetrating her midship compartment and admitting the water, which rapidly filled the engine room. The ship, which was going full speed at the time, was so firmly fixed on the rock that it was vain to attempt to get her off. The rock was of conical shape, and was situated in a very exposed position, where a high sea is almost constantly beating upon its sides.

SHIP ALASKA, at Boston 3d from Calcutta, brought into port the crew of the British bark Calabar, from Pernambuco for Queenstown, which vessel was abandoned in a sinking condition May 4, lat 9 18 S, the water being over the between decks.

SCHR NAOMIA, from Rondout for Westerly, RI, before reported in collision with brig Annie Collins, was towed into New Haven 2d inst, with side stove, fore and main rigging carried away, and mainmast gone.

SCHR SARAH WEEB, with a cargo of corn, put into Beaufort, NC, prior to May 31 leaking; cargo condemned.

SCHR MARY FATTEN, from Salem for Bangor, before reported in collision with steamer Star of the East, was towed into Gloucester June 1. She was being raised on the 3d, and her decks are nearly out of water. Her whole broadside forward of the foreigging is stove, and extensive repairs will be necessary.

SCHR DECATUR OAKES (of Newport), Berry, from Philadelphia for Somerset, put into Lewes, Del, about 29th ult, leaky.

Schr W D B, from Portland for New York, at Vineyard Haven 3d, reports that on the 2d inst, 20 miles SE of Boon Island, the mate, James Lee, of Cape Elizabeth, was knocked overboard by the foreboom and lost.

FISHING SCHR CHAS MCDONALD, from a mackerel cruise, put into New Bedford June 2, leaking 1250 strokes an hour.

BATAVIA, April 13—Bark Francis (NG) from Passarocang for Boston, grounded at Tjilatjap, south coast of Java. She will be towed to Batavia.

HAMBURG, May 21—The Minerva (Nor), Johnsen, hence for New York, put back to Cuxhaven May 20, and has been hauled into the harbor, making water, having been ashore near Heligoland.

LIVERPOOL, May 21—The Bucephalus, Thompson, which arrived here yesterday from Mobile, reports that during a heavy gale from WNW on the 29th April, in lat 46 N, lon 43 W, she fell in with the Sarah M, of Hull, which had lost all her starboard bulwarks and stanchions and had a windmill pump working very fast, and that next day she took off her crew. On the 5th May, in lat 46 N, lon 41 W, four of the crew of the Sarah M were transferred to the Hakon Jarl, Matthiesen.

WATERFORD, May 24—The Bessie Rogers, of Yarmouth, floated at 2:40 PM, and is now at anchor in the river, with no apparent damage.

Miscellaneous.

Purser L L Young, of the steamship Gen Barnes, from Savannah, has our thanks for favors.

The purser of the steamship Manhattan, from Charleston, has our thanks for favors.

As the ship Ben Nevis (Br), McPetrie, hence 2d inst for Glasgow, was proceeding down the lower bay, and when in the Swash Channel, Mr Ross, chief mate, was knocked overboard by the jibsheet; two life buoys were thrown to him, both of which he succeeded in grasping, and after remaining in the water several hours was picked up by the sloop Louisa Wallace, Captain Parker, in a very exhausted state, and brought to this city. The ship in the meantime anchored on the bar, and Mr Ross, after recovering his strength, went down to the ship yesterday and will proceed in her.

HALIFAX, NS, June 4—The steamer Austrian, which arrived at this port last night from Quebec, and sailed to day for Liverpool, reports passing on Saturday and Sunday icefields southwest of Scatterie extending forty miles. She was delayed by ice and fog thirty-three hours.

SHIP PROPERTY.—The market for this property has been quite active during the past month, and the transactions will be found interesting, embracing, as they do, several very desirable vessels. The most remarkable feature in this connection during the month was the purchase of several American ships to go under the British flag. The demand for purchase is good, while the amount of tonnage offering is rather small. The sales during the past month were:—

Ship Villa Franca, 1,069 tons register, built at Bath, 1859, metalled March, 1871, $35,000; bark Solomon, 728 tons register, built at Kingston, Mass, 1865, metalled March, 1870, $23,750; bark Speedwell, 314 tons register, built at Essex, Mass, 1854, metalled 1869, $6,000; bark Florence, 375 tons register, built at Boston, 1859, metalled October, 1871, $12,000; brig Lubra, 332 tons register, built at Danvers, Mass, 1854, metalled May, 1871, $9,500; brig Ocean Eagle, 318 tons register, built at Rockland, 1856, metalled 1868, $8,000; schr H L Shaw, 90 tons register, built at Rockland, 1870, not metalled —A J Maguire's Circular, June 1.

LAUNCHED—From the yard of Belden & Son, Dutch Point, Connecticut River, June 3 the new schooner H T Potter. She is of 400 tons burthen, and was built for parties at Hartford and in Saybrook, and is intended to run between Saybrook and Georgetown, with coal for the Valley Railroad, to be commanded by Capt J B Anderson.

Notice to Mariners.

The Frying Pan Shoals Light Vessel has been placed in position, as described in the Lighthouse Lists, about two miles farther inshore than she has been, for the past year. Coasters are requested to take notice of this change of position, and be careful about running inside of her.

G. S. NORTON,
Commander United States Navy, Inspector Sixth District.

Steamer Georgia, at Alexandria 1st inst from Baltimore, reports that the buoy tender has changed the location of several of the buoys in the Potomac River—that at Boyd's Hole having been removed to Gar's Head, and that at Mathias Point having been placed 50 yards lower down.

FOR SALE—"ECHO LAWN," THE COUNTRY SEAT of the subscriber at Noroton Hill, Stamford, Conn.; the estate comprises about 50 acres of land, including some of the most eligible building sites on said hill; the villa is a commodious and picturesque-looking building, in the Gothic cottage style, and occupies a favorable position on the brow of the hill, in the midst of a very attractive lawn of several acres, sloping towards the south and west, covered with a beautiful growth of evergreen and deciduous trees; the views from the premises in every direction are such as to prompt exclamations of pleasure and admiration from every beholder; the dwelling contains parlor, sitting room, dining room, butler's pantry, library and large hall on the principal floor; five chambers, with marble top washbasins, hot and cold water in each; bath room, water closet, &c., on second floor; two rooms in the attic and three in the tower; kitchen, washroom (with stationary tubs), laundry, milk room, cellars, &c., occupy the ground floor. The gardens are extensive and abundant in vegetables and fruit. There is also an apple orchard and other fruit trees. Ample barn, stabling, carriage house, sheds, poultry house, &c. A never-failing spring of crystal purity supplies, by the aid of a windmill in the tower, a tank in the attic with its viaduct; pure soft water is thence distributed throughout the dwelling. This place is contiguous to several gentlemen's first class country seats; is accessible now in a little over an hour from Forty-second street. When "rapid transit" is attained, may be reached within an hour from City Hall: hence the prospective value of this property is much above its present price. To any one acquainted with this favored locality it would be superfluous to speak of its proverbial healthfulness. For other particulars and permits to view the premises please call upon or address JAMES WILLCOX, 663 Broadway, New York.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4, 1872.

The city is crowded to-night. After a refreshing rain shower the air is pleasant and cool, and the fireworks and torches are reflected in the pools and glaze of the streets and pavements. The delegations have not only filled all the central hotels, but taken quarters in the more obscure market inns, several squares from Chestnut street, and in some cases have leased private houses, furnished at a costly rental.

The District of Columbia Committee has opened a club at 1,020 Walnut street, and keep a liberal table. The Union League Hotel and the new Wigwam, at Broad and Arch streets, are the centres of attraction for street crowds, and the latter has been dedicated amidst the by the Hartranft and Allen Clubs. The Union League is brilliantly illuminated and open to visitors of all colors, sexes and sects. Upwards of 840 applications had been made for press seats, and a few gentlemen late on the ground were disappointed in finding accommodations. The Continental Hotel resembled a vast recruiting office, where well-dressed delegates, policemen, gamins and pickpockets swarmed in and out. The carpets were taken up, and the bare floors are now nicely coated with the different qualities and tints of saliva representative of our conquering race. The States have all had partial, informal or conclusive ballots. First in consequence, of course, is the Empire State, which adheres to the ticket of 1868 in the main, and gives Colfax the nucleus of his reduced and now apparently doubtful support.

The New York delegation met at noon in their parlor at the Continental and was called to order by Mr. Charles Spencer, who nominated Martin J. Townsend, of Troy, to be chairman. Mr. Townsend, on taking the chair, thanked the delegation for the honor conferred on him.

MR. TOWNSEND'S ADDRESS.

We are not here, he said, to devise who shall be President, but to do our duty in expressing the unanimous wishes of our people. It is true there have been attempts to create dissensions, but no matter what may have been said about the distribution of patronage in this or that locality, the people are satisfied with Ulysses S Grant. (Cheers.) They are as well satisfied with his administration as they have been at any time with the administration of any President, not even excepting that of the Father of His Country." The feeling for him is not of a noisy character or demonstrative, but is, nevertheless, of the warmest. The measures of his administration are being criticised, and will continue to be, but they will bear criticism. After a while, unless I am mistaken in my foresight, we will find ourselves engaged in a square stand-up fight between old political enemies, instead of

A WRANGLE BETWEEN FRIENDS.

We must admit that a few of our friends have strayed away into strange paths, have left the sheepfold for the den of wolves; but when the wolves begin to howl, as I believe they will at the Baltimore Convention, the stray sheep will come back to us. I believe that U. S. Grant will be re-elected by a larger majority than has ever been given to any candidate. In the district from which I am a delegate there are not forty of our friends who have gone off after Horace Greeley. Our people will not follow him, no matter how much they have followed him in the past, or how readily they might accept him as a leader if he should return to his old allegiance.

He closed with a stirring appeal for harmonious action. D. Ogden Bradley was the elected Secretary, with William Howe as assistant. A debate ensued regarding the propriety of proceeding with the pending business in secret. Mr. Orton, a Colfax man, argued that the delegation might possibly, in the consideration of business, be divided in opinion. We seek a common end, and the process by which we arrive at it may be used, if known to the public for

THE BENEFIT OF THE COMMON ENEMY.

Other delegates expressed similar opinions, while a majority argued that it was not probable that the delegation would do anything of which they would be ashamed. A motion then prevailed allowing the reporter of the HERALD to remain, and, with that exception, all other persons were excluded from the room. At this juncture a terrapin-eyed party from Brooklyn remarked that the delegation had made an ass of itself by excluding gentlemen while it allowed a reporter to remain. The call of the roll was then proceeded with. Mr. Gerrit Smith's name being the first on the list of delegates at large, was greeted with a round of warm applause. Stephen B. French, James Winterbottom, William S. Kenyon, James Harper, Wm. Andrews, Daniel Walker, M. D. Barrett, R. Nelson, Gere David, Allen Munroe and H. O. Lakin were found to be absent; but it is quite probable that they will arrive to-night. Their places were temporarily supplied from the list of alternates. A motion was carried approving the action of the National Central Committee substituting Mr. Cornell as a member of that body for Mr. Greeley, who, in the language of the chairman, was declared to have

TEMPORARILY ABSQUATULATED

The letter of instruction or request from the National Committee regarding the necessary preliminary step to be taken by each delegate before the Convention assembles was then read. A debate followed regarding the manner of selecting committee men, &c., and particularly regarding the manner of selecting a proper person to be placed on the National Committee for the ensuing four years. Mr. Spencer insisted on an open ballot for this latter purpose, and referred to the selection to be made as one of great importance, as it was intended to find a successor for one whom we thought we would trust, and who has betrayed us. It was then moved that the committee be instructed to report their names for the position, to which Mr. Spencer and others objected. Mr. Lambier then suggested that a name had already been selected or decided on, which would doubtless satisfy each and every delegate. Some cries of "Give us the name" followed this declaration, and Lambier was requested to inform his colleagues why and by what authority he had so far usurped the privilege of the delegation in thus revoking a selection without consulting them. During the debate which ensued it became apparent that a wide difference existed in the delegation regarding this point. Finally the motion was adopted and Messrs. William Lambier, First Judicial district; Charles Jones Second, Lewis F. Payne, Third; M. E. Sheldon, Fourth, Alexander Campbell, Fifth; William L. Bostwick, Sixth; George J. Post, Seventh; Wm. Tyrrell, Eighth, were appointed by the chair.

The meeting then took a recess until six o'clock. When the delegation reassembled the committee reported the following nominations —To be members of the Committee on Credentials, Edward W. Pasten; on Permanent Organization, J W. Hungerford; on Resolutions, J. N Mathews, on Rules and Order of Business, R. P. Carpenter, and for Vice President of the Convention, H. B. Claflin; for member of the National Committee,

EX GOVERNOR EDWIN D. MORGAN.

All of these nominations were confirmed without a dissenting voice, a result which occasioned some surprise, from the fact that several delegates were known to be in favor of the selection of either Mr. Opdyke or Mr. Cornell as member of the National Committee. The desire for harmony was sufficiently strong, however, to secure the foregoing result. If the proposition had carried to nominate these persons for positions Messrs. Morgan, Cornell and Opdyke would doubtless have been put in nomination. A proposition was then submitted that the delegation shall vote as a unit, which was successfully combated by Mr Charles Spencer in a short speech. An informal ballot was taken, which resulted as follows:—

For Colfax, 50; for Wilson, 18; for Hawley, of Connecticut, 1, for Noyes, of Ohio, 1. Among those who voted for Mr. Wilson on this ballot was H. B. Claflin, who subsequently changed to Colfax. The formal ballot which ensued resulted as follows:—

FOR COLFAX, FIXTY-SIX; FOR WILSON, FOURTEEN.

Those who voted for Mr. Wilson on this ballot were Messrs. Gerritt Smith, General Moffatt, Townsend, Spencer, Payne, Carpenter, Lawson, Andrews, Foster, Post, Wilder, Cole, Luken and Vandernam. The Chairman was instructed to rate the delegation as above stated—fifty-six for Colfax and fourteen for Wilson, in the convention, and the meeting adjourned until ten o'clock to morrow morning.

Subsequently the fourteen Wilson men met for consultation and to-night are making efforts to increase their number. It is not impossible that they will succeed, in which event the meeting to-morrow morning will result in a change of the instructions to the chairman. When the delegation commenced its conference regarding the nominee for Vice President only two men, Messrs. Gerrit Smith and Chas. Spencer were found to be in favor of Wilson.

WILSON'S CHANCES.

A great deal of fervor is manifested in Senator Wilson's behalf, but there is not much earnest and systematic work for him outside of a few newspaper men, who are actuated by hostility to Colfax. But Wilson has many friends and it is not impossible that he will be nominated Outside of the singular newspaper interest which is being exerted on his behalf is

THE LABOR INTEREST

and the strong argument that the workmen desire his nomination. Were it not for a sentiment, namely, that it is bad to change from the Grant and Colfax ticket of four years ago, Colfax could be easily beaten. This feeling prevails in the minds of many of the delegates and is used with effect among the different delegations. On the other hand, the distinct promise which Mr. Colfax made to Mr. Wilson, as well as to the people of the United States, that on no condition would he again be a candidate, is now used with almost equal effect. The unusual point of all this discussion is that

GRANT'S NAME IS SELDOM MENTIONED.

If the whole country did not know that he will be nominated to-morrow, the Philadelphian could not learn from what he hears among the delegates to the Convention that Grant is even a candidate. Only once during the day was there even a ripple of excitement, so far as the President is concerned. A rumor was put in circulation that General Grant had written a letter to a delegate, who, as a matter of course, was anonymous, requiring the withdrawal of his name from before the Convention in case of the withdrawal of Greeley. The story was an absurdity on its face, and was then told in another shape. This was to the effect that the President had written in opposition to Colfax. A despatch from the White House, received late in the evening, gave these idle stories their quietus. Then the lull of feeling which they had occasioned again gave place to the grand controversy over the Vice Presidency. In this connection it must not be overlooked that the day began with a contest narrowed down to Schuyler Colfax and Henry Wilson. Pennsylvania had no expectation at sunrise of being able to harmonize upon a candidate who would have any chance in the Convention. The South had no candidate. James F Wilson had dropped out of the fight, and in the Northwest, to the surprise of everybody, the other Wilson manifested a good deal of strength.

BLAINE HAD NO WEIGHT

in New England; the only strength of Hawley, aside from a few scattering supporters, was in the complimentary vote of his own State. Dennison had written a letter saying that he would not go into the Convention for a complimentary vote, or without a solid delegation, with good chance of winning, and so the fight was narrowed and

and weakens Colfax. If there was the same determination to succeed on the part of Wilson's friends that is manifested by Colfax's fuglemen, or rather if his friends were here, the result would not be doubtful. As it is, the chances to-night are nearly evenly balanced, and nobody can predict with certainty what will be the result. The States are working separately, and almost without exception the delegations outside of New England and Indiana are divided. A noticeable feature is that are working hard for Colfax, and the Washington lobby seems to be here in full force and high feather in his behalf. Nearly all of the delegations met at noon, but nothing was accomplished till the evening meeting. In most of them every delegation was in itself a convention; and though the action of many of them was of an inchoate character when the whole proceedings of the day are grouped together they cannot fail to be felt to-morrow. Great eagerness was manifested to know what would be Colfax's strength at what may be called his home, and it is generally admitted that the phenomenal and surprising issue of this day's work is the general

THE RAILROAD AND OTHER MONOPOLIES

DESERTION OF COLFAX

by his own section of the country—the North and West. He holds Indiana solidly by the grace of Governor Morton, whose brother-in-law (Holloway) has been working sturdily in his favor. Except for this warm, unexpected and not entirely cheerful support in all cases, Indiana would have given several votes for Henry Wilson. Colfax also retains Minnesota and Nebraska, which were instructed for him. He has lost the bulk of Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin, and is uncertain in Michigan and Iowa. These States incline strongly towards H. Wilson.

ILLINOIS BALLOTED TO-DAY

with the following result:—Henry Wilson, 17; Colfax, 6. Three votes divided between Dennison and James F. Wilson, Congressmen. Farwell, of Chicago, and Mr. Starrs, a lawyer of the same city, lead the opposition to Colfax.

OHIO

will probably abandon Dennison, according to his own suggestion, and a ballot taken to-day indicates the following division in the State.—Henry Wilson, 30 votes; Colfax, 14. The opposition to Colfax is led by Governor Noyes, Secretary of State Sherwood and General Comly. Colfax's fortunes in Ohio are led by Bickham, of Dayton. Willie Todd, Colfax's youthful generalissimo, thinks Michigan is secure for his employer and patron. Kansas appears to be on the fence, inclining toward Henry Wilson. Iowa holds out for James F. Wilson, and is undecided as to proceeding. On the ballots between Colfax and Henry Wilson

COLFAX WILL LEAD ON THE FIRST BALLOT,

getting less than three hundred votes. Necessary to elect, about three hundred and seventy. Missouri prefers Henry Wilson to Colfax, but few of its delegates are here, and they had expressed up to ten P. M. no preference. New England will vote as follows for Colfax:—The whole of the ballot from Maine, Rhode Island, and Vermont; for Henry Wilson, the whole of Massachusetts and New Hampshire; for James Hawley, Connecticut, with indications for Colfax on second and third ballots. Sam Bowles, who is here, thinks the field looks embarrassed for Colfax. Wilson has also gained in the South, from the fact that the colored delegates have abandoned Colfax, while the whites, many of whom are active sympathizers with the Wilson movement. Although Mr. Colfax still retains a straggling strength in different sections, particularly in Louisiana, Arkansas and Georgia, it is not improbable that he may finally lose all the votes that have been pledged to him. A despatch was received here to-day from A. C. Fisk, dated Vicksburg, Miss., demanding the nomination of Wilson to counteract the influence of the Greeley movement. Fisk is a member of the State Central Committee and heads a delegation which is now en route to urge Wilson's nomination.

THE FLORIDA DELEGATION

has organized, with Josiah F. Walls, colored Congressman, as chairman. W. H. Gleason has been selected to be member of the National Committee. Colonel Frank M. Meker, of the Committee on Permanent Organization, was instructed to vote for Judge Thomas Settle, of North Carolina, for permanent chairman. No agreement has yet been reached by them regarding Vice President, but it is known that the delegation is divided between Colfax and Wilson, with a decided preference for the latter.

THE NORTH CAROLINA DELEGATION, organized by the selection of Judge Thomas Settle to be Chairman, the Rev. John Hood (colored) was selected as member of the Committee on Resolutions and Platform, and another colored man. James Harris, was selected as Vice President of the Convention. Henry Wilson is the unanimous choice of the delegation for Vice President. The several members have urgently labored to secure the selection of Judge Settle to be permanent Chairman of the Convention.

THE TENNESSEE DELEGATION

will not complete its organization until to-morrow, when the Hon. Horace Maynard will be selected to be member of the National Committee, William H. Wisner to be Vice President of the Convention, and A. J. Ricks member of the Committee on Resolutions. The complimentary vote of the delegates will be cast for Maynard, after which it will be divided between Colfax and Wilson. The friends of both these gentlemen are actively engaged to-night pressing the claims of their favorites, but the tide which is setting in so strongly in favor of Wilson will, doubtless, give him the preference.

ALABAMA

has not organized yet, but will do so in time for the Convention to-morrow. So far as can be ascertained by the expression of opinion by delegates the vote will be cast solid for Henry Wilson.

THE MISSISSIPPI DELEGATION

has not all arrived, but a sufficient organization has been reached to warrant the assertion that a majority of them will vote for Colfax. Henry Wilson may gain strength with this delegation before the Convention meets to morrow.

THE GEORGIA DELEGATION

has a small majority for Colfax, and will poll a minority vote for Henry Wilson.

VIRGINIA

will cast its first vote, according to instruction, for John T. Lewis to be Vice President, and subsequently vote solid for Henry Wilson H. H. Wells, Jr, has been selected for member of the National Committee, Edward Daniels, of the Richmond State Journal, to be member of the Committee on Resolutions, and O. J. Mallord to be Vice President of the Convention.

THE TEXAS DELEGATION

was organized by the selection of Governor Flannagan to be Chairman. A tacit understanding exists that the vote of the delegation shall be cast for Colfax. There is sufficient latent strength for Wilson to change the vote from Colfax to him at any time when such a change would secure his nomination.

UTAH'S TWINS.

Two rival delegations are here from Utah, consisting of two men each. One is in favor of the renomination of President Grant, while the contesting delegation declares itself unqualifiedly in favor of Greeley. This unexpected demonstration in behalf of whom—traitor is a mild term of description in the mouths of all the delegates—has created considerable amusement. The contest will be speedily settled by the Committee on Credentials in favor of the Grant delegation.

THE OHIO DELEGATION

has selected B. R. Cowan to be member of the National Committee, ex-Governor Hayes, revenue reformer, to be member of the Platform Committee, and Jacob Mueller to be Vice President of the Convention.

Massachusetts is, of course, solid for Wilson, and the members of this delegation have been very active in urging his claims, although they have worked in a quiet and undemonstrative manner. The results of their efforts are perceptible. They have selected William B. Claflin to be member of National Committee, J. B D Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be Vice President of the Convention. Influences are at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but after that it is quite probable that it will be divided in favor of Wilson. The greatest interest was felt in and even now it is doubtful what result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 16 for Senator Scott and 14 for Colfax. An effort was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of chagrin Russell Errett, the chairman of the State Central Committee, is favorable to Wilson, and it is confidently predicted that the vote of the delegation, or at least a very large part of it, will be cast for him. The desires of the State will have very great influence in the Convention if they are expressed in anything like a decided manner. If the State asserts itself it will be for Wilson. The delegation meets again in the morning, when a conclusion will be reached. The question regarding the

will probably be decided in a manner intended to satisfy the demands of the South. The delegates from that section have uniformly declined to take part in the preliminaries of the Convention, except to suggest the necessity of a strong civil rights and anti-Ku Klux plank in the platform. In return for this complacency they claim the permanent chairmanship. Judge Settle, of North Carolina, and James L. Orr, of South Carolina, have been brought forward as candidates Mr. Orr seems to have but little strength outside his own State, while Judge Settle's friends have secured a favorable consideration of his claims from Texas, Florida, Wisconsin, New York, and, in short, all sections of the country. It is quite probable, however, that a new candidate may be developed, and who will be able to consolidate still greater strength. John B. Henderson, of Missouri; ex-Senator Cattell, of New Jersey, and Governor Hawley, of Connecticut, have been mentioned in this connection, but few of the members of the Committee on Permanent Organization have expressed an opinion on the subject, and of those who have so expressed themselves a decided majority are

IN FAVOR OF JUDGE SETTLE.

One of the threatened features of to-morrow's proceedings is a speech from the colored Congressman, Elliott, of South Carolina, who is known to have ambitions in the direction of the United States Senate. He intends to earnestly urge the adoption of an extreme civil rights' plank in the platform in a manner which will be calculated to create a disturbance among those members who are not sufficiently radical to endorse Mr. Sumner's idea of mixed schools, &c. It is not improbable that an attempt, which is now on foot, to choke him off, will succeed. If it does not succeed, some other colored man of equal prominence with him will be brought forward to answer his theories. This little episode is but a slight indication of the troubles which have arisen regarding the feelings and

INCLINATIONS OF THE COLORED ELEMENT.

The truth is that the colored delegates, after due consultation with their friends in Washington, while en route to this place, were subjected to a powerful influence in the persons of Professor Langston and General Downing, who sustained Mr. Sumner's assault on Grant with great vigor. They come here, with rare exceptions, in a disturbed condition of mind, which did not extend to the idea of repudiating General Grant, but did embrace a desire to endorse Mr. Sumner's peculiar theories. Since their arrival here other influences have been brought to bear upon them, and they are now in a more placable mood. Speculation is rife regarding

THE PLATFORM.

The fact that the Convention is held here is sufficient of itself to insure a fine discussion of the Tariff question, and the acknowledged ill temper of the colored delegates will require a concession to the South regarding civil rights and Ku Klux enactments by Congress. The best informed opinion in the premises is that the platform of 1868, adopted at Chicago, will furnish the basis of the new instrument, with such emendations as may be made necessary by existing emergencies. A plank in favor of the abolition of the franking privilege will be included to meet the demands of a resolution introduced by H. C. Bowen and adopted by the New York delegation to-day, the object of which is to take the wind out of Horace Greeley's sails on the question of cheap postage.

WENDELL PHILLIPS ON LABOR.

Wendell Phillips, through S. P. Comegys, has sent the following, which he wishes to be embodied in the platform of the republican party:—

Resolved, That the practical settlement of the slavery question leaves the political field open and free for a new question, and the one which naturally and inevitably comes next is the relation of capital and labor, and we, the republican party, pledge to-day the same devotion which we gave to the protection of a race, and we recognize the duty of so guiding public opinion and shaping legislation as to secure the fullest protection and the amplest field for capital and for labor, its ally, the fairest opportunity, and a just share of the natural profits of those two great servants of civilization.

THE NATIONAL UNION LEAGUE.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4, 1872.

The National Council of the Union League of America met to-day. Governor Geary in the chair. Three hundred and forty delegates were present. It was the largest meeting since 1862. The Secretary, Thomas G. Baker, of New York, read various reports showing the condition of the League throughout the Union. The Committee on Resolutions reported a series, of which the following is a synopsis:—

The first repudiates the idea that the mission of the republican party is ended.

The second declares that the democratic party remains the same in character as from 1861 to 1865, incapable of reform or improvement, and forever unfit to direct and govern the nation.

The third recites that the fact of the alliance of the so-called liberal republican party with the democratic party develops its true nature, and no other is required to present it to the people as intolerably base and ignoble.

The fourth says:—"All American citizens, without distinction of race, color or religion, are entitled to the same civil and political rights."

The fifth declares that the system of terrorism in the South must be put down at all hazards.

The sixth urges the House of Representatives to pass the Civil Right and Enforcement acts now pending in that body.

The seventh declares that the wisdom of the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments has been fully demonstrated, and opposes any attempt to repeal them.

The eighth declares for the inviolability of the public debt.

The ninth declares that the tariff and internal taxes should be so adjusted as to foster and encourage the industries of the nation.

The tenth favors reform in the civil service.

The eleventh praises the administration of General Grant.

Addresses were made by T. L. Cardozo, of South Carolina; General Barry, of Mississippi; Mr. Foster, of Pennsylvania; Mr. Shemerhorn, of New York, and others.

GERMAN REPUBLICAN MASS MEETING.

PHILADELPHIA, June, 4, 1872.

A grand mass meeting of the German republican delegates and people was held at Concordia Hall to-night. Dr. Paul Strobhack, of Alabama, presided, and delivered a brilliant review of the political situation with reference to the good standing of Germans in the South.

Among the Vice Presidents were A. M. Zeltman, of New York; O. H. Drennell and Dr. Theo. Cornsius, of Illinois; N H Miller, of the District of Columbia; F. W. Thomas, of Pennsylvania; T. M. Scheller, of Tennessee Speeches were made by Mr. L. Naumann, of New York; Colonel F. Achtz, from Washington; Henry Deutsch, of Tennessee, and the Hon. William Vrike, of Illinois. Simon Wolf, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, reported the resolutions, which were adopted unanimously.

The resolutions endorse General Grant in the highest terms and lay down a platform in the German republican spirit, and will be submitted to the National Convention by a committee of twenty-five to-morrow.

In all the speeches the peculiar stand taken by Carl Schurz, in opposition to his former career, and the good services of General Grant in behalf of the good of the entire people, were dwelt upon.

ILLINOIS POLITICS.

Calls for a Democratic and Liberal Republican State Convention.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 4, 1872.

The Democratic State Central Committee to-day amended the call for the State Convention by providing for the nomination of Presidential Electors and a full State ticket and for the transaction of such other matters as the interest of the party may require.

The Liberal Republican Central Committee also held a meeting to-day, and issued a call for delegates to the State Convention to be held in this city on the 26th of June, the same day that the Democratic State Convention assembles.

THE EQUAL RIGHTS PARTY.

Mrs. Woodhull Formally Accepts the Nomination at the Hands of the Apollo Hall Convention.

Mrs. Victoria C. Woodhull, the candidate of the Equal Rights party, is out with an address and letter of acceptance of some three columns in length. Stating to the committee that their "formal statement of a simple fact" (alluding to the choice they had made of herself as their Presidential candidate) had been received, she forthwith enters into an elaborate essay on the wrongs and rights of everybody, meek and long suffering woman in particular. Starting from the broad basis of the earliest social relationship of men and women, she pauses to show that the reformers have the majority among men and only need to be united to succeed, and then bears down upon the all absorbing theme of the present political contest She claims the merit of having been a free-spoken woman, and advises her supporters that in becoming their candidate she must not be expected to hold her tongue. Politics, she thinks, must give way to sociology, and that in turn to other and longer phrases. Her special function, she says, is breaking down the old and ushering in the new, and in accomplishing this her spiritual prevision reveal to her views which she looks upon with dread She agrees with Horace Greeley upon several points He being a man and ineligible to the highest office on the women's ticket, she has for him no feeling of rivalry or jealousy. Standing upon "a platform which strikes directly at the heart of the system under which we live," she gratefully accepts the nomination, and pledges herself, by every honorable means, to secure the success of the ticket.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The Worcester Spy (Grant republican) has the following reference to the Vice Presidency, a candidate for which is to be nominated by the Convention at Philadelphia:—

In regard to the second office, the Convention as a whole is left to its own guidance, although most of the delegations are instructed in favor of one or another candidate. The two who will at first receive most votes are, of course, Mr Colfax and Senator Wilson. The former will probably lead on the first ballot. If he had not sometime ago repeatedly declared his purpose to retire from public life at the close of his present term of office he would, no doubt, be renominated without serious opposition. The prospect now is that of those who are instructed to vote at first for candidates from their own States enough will change their votes to Mr. Wilson, as their second choice, to give him a support nearly as large as that of Mr. Colfax, or perhaps, and not improbably, to nominate him.

The Utica Herald (republican) has the annexed comments upon the nomination of the Vice President by the republicans at Philadelphia to-day:—

There is some doubt as to who will fill the second place on the ticket. At first it was believed that Mr. Colfax would be the man. He is exceedingly popular, and as clever and worthy as he is popular. But there is some objection to selecting both nominees from the West. The name of Senator Wilson will be vigorously pushed, and the friends of Governor Hawley, of Connecticut, have strong hopes that he may be taken up as a compromise candidate. Mr. Colfax will doubtless show much the greater strength on the first ballot, and we rather suspect that on him will fall the choice of the Convention. But it is a gratifying fact that no man has yet been mentioned in connection with the Vice Presidency who is not every way worthy and capable and who would not do honor to the office.

Says the Providence Journal (Senator Anthony's organ):—

Among the political rumors is one that a movement has been organized for the nomination of Chase, at Baltimore, and the withdrawal of Greeley. It is not probably true; such a movement certainly can have no strength.

The Providence Journal of the 4th inst. says of our exploded treaty with Great Britain:—

There is a bitter feeling in many quarters over the failure of the treaty, which is charged upon the disingenuousness of England. It is said that the delays and objections on her part cover a design to avoid engagements into which she deliberately entered, and which she found inconvenient to fulfil; that, at the best, the great principle of arbitration and the settlement of long standing and irritating differences between the two countries have been subordinated to the political necessities of the Ministry.

The Providence Herald (a paper that has some democratic standing in its own meridian) says of Greeley:—

Will Greeley stand—stand beyond all peradventure and despite all discouragements? We confess that we do not like to give even a conditional support to a contingent candidate. We don't care to involve ourselves in commendations of one whom we may a month hence descry leading the enemy's battalions. We are willing to compromise ourselves to the extent of our conscience whenever we know that the Cincinnati nominee is in the field and determined to stay there; but we strenuously object to being the advocates, however feeble, of a possible party. Greeley is under no obligations to us as yet, but he desired to be. Any success of the reformers involved the support of the democracy. Did they suppose the democracy were to give in an allegiance to a party of liberals whose principles and faith had no firmer maintenance than the possibility of an alliance?

The Boston Post—democratic, and a paper of careful judgment—remarks about Sumner's late speech, that what Sumner has developed in this matchless piece of inculpatory eloquence is precisely what F. W. Bird brought out with equal boldness in his remarkable speech at Walpole. He there asserted that he did not believe in Grant either as soldier or civilian, and never had; and Sumner has supported his impressive declaration with the utmost elaboration of evidence and illustration. The popular mind receives this speech as one of the most serious affairs in our political history. If it cannot be fairly met and answered it will be but offering an insult to the country to renominate to the Presidency one who thus stands at the bar of public judgment practically convicted. It is understood everywhere that this administration is the image of corruption and incompetency, the synonym of gift-taking and the usurpation of power; and it does not unsettle that common belief to heap obloquy on Mr. Sumner or renominate the President he arraigns.

In regard to the Reading, Pa., (democratic) State Convention, the Springfield (Mass.) Republican says.—

The platform has been criticised as non-committal, and with entire justice. But the Convention's feeling, and its action, too, so far as it went, were unmistakably "liberal;" in other words, pointed towards the adoption of Greeley and Brown as the candidates of the democratic party. So the delegation to Baltimore is a "liberal" delegation. This has been doubted and denied, we know, but the affirmative witnesses are both numerous and credible. Among them we need only mention the Philadelphia Press and the Reading correspondent of the NEW YORK HERALD.

A PORCINE EXCITEMENT.

CINCINNATI, June 4, 1872.

Considerable feeling and not a little indignation was manifested here, on 'Change and elsewhere, to-day, among provision men, on discovering that the regular market report from Chicago yesterday placed the number of live hogs received the two preceding days largely above the actual number. The Superintendent of the Chamber of Commerce, on reading the despatch yesterday, called the members' attention to the peculiar appearance of the report, thus preparing them for the developments that followed. The investigation which ensued, through official and private channels, clearly developed the fact that a misstatement had been made which led fourteen prominent packers and provision merchants to write, to-day, a communication to the President of the Chamber, saying there seemed some unfair influences at work to depress the market for hog products through these despatches, and asking for a thorough investigation, and, if necessary, that other arrangements be made for despatches. President Rowland, at the close of 'Change, assured the merchants that the Superintendent had already instituted inquiry into the fact, and that the matter would be vigorously investigated and a remedy applied.

THE WARRIORS AFTER THE ELEPHANT.

The Beautiful Squaws, Mrs. Big Foot and Mrs. Ear-of-Corn, to Go Shopping To-Day.

Last evening about the hour of dusk, the dwellers on the Jersey City side of the Hudson River saw a strange sight for the first time in their lives.

The half past-eight A. M. Washington train had just arrived from the federal capital, and out of it stepped a party of thirty persons, 28 adult males and two females. Of this party two were half bred interpreters of the Ogalalla Sioux, two were squaws of that tribe, and there were twenty-five chiefs, braves and members of that fierce tribe of the Plains, under the command of the great chief "Red Cloud" and his associate scalper, "Red Dog." Dr. Daniels, the agent of the Sioux tribe, accompanied them on their trip from Washington to this city, and will have charge of them while they are east of the Missouri River, previous to their return home to the happy hunting grounds of their fathers.

On arriving on this side of the river they were taken to the Grand Central Hotel, on Broadway, where suites of rooms had been prepared for their reception. Their appearance at the hotel caused the greatest excitement, particularly among the lady guests of the house, as the Ogalallas were attired in the same fashion as they appear on the Plains when about to rob a stage or scalp a select batch of emigrants, with the exception that they did not have their war paint on and were not armed. They look like the usual pictures that are to be found of the noble savage, being clad in leggings, moccasins trimmed with bead work, and had huge blankets covering their brawny shoulders

"Red Cloud" had red breeches and a huge red scarf around his throat. Six of the braves had large German silver crosses pendant from their necks and extending a foot in length down their tawny chests. "Red Dog," the second chief, is a gentle youth of about forty five summers, weighing about one hundred and ninety-five pounds, and has the appearance of having kept (at some period of his life) a German lager beer saloon and restaurant near Essex Market. They have all, without exception, long, jet black hair, straight and coarse in texture, which is flattened down with grease to the shape of their heads.

The proprietor of the hotel and his clerks having assigned them their apartments, the noble red men marched to their rooms with a stolid look of self-satisfaction on their faces and a grunt in their mouths. Supper was soon after prepared for them in a separate dining room, in which they all sat down to a hearty meal.

There has been a great deal of trouble for the agent of this delegation to induct them into the use of knives and forks and to restrain their appetites from the demands they have made for their favorite dish, "domestic dog."

At the supper table, being in company with the interpreters, who are of the half breed race, the following named and high toned Indian gentlemen and ladies attached the supper, "Red Cloud" sitting as his privilege, above the salt:—

Red Cloud,	Red Dog,
Blue Horse,	Little Wound,
Lone Wolf,	Big Foot,
Mrs. Lone Wolf (Ear-of-Corn),	Mrs Big Foot (White Jenny),
Red Fox,	Good Buffalo,
Little Wolf,	Red Leaf,
Thunder Hawk,	Two Elk,
High Bear,	Blue Shield,
Poor Elk,	Daylight,
Stabber,	Poor Moon,
Dirty Face,	Hard Heart,
Slow Bull,	Coyote,
Hawk Eagle,	Feathered Eagle,
Black Crow,	High Wolf,

Carry-Crow-on-His-Head.

This was the party which sat down to dinner, and each of the braves manifested his liking for the dishes which best suited his appetite. "Big Foot" made a terrible onslaught on the cold chicken, and eat nearly three pounds of that dainty fowl. "High Bear" demolished two jars of chow-chow, and made himself so sick that the other braves grunted at him in high savage glee. "Red Fox," who seems to be the wit of the party, filled his coffee with half a cruet full of cayenne pepper, and imagined immediately afterwards that he had swallowed the "Evil Spirit." The squaw of "Lone Wolf," Mrs. "Ear-of-Corn," took quite a fancy to the cold boiled ham, and punished two pounds of that solid commodity. "Stabber," who justifies his very sanguinary name by his ferocious looks, manifested a ravishing delight at the sight of a huge dish of strawberries and cream, and appropriated the entire contents without saying grace. During the meal "Red Cloud," as became his dignity, maintained the greatest decorum. "Red Dog" ate in dismal silence. "Blue Horse" left the table first in order, and was followed by his chum "Red Leaf" "Daylight" carried away four bananas to regale himself in a corner, and the remaining braves, accompanied by the two ladies, retired in a body to their rooms, which are somewhat more palatial in aspect than the wigwams from whence they came, on the Fork of the North Platte.

During the evening a HERALD reporter called on the distinguished braves in the large room in which the principal chiefs were holding a conversazione. The reporter was formally introduced to each one of the braves by the agent, Dr. Daniels, who has been living among the Sioux tribes for the past sixteen years.

"Red Cloud" was the first one introduced. He was sitting on a magnificent bed, in his red leggings and moccasins. He rose, looked at the reporter, and held out his hand, which the reporter shook. Red Cloud looked at the reporter's store clothes, gave a grunt, and shouted at the top of his voice, "How!" which is the Sioux salutation of welcome, and sat down.

The next chief introduced was "Red Dog," a fat, pig-headed chief, with a deeply cunning pair of eyes. This chief shook hands, shouted "How!" grunted and sat down. As "Red Dog" shook hands with the reporter a thrill of horror passed through his system, for the thought came like lightning that this was the painted savage who, in command of a party of Sioux some years ago, lay in wait in the underbrush some distance from Fort Fetterman for a company of Colonel Carrington's regiment, ninety-six in number, who went out to gather wood. Not one of these good men and true ever returned to tell the tale of that dreadful slaughter. They met Red Dog's war party and were massacred to a man. And there sat this savage, with his cunning eyes and evil face glooming, and perhaps thinking of the number of scalps hanging in his wigwam in far-off Wyoming. The thought was sickening. Then "Blue Horse" was introduced and "Little Wound," another cunning savage, and "Lone Wolf," all of whom shouted "How!" and then relapsed into moody silence, squatting their bodies on the beds and carpeted floor. Red Dog looked atrociously ridiculous in his half-civilized costume. The under part of his body was Indian enough to satisfy the most picturesque mind; but he had a claw-hammer dress coat—such as may be seen at the Charity Ball adorning the shoulders of a city dandy—and he was doing his best to "show off" to the best advantage. Another chief sauntered into the room in a lazy way, a blanket around his loins, and falling over his bare legs and feet, while a cheap and brand-new black cloth vest, such as is seen daily exposed from a Turk in a Chatham street Israelitish emporium, was loosely buttoned across his massive chest.

One of the chiefs now passed around a long wooden pipe filled with common tobacco, and each brave took a whiff in silence, and ending with a satisfactory grunt as the fumes mounted to the white ceiling. There they sat, a remnant of the most savage tribe of the Plains, and not a man of them all but had his hands red with the blood of scores of defenceless men, women and children slain in ambuscade and treacherous slaughter. For each one was a "brave," and had sung his song of triumph and counted scalps innumerable. These Indians are here in New York, where they will remain for some days for a two-fold purpose. They desire ammunition, food and clothing for their tribe, four thousand of whom are now waiting in the vicinity of Fort Laramie and the North Platte River to hear the decision of the Great Father at Washington. They are also brought here to see our crowded cities and to be impressed with the power of our people, our magnificence and wealth, and they are to be taken down to see the ocean at Rockaway and Coney Island, in order that they may fully understand that the earth is round, and that there are other millions in the world as powerful as the Ogalalla Sioux, of which tribe there are now in existence some 9,000 persons, scattered throughout the Indian reservation. Altogether there are 85,000 Sioux, and of this number 19,000 are warriors capable of battle. At present the Indian population of the United States numbers 380,000 The Indian wars of this country have cost, since the foundation of the republic, $500,000,000, and the end is not yet. It costs $1,000,000 yearly for each regiment of soldiers that is employed to watch these high toned savages, or about $1,000 per head. This evening Red Cloud and his delegation of braves and squaws will visit "Humpty Dumpty," and on another evening this week they will be present at the esthetic performances given at the Circus.

Dr. Daniels said to a HERALD reporter last evening, "The first word taught these Sioux Indians is the word 'enemy.' The next thing taught them is how they may be able to torture and kill that 'enemy.' Their constant conversation is about their battles and victories, getting up and down from their feasts. When they go home this time, however, their conversation will be of what they have seen on their trip, and every one of the delegation will have a story to tell of the wonders he saw among the pale faces."

There are eleven tribes of the Sioux Nation, namely, the Ogallalas, Brules, Minniconjus, Cheyennes, Poncas, Tetons, Sisitons, Wapletons, Santees and Dacotas. Mrs. Red Dog does not accompany her husband, as she has lost three lovely children by the measles. The daughter of Red Cloud, "Dove Eye," also remained with her people. Miss Dove Eye is the beautiful belle of the Ogalalla tribe, and is a particular friend of Miss Spotted Tail, whose father is Chief of the Brule Sioux. The Grand Duke Alexis, it will be remembered, admired Miss Spotted Tail. Red Cloud endorses the Philadelphia Convention and the renomination of the Great Father, General Grant.

THE LOUISIANA DEMOCRACY.

The Followers of Belmont Bent on Amity with the Warmothites.

A Day of Loud Talk and Little Business—Legal Gas Bags Surfeiting the Delegates—A Committee Appointed to Confer with the Reformers.

NEW ORLEANS, June 4, 1872.

This being the day appointed for the assembling of the Reform State Convention, that body met at the Masonic Hall at twelve o'clock and proceeded to organize. The Democratic State Convention met, pursuant to adjournment, at the Opera House at eleven A. M. Everything is at sea to-day politically. Both Conventions temporarily adjourned early in the day, the democrats to await a report from their wandering brethren and the reformers to arrange their permanent organization. Many country delegates are accredited to both Conventions, but the reformers seem inclined to repudiate any alliance with the democrats which does not recognize their dignity and importance as especial saviors of the State. The democrats expect to swallow the reformers at the first gulp, but this summary disposition the latter resent, being more inclined to negotiate and maintain their organization as a distinct and separate body throughout. It is probable, however, that a fusion will ultimately be effected upon some terms

THE PRESIDENTIAL QUESTION UNTOUCHED.

Very little has been said as yet of the Presidential question, State issues absorbing all other considerations. If a straight ticket is made by the democrats and reformers, ostracising the liberal republicans, as now contemplated at the liberal convention, the Cincinnati platform will certainly be called. This policy was indicated by the Times this morning A prominent democratic member of the Convention says privately that heavy bids are made from Washington for the control of these bodies in the way of preventing any alliance being perfected with Warmoth. The Custom House people are very active, principally through Mr. James Clark, Mr. Boutwell's special political correspondent or agent in this city, and are doing good service for General Grant Their influence is felt in an undercurrent of feeling and expression similar to those of Dan Voorhees.

WARMOTHITES ACTIVELY CAUCUSING.

The prominent Warmoth coalitionists, such as Blackman, Egan, Ferguson, Herron, Thomas Jewett, Reeves and others, held a caucus early this morning and decided upon adopting a bold and vigorous policy There is much violent discussion in the Convention and resentments are plentifully expressed. Judge Hunt's bitter tirade against Warmoth, delivered yesterday, elicited an article from the Times this afternoon charging him with having written an article for Warmoth's organ, the Republican, laudatory of the Governor, and urging the creation of a new Criminal Court for the judgeship of which Hunt was an applicant.

DENOUNCING THE GOVERNOR AND THE PRESS.

When the Democratic Convention reassembled at two o'clock the Judge opened the proceedings with an eloquent speech in way of explanation, and was again very severe upon the Governor and the press. In the course of his remarks he referred indignantly to some untimely interruptions, and at their conclusion a motion was made to appoint sergeants-at-arms to preserve order. This was a boomerang proposal, as the lobbies and floor were crowded with people in sympathy with the city delegates. An angry discussion now arose, characterized by an entire lack of order. One delegate demanded excitedly that a fictitious delegate from the city, seated in front of him, be ejected, and ejected he was. Another demanded, in an injured spirit, whether this was a radical or a democratic convention, it not being customary to subject the latter to the surveillance of sergeants-at-arms or policemen.

DEMOCRATS NEVER, NEVER, NEVER

would be slaves, but were always ready to protect themselves; but after a prolonged discussion the motion prevailed, and quiet was restored. The country delegates generally seemed to be growing very restive under city influences, and symptoms of dissolution can plainly be discerned in the frowning brows and sharp, passionate tones of the speakers.

THE COALITIONISTS QUIETLY PARLEYING.

After the appointment of sergeants-at-arms the committee appointed to confer with the Reform Convention reported that a correspondence had taken place with that body, which had just passed a resolution appointing a committee of conference on their side, and that until the two committees could meet and confer no further action could be taken. Some business of minor importance was then transacted, when a motion was made to proceed with the nominations for delegates to the Baltimore Convention. This, like every other attempt at transacting business, provoked its storm of opposition. Nobody seemed ready as yet to meet and grapple with the difficulties of the situation, and, as usual, they thereupon adjourned to meet to-morrow at eleven o'clock.

The attendance to-day was very large and the interest manifested intense. All concur that Louisiana's destiny for good or evil hangs upon the results of these two conventions, and the prospects of harmony in their proceedings is not, so far, very flattering.

LOUISIANA REFORM CONVENTION.

Meeting of the Reformers—Permanent Organization—Dignity and Coalition with the Democrats the Chief Objects—The Grant Element in Their Midst Slightly Demonstrative.

NEW ORLEANS, June 4, 1872.

The Reform Convention on assembling at Masonic Hall made a very imposing appearance. It is composed, on an average, of a far better class of people than is usually found in political assemblages, and numbers about half a dozen highly respectable colored people among its members. The merchant element is strongly represented, as illustrated by a painful ignorance of parliamentary rules and usages. The country is very thinly represented, in most instances by delegates accredited also to the Democratic Convention, most of whom are intensely shy of utterance. Its tone, as discernible by to-day's proceedings, is headstrong and inclined to contrariness. It seems to have a very exaggerated idea of its dignity and importance, a fault the old wire-workers seem aware of, and being alive to take advantage of it in controlling the proceedings. At twelve o'clock Judge Kennedy rapped the Convention to order, with a short and pertinent address, calling Mr. J. Davidson Hill, a prominent young lawyer, to the chair, who, in his turn, made a speech, in which he likened the birth of the reform party to a prince succeeding to his heritage. A Committee on Credentials was then appointed, and a recess taken.

THE PERMANENT ORGANIZATION.

Upon reassembling, at two P. M., the Committee on Credentials reported twenty-two parishes represented besides the city. Some additions were subsequently made, and the Convention then proceeded to elect Mr. George Williamson, of Caddo, permanent Chairman, with Messrs. J. D. Hill and Charles E. Fenner as Vice Presidents. Mr. Williamson made a short address in favor of conciliation. A communication from the conference committee of the Democratic Convention was then read, and a motion was made for the appointment of a like committee. This met at first with a vigorous opposition that did not augur well for a future fusion, but after some debate objections were either waived or suspended, and the committee was appointed, with the understanding that a conference would be held during the afternoon.

The Convention then adjourned until half-past seven o'clock this evening.

Evening Session.

During the recess it transpired that the Convention contains a very strong Grant element, principally confined to the city and mercantile representation. The conference committee met at seven o'clock, and at half-past seven the Convention was again called to order, the lobbies being crowded to repletion. But little business was transacted, and that of no importance. The conference committee, not having yet had a meeting with that of the Democratic Convention, moved an adjournment until twelve o'clock to-morrow. Carried.

The hotels and other public places are filled to-night with excited knots of people discussing the situation. To-morrow promises to be a notable day in the political history of the State.

JAMES GORDON BENNETT.

The American Press on the Founder of the New York Herald.

[From the Boston Post—Charles Gordon Greene—(editorial), June 3.]

The brain that conceived the modern American newspaper has ceased from its busy workings. The founder of the NEW YORK HERALD, who taught the enterprising art of collecting the latest intelligence from the four quarters of the globe, and presenting it every morning to the eye of the reader, has left to modern journalism the inheritance of a great and noble example. He first had the courage to sweep out the cumbersome essay and dilettante commentary from the newspaper columns, and exhibited the sagacity that replaced them with stirring news, freshly gathered, warm and palpitating with life, and accompanied with pertinent remark born of the same spirit. In his hands the modern journal became a new social, commercial and political power. The whole world was its theme, all peoples daily passed before it in review, its concern was only with the movement of the age, he showed by his masterly enterprise, his superior sagacity, his quick insight and his unparalleled skill and rapidity in execution, that it should be the unrolled map on which a day's history of mankind is faithfully portrayed. Whatever may be said of his methods or his personal peculiarities, or of his intercourse with others during his prolonged career, it is undeniable that James Gordon Bennett discovered the secret of making a complete newspaper, and to that single work, worthy of the ambition of the most gifted man, he unswervingly devoted the entire life which has just come to its close. The New York journals are all patterned after the model he proposed. Not a feature has been introduced into one of them which the HERALD did not originate.

His unheard of system of expressing the freshest news no doubt stimulated the thought that gave final birth to telegraphy. From that moment all things were changed. The newspaper at once became a world of movement, rapidity and ceaseless stir. It was more than a mirror—it bore a necessary part itself. Its exactions on capital, thought and industry grew almost frightfully fast, and at the present moment they lay under tribute a sum total of talent, labor and money of which the world of newspaper readers entertain but a slight comprehension. No man will be more completely identified in newspaper history with this marvellous development of its scope and power than the founder and late proprietor of the NEW YORK HERALD. He may not have been an originator of opinions, nor, in fact, did he aspire to any such insecure office, but he did illustrate, as no other individual in the world ever did before, the genius of news collecting. His rod always dipped where the rich ore lay hidden. His unerring insight taught him the secrets which other men would not believe to have existed. The times and he kept fully abreast. Everybody knew where to find what it was worth while to know, and therefore everybody read the HERALD. The career of its founder was as remarkable as that of any man who has ever succeeded in this country. The sturdy Scotch characteristics were all prominent in him. Thrifty, energetic, laborious, tenacious and indomitable, it is difficult to decide whether he or his famous paper stood forth the greater triumph at the last. His career will long be held up as a signal illustration of devotion to a single purpose, and that as worthy as any that is included in the wide circle of civilized pursuits. It only deserves to be added that in all his business and personal relations he was respected for his honor and generosity, and that every one who was associated with him cherishes his memory with the profoundest respect.

[From the Boston Post (obituary), June 3.]

In the death of Mr. James Gordon Bennett, Sr., the United States has lost its most distinguished and most truly representative journalist. There are two or three other prominent editors whose names will be at once recalled, to whom, at first thought, this proud pre-eminence might be accorded by many, but, though they may have equalled or excelled Mr. Bennett in certain special and important respects, they cannot dispute with him the palm of general superiority, and they will be among the first to pay a sincere tribute of well deserved praise to the remarkable merits and abilities of the departed. James Gordon Bennett was born at New Mill, Keith, in Banffshire, Scotland, in 1800. His parents were well-to-do tenants of the Earl of Fife, under the shadow of whose proprietary residence, Duff House, the Bennett residence reared its modest head. Here young Bennett first saw the light, and amid the beautiful hills and vales of Banff, inhabited by a sober and industrious populace, and watered by the romantic and winding Isla, he passed the first years of his life. His family were Catholics by principle and tradition. Their ancestors, the Benoits, had long before emigrated from France, and became attached to the train of a nobleman of the house of Gordon, who established his seat in these North of Scotland regions. The future editor remained in school at Keith until he was about fourteen years old, when he went to Aberdeen, where he lived for two or three years, and was educated for the Church, with his brother Cosmo, in a Catholic seminary. In his youth James was considered a boy of good natural abilities fond of solitude and reflection, very sensitive on points of honor, generous, self confident and amiable. His habits were uniformly good, unless a tendency to make poetry be excepted, and his disposition, as shown by extracts from his early records, noble and ambitious. The result of his ruminations became shortly apparent; and the young man stimulated by the contemplation of Byron, Walter Scott, Benjamin Franklin and Napoleon, of whom he read, and the preaching of Chalmers, whom he frequently heard at Glasgow, determined to throw off the yoke of parental and pedagogic restraint. He did so very suddenly, and announced his intention of going to "see the place where Franklin was born." No opposition seems to have been offered and on the 6th of April, 1819, the young adventurer sailed down the Dee with a very small sum of money in his purse and a very large sum of determination and hopefulness in his heart. After a tedious passage the vessel arrived at Halifax, and Mr. Bennett began his new life by immediately securing a position as teacher. His pay was meagre and his situation disagreeable, and after a few months of poverty and privation he made his way to Portland and Boston by schooner. In this city he made a halt, and not knowing a single individual he soon found himself without money as well as without employment. One day, while on the verge of starvation, he was strolling on the Common, moody, despairing and almost exhausted, when he happened to find a "York shilling." He seized it with alacrity, and at once procured some food. The shilling seemed to be the author of good fortune, for in a day or two thereafter he stumbled upon a Mr. Wells, a countryman of his, who provided him with employment in the printing house of Wells & Lilly, then one of the leading book firms of the country. Here Mr. Bennett, whose office was that of proof-reader, had excellent opportunities for self-improvement, which, it is needless to say, he eagerly made use of.

It was in Boston that Mr. Bennett first had his attention attracted to the profession of journalism, then in its infancy. The New England Galaxy, edited by Joseph T. Buckingham, and the Yankee, by John Neal, in Boston, and the National Advocate, Commercial Advertiser and Evening Post, in New York, were the chief newspapers at that time in the North, and these became the subjects of Mr. Bennett's careful study. He was not long in discerning the future of journalism with his mind's eye, and determined to adopt it as his profession. With this end in view he went to New York in 1822, and was soon engaged by A. S. Willington, proprietor of the Charleston (S. C.) Courier. On that journal he was employed in 1823, chiefly in making translations from the Spanish newspapers received by way of Havana. He returned to New York during that year, however, and for the next few months made shift to exist by writing for various metropolitan journals, meanwhile observing and studying the political developments under the administrations of Presidents Monroe and Adams. In 1825 he made his first attempt to become the proprietor of a newspaper. He purchased from John Tryon the New York Sunday Morning Courier, for which he had been very active as a reporter. The enterprise, however, did not succeed, and in a short time Mr. Tryon bought back the establishment. In 1826 Mr. Bennett became connected with the National Advocate, then a journal of great influence, and very soon became renowned for the vigor and pungency of his criticisms and paragraphs. He began to be assailed, sneered at for his foreign birth, and reviled by the opposing press—in a word, began to be famous. * * *

It would be useless and impossible to trace the various means by which from this small beginning the HERALD has risen to its present enviable position in American journalism. Its success has been entirely due to the genius and perseverance of Mr. Bennett. His early partners soon died, and he then obtained and held entire control of the infant enterprise. The struggles, the discouragements, the opposition, the losses, the slanders which he encountered were legion, but step by step he rose superior to them all, and carried the HERALD on his shoulders from its dingy birthplace and contracted cradle to the magnificent marble palace on Broadway, and the ninety-six column sheet of the present day. The position which the HERALD fills and the influence it has had and continues to have on journalism and civilization is well known to all who read the English language. It has been the pioneer among newspapers of this country, and has initiated all the forms of editorial communication which are popular and in general use. Mr. Bennett originated the system of press telegrams and the custom of editorially commenting on telegrams. He originated the extensive system of press correspondence which now prevails so generally, brilliant examples of which are to be noticed in the HERALD letters during the Crimean war, the Austro-Italian war, the civil war in the United States, and, in later times, the Lowery letters, the Livingstone and Nile letters, the Hassler letters, &c. He instituted the present system of financial, commercial and market reports, and the system of "sensation" which has become so popular and which is now being transplanted into the European journals. The HERALD he always made emphatically a newspaper, and one complete in every sort of intelligence—religious, political, social, æsthetic, foreign, domestic, casual, criminal, financial and sporting. He preferred to make it a reflector rather than a leader, of public sentiment, and devoted its enterprising tendency more to the ferreting out of news and the ways of obtaining news than to a search after political power. The bitter lesson of 1833 he apparently never forgot and the world knows well how much it as well as he has been the gainer thereby.

The character of Mr. Bennett was exemplary. He was the object of much vituperation at various times, but his many recorded kindnesses and benevolence will far outweigh all that has been said against him. His record is that of a patient, earnest, sincere, indomitable worker. His labor was for sixty years incessant, and varied only by his marriage in 1840, and a trip to Europe in 1843. The mighty enterprise which he leaves behind him is a lasting monument to his memory, and no more eloquent epitaph could be inscribed above his last resting place than the familiar words, "THE NEW YORK HERALD."

[From the Boston Transcript, June 3.]

Henry W. Dutton, senior proprietor of the Transcript, was foreman of the printing office of Wells & Lillie, of Boston, at the time James Gordon Bennett was employed there, and the intimacy then formed has been continued. In 1819 Mr. Bennett, a tall young man, solicited work of Mr. Dutton, stating that he was not a printer, but desired to be about a printing office and enjoy the facilities it afforded for mental improvement. The only place where he could be made useful was as "copy holder" to the proof reader, and he was given the situation. He was very studious and correct and after about a year's service was promoted to be clerk in the book store of the firm on Court street. Mr. Bennett at this early day was noted for his constant attendance upon the preaching of the noted men of the times in Boston. He attended the services of Rev. Dr. William Ellery Channing, Rev. John N. Maffit, Rev. Dr. Sabine and Rev. Moses Stuart, D. D., the famous Professor at Andover Theological Seminary.

[From the New York Era, June 2.]

A bulletin last evening made known to the public that the great journalist was no more. His death occurred at a quarter past five o'clock, and leaves a void which no living man can fill. Commencing the publication of the HERALD at a period within the recollection of men hardly yet in the prime of life, and with absolutely nothing but his indomitable energy, industry, sagacity and intelligence to carry him through, he triumphed over all obstacles, and rose from poverty to the possession of millions, leaving behind him an unparalleled reputation for journalistic enterprise and the most valuable newspaper with possibly one exception, in the world. It is fortunate that the son succeeds to the control of the great establishment with every qualification to maintain the supremacy achieved by the father. The sympathy and good will of the newspaper world will go with him and the other survivors of the family.

[From the New York Irish Democrat, June 3.]

"THE BROKEN SHAFT."

Had we lived in the days of augury, when men regulated their lives by omens and took heart of grace, or were plunged in despondency by the flight of birds, atmospheric changes or ordinary accidental occurrences, there would have been a suggestive significance in that "broken shaft" at the HERALD office last week. On the day of the accident James Gordon Bennett—the founder of the newspaper of America, the promoter of its fortunes and the upholder of its fame—sickened unto death, for though prostrated with convulsions a few days previously, it was then only that his attending physicians declared the hopelessness of any restoration of the "broken shaft"—the shaft that had nobly sustained and guided and worked the machinery of a great mind and a prodigious enterprise. And, as in the mechanical accident, generosity was found to triumph over rivalry in the spontaneous offer of other journals to aid the HERALD publication, so now, in the supreme hour when all of the past should be forgotten but what is good and generous, we are, for the honor of our order, glad to record that old-time differences have been laid aside—professional and political animosities forgotten—nothing remembered but the great heart and the great head of the doughty antagonist who had given and received many a home-thrust in the conflict, and that journalists of all shades have united in casting on the coffin lid of James Gordon Bennett a garland of love and praise and appreciation.

Few men have been more misunderstood by the outer world than he whose remains to day lie stark and cold in that palatial mansion on Fifth avenue; no man could be more loved and revered than he was in the circle of friends who enjoyed the privilege of his association or by those in his journalistic service, whose professional career it was his pride to make, to mould and to reward. We might exhaust eulogy and say nothing more effective than this for the private worth of the great man gone from us, but it is in his public achievements that he will be best remembered, and here we are saved the necessity of detail by the one existent fact of the NEW YORK HERALD. James Gordon Bennett built a monument to himself in creating the first paper in the world. Si quæris monumentum circumspice.

[From the Brooklyn Eagle, June 3.]

* * * Then the genius of the New York of the future whispered in his ear, "The present rejects you; build for the future. You have all your life been an employé; become a principal. Other papers will have none of you; make a paper of your own. They flatter their way to favor; lash and lampoon your way to the same. They are eminently proper—be you eminently improper. They are full of device—be you replete with daring. They are inert—be you enterprising. They talk about things—be you a thing to be talked about. They solicit readers—do you compel them. They are alike—be you unlike. They are luxuries: become a necessity." He sat down on a candle box in an Ann street cellar, and for years took the world into his confidence, while on a board laid across two barrels he worked out this problem. The result was the HERALD and success. But through what eccentric stages was it reached! He was robbed, he was burnt out, he was physically assailed. But his old Scotch Adam made him indomitable, and he saw into the future far as human eye could scan. As a newspaper man Mr. Bennett displayed qualities which have since become the axioms of the profession. He was the man who got all the news—"Get the news" is now the axiom. He waited for no hint or suggestion to comment upon it—"instant utterance" is now the prime necessity. He did the work of four men himself. He who can do that now is the most valuable of the craft. He was editor, paragraphist, reporter, critic, translator, mail reader, poet, itemizer, and he shone in every column. Less qualifications than these will do for Presidents, statesmen, authors, carpenters, preachers, pedlers, doctors, storekeepers, dentists, undertakers and the like.

[From the Brooklyn Union (Henry C. Bowen), June 3.]

Many great fortunes have been amassed by successful speculations and business industry in New York, by fortunate turns and miserly accumulations, but the creation of the HERALD, by sheer intellectual force, is one of the most striking instances that can be furnished of the power of the will to accomplish its purposes. In no other city in the whole world could the same thing be done. New York offered the field, and the founder of the HERALD at a time of life when most men would have given up in despair, after repeated failures, stepped in to occupy it, as full of hope, energy and courage as though he had never known a disaster and had every reason to believe himself a special favorite of Fortune, instead of having experienced nothing but her frowns up to what might be considered his mid-career of life. There was no luck in Mr. Bennett's successes. He earned all he gained, and rendered more assistance to others than he ever received. The HERALD is now one of the best known newspapers in the world.

[From the Newark Daily Journal, June 3.]

A great light in American journalism has flickered out in the demise of the celebrated man whose name we have just written. On Saturday afternoon, between five and six o'clock, the newspaper profession in America lost heavily. The one man above all others entitled to be called its father was translated to another sphere—the great hereafter—and to-day every journalist in America who loves his profession and is at all endowed with the milk of human kindness (and who that is a journalist is not?) feels a heart-heaviness, as though a dear personal friend had been cut down by death's sickle. * * * The death of Mr. Bennett has not been unexpected. Although his own great journalistic creation was silent as to its founder's condition, the other presses of the metropolis kept their readers apprised for several days past of the fact that he was in extremis. Still the HERALD's silence on the subject induced the impression and the hope that the ante-mortuary reports might prove exaggerations. People thought it strange that the great news-giving sheet, whose just boast has been that it gave all the news, frequently in advance of all its contemporaries, should give not a scintilla of information regarding Mr. Bennett's illness, a matter which could not fail to be of deep interest to the entire newspaper reading world. It was not till the day following his death that the HERALD spoke. Then, in a short double leaded leader, the public were merely informed of the sad fact, with a few other circumstances thereon attendant. Of biography there was not a line and of eulogy there was but little, and that little was so mild and subdued that one might reasonably presume the great author of obituaries had ordered that little or nothing should be said of him by his own paper subsequent to his decease. Mr. Bennett's years were fourscore lacking but three years. When we consider his long years of toil and hard labor of brain and body in this profession, the most toilsome and wearing of all others to the conscientious and enthusiastic laborer, Mr. Bennett reached a great age. His seventy-seven years were certainly greater than the ordinary worker's century. It is only when we reflect on the hardy, healthy, intensely vigorous Scotch mountaineer stock he sprung from, and his own iron constitution and temperate habits of private life, that we cease wondering at his having lived so long. * * * * *

Of Mr. Bennett's character as a journalist it is scarcely necessary to say a word. Anything we may say has probably been said and written and printed time and time again. While there may be diversities of opinion among Mr. Bennett's contemporaries and even among those who, belonging to a later generation are only able to judge by the present and the near past regarding features of his professional character, while in some minor particulars there may exist differences of opinion, it is agreed on all sides that in the grand spectacle of live enterprising, original and prosperous American journalism the name of James Gordon Bennett looms out boldly and brilliantly. In the massing together of important particles of news from every quarter of the globe, day after day and year after year, he stood a giant among his compeers. The HERALD was the dream of his life. For it he toiled and planned and plodded for nearly forty years. In its columns he has time and again told the world that he was prouder of his position as the proprietor and conductor of the great sheet than any monarch could be of his throne. His refusal of the mission to France offered him by Mr. Lincoln, stamps his sincerity on this point. In closing this tribute to him whom we have we believe rightly, styled the Father of modern American Journalism, we deem it not inappropriate to reprint an extract from an article prepared by the writer, entitled "American Journalism," and printed in the Journal of November 18, 1870. The article in question recounts a visit made to the HERALD establishment on election night of that year by ourselves and two other gentlemen then, too, attached to the Journal.

[From the Paterson (N. J.) Guardian, June 3.]

James Gordon Bennett the founder, proprietor and editor of the NEW YORK HERALD, died at his residence in that city on Saturday evening last, in the seventy-seventh year of his age. He was, undoubtedly, the greatest journalist the world has ever produced, and his name will always be inseparably associated with the rise of the American press to its present position of unequalled power and influence. Uniting worldly shrewdness and business sagacity to intellectual vigor and moral courage he demonstrated that the first essential to a successful journal is a copious supply of fresh, interesting news, and to the establishment of this principle must be ascribed, not only his own eminently prosperous career, but also the wonderful development of the press in this country during the last thirty years.

[From the Albany Evening Journal, June 3.]

Mr. Bennett was a man of striking genius—shrewd, quick, with sharp instincts and great resources. The old stories of his creation of the HERALD illustrate his powers and his determination. He wrote it on a barrel head and published it in a cellar. But it brought a revolution in the newspaper world. Discarding the old style of slow, respectable political journalism, he made a lively, gossipy, personal paper, full of news and of scandal. The metropolis opened its eyes, pricked up its ears, and read and talked of this persiflage. The paper grew, and with its increasing growth and strength it levied more widely upon every field of activity and every resource of art until it became the foremost purveyor of news in the land. Mr. Bennett's great distinction as a journalist lies in what he has done to promote enterprise in the gathering of intelligence from all parts of the world.

[From the Utica (N. Y.) Observer, June 3.]

For twenty years the NEW YORK HERALD has maintained its position as the representative newspaper of America. During our civil war it was sought for and read through all the armies. Later it achieved a remarkable success in receiving from Abyssinia the first account of the death of King Theodorus—news which was telegraphed back to England from New York. The last triumph of HERALD enterprise in the discovery of Livingstone, must have been peculiarly gratifying to the veteran editor, who has given the best years of his long life to a desperate endeavor to surpass all contemporaries. In Mr. Bennett's personal character there was much to admire and something to love. He was a generous man, who never forgot a service rendered, and in his private life he was kind, forgiving and decorous. James Gordon Bennett will be remembered as a sturdy pioneer in the profession of journalism—a profession which has not yet reached the fullness of its glory. He has left an enduring monument to his genius in the great paper which he established.

[From the Syracuse Courier, June 3.]

The HERALD was founded as a non-partisan paper. At that time there were political "organs" in abundance, but no genuine newspaper. Mr. Bennett's success lies in the fact that he saw the deficiency and resolved to fill it. It is remarkable that the most successful journal in America should be one wedded to the fortunes of no party, but the representative only of its owner's independent will.

[From the Providence Journal—United States Senator Anthony—June 3.]

James Gordon Bennett, the founder of the NEW YORK HERALD, died Saturday afternoon, aged about seventy two years. He was born in Scotland, of French Catholic parentage. He left that country when nineteen years old, reaching Boston penniless, and finding employment in a bookstore. He commenced working for newspapers in Charleston, S. C., in 1823, and soon developed that remarkable aptitude for journalism which in later years gave him such unexampled success. After twelve years of checkered career as a hack writer in Washington, Philadelphia and New York, in 1835 he started the HERALD in a cellar in Wall street, as a one cent paper, doing unaided nearly all the labor of editor, publisher and clerk. Since that time the growth of the HERALD has kept pace with the growth of the country; until now in many important particulars it stands at the head of journalism in America. This wonderful success must be attributed to the consummate tact and management of a man who, when once he found his true sphere, could never be enticed to abandon it by any considerations of public preferment. In these later years he has been able to give less personal attention to the management of his journal, but unto the last its troops of readers have not failed to recognize the notable characteristics that indicated it was still Bennett's HERALD.

[From the Providence Herald, June 3.]

During the third of a century he conducted the HERALD, always keeping in advance of his competitors. The incidents of his life illustrating his enterprise in anticipating his contemporaries in the publication of intelligence will long be rehearsed by those who ever admired and no longer rival him. Every device, any expense, all exertion promising this reward was resorted to. If the means employed to forestall others were sometimes of a questionable character it has been overlooked in the contemplation of his brilliant success. He started with little or nothing. He left, as the result of his own industry and enterprise, the first newspaper in the country. He achieved much; nor is the obligation of the country to his endeavors a slight one, though one perhaps not easy to estimate.

[From the Hartford Times, June 3.]

The later course of that journal is too well known to require any description. Its generous enterprise has fairly compelled a somewhat corresponding degree of enterprise on the part of its city contemporaries and rivals, and this liberal characteristic of Mr. Bennett has unquestionably added much to the character and estate of modern journalism, and especially American journalism. The great London newspapers have often looked with astonishment upon the news-getting achievements of two or three New York papers which beat the European journals upon their own field and gave in the United States the results of battles in Italy and Germany and France, before the news had reached the London Times. It is scarcely saying too much to assert that these triumphs of journalistic enterprise would not have happened when they did but for the compelling spirit which had been infused into his contemporaries by Mr. Bennett.

[From the Philadelphia Telegraph, June 3.]

The HERALD has lifted the veil in which bigoted partisan journalism enshrouded public men who were praised on one side as demi-gods and denounced on the other as demi-devils; and while the career of James Gordon Bennett is not worthy of unmixed praise, it can be truly said that he rendered important service to the people by emancipating them from the thraldom of slavish party organship and by giving an irresistible impulse to enterprising, active, free, untrammelled and truly independent journalism.

[From the Philadelphia Transcript, June 3.]

Mr. Bennett was the true type of the progressive American journalist, and his enterprise and zeal in his profession found its fruit in rival journals which builded upon the same foundations that had made the HERALD a success. In securing news, no opposition, no expense, and no distance stood in his path, and to-day his system of correspondence extends to the uttermost parts of the earth. His example had and will continue to have, a most salutary effect upon American journalism.

[From the Pittsburg Mail, June 3.]

Mr. Bennett did more to advance journalism in this country than any other contemporary journalist; in fact, he was the first to inject enterprise into the daily newspaper, and to make it what it is now—the faithful chronicle of the times. Through his sagacity and energy he anticipated the mails, and, had it been possible, he would have spared no expense to have beaten even the telegraph, so thoroughly was he imbued with the idea of superiority in everything relating to the news. Although retired from active duty for some years past he still gave the HERALD his daily attention, and to the last, it may be said, he directed its publication. When, a few days since, the shaft which drove the machinery in the HERALD press room broke in its journal, the great editor was simultaneously struck by the shaft of the destroyer. Human ingenuity supplied the injury in the former instance, but the toil-worn editor was past relief, and he succumbed to the blow. His place in journalism will be filled by others, and the HERALD will continue to go on in its enterprising and prosperous career a monument for all time to his energy and thrift.

[From the Scranton (Pa.) Republican, June 3.]

The HERALD is the monument of Mr. Bennett's rearing. It is his own work; alone he established it and has been its sole proprietor for the thirty seven years of its existence. It is a noble monument, and so long as that great paper is published, James Gordon Bennett needs no granite or marble to perpetuate his memory. To a certain extent Mr. Bennett was the pioneer of first class metropolitan journalism. Politically Mr. Bennett has not been prominent personally for many years. So far as we know he has never sought or held any office. His only aim appears to have been to make the HERALD superior as a newspaper to all contemporaries and to set an example of journalistic enterprise to others.

[From the Williamsport (Pa.) Gazette, June 3.]

As a successful journalist he stood pre-eminently high, and in his great newspaper establishments, emphatically the creation of his own genius, he leaves behind him a monument which will carry his name down to posterity.

[From the Baltimore American (republican organ), June 3.]

* * * As thousand after thousand was added to the circulation of the HERALD, Bennett gained the desired power. Politicians who had derided and injured this man came suing to him for his influence. His enterprise and audaciousness were not choice of the materials they used so the end was obtained. He gave up the fierce and personal attacks on men, which had been a feature of his journal, and retained that vigor of news getting which places it, in that particular feature at the head of American journalism. He was always organizing some new means of procuring information that the reading public wanted. The world was beginning to forget the worst and remember only the best of his life when the news of his death was received. The great newspaper which he has built up is his best monument. It speaks of a life of toil, of abilities of no common character and of that steadfast purpose which guided it to its present exaltation. Mr. Bennett won immense wealth and great power, and in dying bequeaths the former to his children and the latter to his journal.

MEETING OF THE NEW YORK ASSOCIATED PRESS.

At a meeting of the New York Associated Press yesterday the following resolutions were adopted:—

Resolved, That the members of the Associated Press have received with profound sorrow intelligence of the death of James Gordon Bennett the founder and proprietor of the NEW YORK HERALD, and identified with us from the first organization of the New York Associated Press.

Resolved, That his long and eventful connection with the newspaper press of the country in a career of unexampled success and prosperity was the result of his great foresight, energy and industry, that in all these qualities the example of Mr. Bennett inspired the greatest enterprise in journalism in the United States and throughout the world and must therefore, for all time, leave their impressions for good in the diffusion of knowledge and the advancement of the press.

Resolved, That we tender our sincere sympathies to the family of the deceased, and will attend his funeral as members of the Association.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be entered upon the minutes, and that another copy be signed by the President and Secretary of the Association and forwarded to the family of the deceased.

Resolved further, That a copy be furnished to the public press for publication.

ACTION OF THE BOULEVARD CLUB.

Resolutions of Sympathy by the Neighbors of Mr. Bennett.

At a meeting of the Boulevard Club, held at 103d street and Hudson River, on Monday evening, the following preamble and resolutions, presented by James T. King, were unanimously adopted:—

Whereas the Creator and Sovereign of the Universe has removed by death from this earthly sphere, after long years of labor, enterprise and perseverance in the beneficent endeavor to elevate and enlighten the human race, James Gordon Bennett, whom no country can claim exclusively, who by means of his noble characteristics and the wisely directed powers of his pen and press, has spread abroad information and instruction throughout the civilized world and even in those remote regions of Asia and Africa which are but newly penetrated and explored to whom the merchant, philosopher, astronomer, artisan, farmer, politician, and all scientists are indebted for information by whom high and low rich and poor, have alike been benefited—whose journal, the HERALD, has been as a guiding star to the poor and oppressed of all nations, instructing peoples in their own rights to think and act for themselves while to many a tyrant grinding down his subjects and consuming their hard earnings, it has been a firebrand and a terror; to whom more than any other man the citizens of New York are indebted for the building up of its commerce manufactures, public schools, its public and private institutions, and above all, for its independent press, and whereas the citizens of the west side, on the banks of the Hudson, where he resided for so many years, are specially indebted to him for taking a deep interest in our improvements, always freely opening the columns of his journal to advocate all just and honest measures in that direction, giving his support to the great improvements in the upper part of the island, the Croton water, the Central Park, and the grand Boulevard—first so designated in the HERALD, therefore,

Resolved, That we deeply deplore the loss that we are now summoned to sustain and that we tender our sincerest sympathy and condolences to the members of his family and his friends.

Resolved, That as a token of respect for the deceased the flag of the Boulevard Club shall be suspended at half mast, and one hundred minute guns be fired on the day appointed for his funeral.

M. L. BRENNAN, President,
WILLIAM L. WILEY, Vice President.
E. W. OSTENDORF, Treasurer,
JOHN J. MALONEY, Secretary.

NEW YORK CITY.

There is to be a feast of strawberries at the Arcadian Club on Saturday night. Father Burke, Franz Abt and other distinguished strangers will be present.

Sixty of the brewers visiting this city as delegates to the Brewers' Congress were received yesterday at the office of the Brewers and Malsters' Insurance Company, where a collation was spread for them. The Congress will be opened to-day.

Yesterday the body of a man, whose name is unknown, was found floating in the water foot of Thirty fourth street, East River, and sent to the Morgue. Deceased, apparently was thirty years of age, with dark hair and whiskers, and wearing dark clothes. The remains were sent to the Morgue, and Coroner Herrman notified.

The meeting of the Board of Directors of the Young Men's Hebrew Association last evening was well attended. The Roumanian persecution of the Jews, the Persian relief fund and other matters received the attention of the board. The society is in a very flourishing condition and receiving daily accessions of some of the most prominent Hebrews in the Union.

Commissioner Van Nort, of the Public Works, has received from water rents for the month of May the sum of $128,774 50, which has been deposited with the City Chamberlain and the Comptroller notified thereof. During the corresponding month of 1871 the sum of $107,174 07 was received, showing an excess of receipts under Commissioner Van Nort's administration of $19,197 76.

Pursuant to the requirements of the act entitled "An act to regulate the practice of pharmacy and the sale of poison," passed by the last State Legislature, the members of the College of Pharmacy of the City of New York held a special meeting last night, at which Dr. William Manlius Smith, Dr. William Neergaard, Dr. P. H. Weismann, Paul Tallut and Theobald Frohwein were elected as a "Board of Pharmacy" to serve the next three years.

During Monday nineteen additional cases of smallpox were reported, three of which were found concealed. Six deaths from this cause were reported during the twenty-four hours ending at noon yesterday. The vaccinating corps visited 14,024 families during the past week, and vaccinated 5,583 persons, 377 of which were primary and 5,206 secondary. The ambulance corps removed fifty-six patients to the hospital and two dead bodies to the Morgue.

The Commissioners appointed by the last Legislature to investigate the alleged frauds in contracting for the paving, grading and filling of certain streets and avenues in this city, met again last night at the Court House, Fourth avenue and Eighteenth street. The case of Messrs. T. & J. C. Crimmins, who held a contract for grading, &c., Madison avenue, from 105th street to 120th street, was taken up. Several witnesses testified that the terms of the contract were not excessive, and that the work was being well performed. Mr. Rockey Moore, a gentleman of much distinction in the Nineteenth ward, testified that the work could have been done for much less. It appeared, however, that Mr. Comptroller Green approved the Crimmins contract, and that the majority of the property owners on the avenue desired to have the Messrs. Crimmins do the work.

EMBRYO NAVAL COMMANDERS.

Gala Days and Grand Reviews at the Naval Academy.

The Annual Sea Fight—The Middies Handling Artillery—The Passed Graduates of 1872—Address by Chief Justice Moses—The Secretary of the Navy Delivers a Valedictory—The Adieus and Last Ball to the Class.

ANNAPOLIS, May 30, 1872.

There was a report floating in the air that this morning, at ten o'clock, the midshipmen would risk their old clothes and complexions in a grand sham naval combat. Accordingly, when ten o'clock arrived, a great number of ladies and gentlemen had assembled on the wharves and along the sea wall to witness the affair. Very many fair creatures waved their curls and handkerchiefs to the blue-breasted heroes, who seemed rather red and perspiring in their impotent struggles at getting the boats under way, which, numbering ten in all, were under the command of Captain Cook. Five of these boats were armed with howitzers under the direction of Lieutenant Commander Ludlow; the other five contained infantry (skirmishers) under Lieutenant Commander Soley. At last, after strenuous efforts from Japanese "Katz," who lay in the bow of one the boats, contented by hugging a little brass cannon, and after the midshipmen had all taken a long, lingering glance at the floating handkerchiefs and curls, Captain Cook gave the word "go!" and the whole squadron splashed and floundered off, one poor little fourth classman getting a punch in the back from a dislocated oar which stowed him away under a seat. The launches then paddled out into the middle of the Severn and there deployed into line, waiting the word of attack, object of attack being the Naval School itself. The combat, which was all on one side, there being no repelling party, opened with a brisk howitzer cannonade. The line then approached shore, let drive another volley and finally effected a landing, the infantry breaking up into skirmishing parties and cracking away at everything in a very promiscuous manner, while the artillery unlimbered and blazed right into the barracks, creating much havoc in governmental window glass. A great many fair ones, seated in the windows and watching the scene below were somewhat alarmed at the unceremonious smashing thus perpetrated in their immediate vicinity, mellifluous "Oh mys!" and graceful uplifting of light colored kids being thereupon in vogue. They retorted, however, by smashing a good many midshipmite hearts. But we hurry on with the fight. So far we have only gained the low plain that, smooth as a velvet carpet and dotted over by cedars and weeping willows, stretches down to the river's edge. We must carry the high plateau above us at the bayonet's point.

"CHARGE!"

The muskets are levelled, the cannon unlimbered, and up the hill we rush, carrying on the tips of our guns innumerable tufts of grass, typifying imaginary clothing rent from the bloody carcasses of imaginary enemies. Now we repose on the grass in order to allow the enemies' balls to fly over our heads. Having allowed them sufficiently we get up and rush madly upon the band house, level our cannon at a gnarly old stump and blow all the ivy from it with determined and warlike energy. We then squat down again, the skirmishers advance to the left and give the shrubbery in front of Commodore Worden's house another dose of musketry. The Commodore's daughter commends this gallant act with a gentle and sinuous wave of her "Dolly Varden"—Dolly Varden which has flipped and fluttered into the hearts of so many navalities during the past term, and which is destined to flip and flutter with increasing diligence and effect in the coming term. We then wheel about and skip over the lawn in various directions with alarming ease and vivacity, getting fearfully entangled in

CAMP STOOLS AND BABY CARRIAGES.

In these camp stools, as well as on sundry porticoes and in sundry balconies, are various young females highly interested in our different evolutions, also a good many small boys, whose faces reflect the inward glow of their young hearts at the future glory of being a "gilt-buttoned middy." The young ladies are lavish of their compliments. The midshipmen exerted themselves to the utmost on this occasion. Examination long dreaded, now over, happily over to the majority and the eyes of the world—that is, of their relatives and sweethearts—upon them. Great, then, was the competition, each struck graceful attitudes on the grass when told to "squat," each bent his body into symmetrical shape on the command to and each stretched his legs to their utmost locomotive capacity when requested to "double quick." In consequence such a conglomeration of grace and activity was never before exhibited and probably never will be again. It set the sympathetic soul of a fair Californian all aglow with "ultra marine" ardor. This was a grand day for the middies—a festive and gala day. They had no recitations, no abominable cosines and cotangents, but were afforded a fine opportunity for displaying themselves—"playing soldier," enjoying the cool sea breezes that blow so freshly up from the far-stretching, sail-dotted Chesapeake, three miles away.

"RAM!" "SPONGE!" "FIRE!" OR "LIMBER UP!"

THE GREAT MORTAR.

I should have stated in succinct English that the attacking party, after heroic efforts and no opposition to speak of save a few hoary and imposing ivy covered trees, succeeded in capturing the Naval School, amid the enraptured yells of a thoroughly interested and highly excited populace, after which the big mortar down on the beach was fired off, the graduating class being managers of said firing. As the ball rose high in the air a gray bearded old officer—erect and straight on one leg like Hans Andersen's "Tin Soldier"—came hobbling across the field. The ancient gentleman seemed to snuff the smell of powder with warlike delight, and toyed for some time with professional pride about an ammunition box. His actions were regarded with evident pride and pleasure by a crowd of ladies and gentlemen under a big old tree a few yards off—his grandchildren, it was supposed. The old General's name is Robinson, of the regular army. Other distinguished persons present were Commodore Rodgers, Judge Moses, Rear Admiral Harwood and Commodore Worden; also Captain Dwight and Mr. Cook, which latter gentleman thinks the midshipmen drill well, but are in a bad way as to their eternal salvation. He would like, perhaps, to try his celebrated "lock up" method upon them. It would, doubtless, have a very salutary effect. It has been ascertained that the four highest graduates this year are Freeman, Southerland, Fox and Roper.

Diploma Day—Paternal Address by Chief Justice Moses—Secretary Robeson's Parting Valedictory—The Annual Ball.

ANNAPOLIS, June 1, 1870.

At ten o'clock this morning a large audience, composed of visitors from all parts of the country, in addition to the townspeople and naval folk, assembled in the Academy chapel to hear the address of Chief Justice Moses, from South Carolina, to the graduating class. Among others present were Secretary Robeson, Mrs. Robeson, General Fremont, Mrs. Fremont, Mrs. Dent, Mrs. Moses, Chief Engineers Wood and Fythian, Commodore Rodgers, Rear Admiral Harwood and Major General Robinson. The chapel is a neat, tasteful building amply lighted, and has several very handsome memorial stones to departed naval officers. There was such a large collection of fair ones, who did such an unusual amount of flipping and fluttering, that it was some time before Commodore Worden could get up the aisle with his distinguished visitors to their seats, placed on a dais at the extremity of the hall. At last he managed to seat Secretary Robeson to the right of the reading desk, the orator, Chief Justice Moses, to the left, Engineer Wood to the left of the Justice, and General Robinson to the left of the Engineer. Commodore Rodgers sat on the extreme right of the party. When the female fluttering had partially subsided Adjutant Roper stepped up on the platform and read to the midshipmen the letter from Secretary Robeson, already published, extolling in the highest terms the gallant conduct of Midshipmen Galt and McLean, who some days since rescued their comrade, Carter, from drowning. Prayer was then said by the Rev. Mr. Henderson, and Commodore Worden then introduced the speaker to his audience.

CHIEF JUSTICE MOSES

is a keen eyed, gray bearded gentleman of very imposing presence; has a courtly and polished air which charmed his hearers the moment he commenced the address. He prefaced his remarks by a high eulogy of our naval educational system—compared it with that of other countries and our own in the infancy of the republic. "What," said he, "are we to expect you to do when we glance at the splendid achievements of such men as Decatur, Lawrence, Stewart, Hall, McDonough and Perry in the war of 1812, when our naval system had not even begun to take its present effective shape?" He then remarked that the navy had a field for action not only in war, but also in peace, as is evinced by the splendid service—a service which is the theme of Europe's universal admiration—done by graduates of this school in the extinguishing of the fearful shipping conflagration at Marseilles. With a great deal of delicate easy tact he then alluded to the fact that the day when bluster was considered essential to the education of a naval officer had now happily faded away into the dreamy distance, and a naval man nowadays was never so much a naval man as when a thorough, honest-hearted gentleman reverent to his superiors and reverent of authority—authority, which is the keystone of human society and which is now so much despised and contemned by the youth of this generation. There seems to be among young men an inborn "rising up" against control, which is still sadder in young men about to command their fellow countrymen and be entrusted with their country's interests. We cannot command without learning to obey, is an old saying, and the older it gets the better. Politeness to inferiors as well as to those above us is also a bright jewel in the crown of a man's character. It costs us nothing, we lose nothing—we may gain a great deal. The prevalent idea, that when a graduate leaves the Academy he leaves work also, is totally erroneous.

"LIFE IS REAL, LIFE IS EARNEST,"

and when we enter the arena of public service our toils and troubles are but just begun. The eyes of our former instructors are upon us and in this case the officers who have guided you through these pleasant groves and woody dells will earnestly look to you, graduates, to illustrate the depth and fidelity of their labors in your behalf. You owe much to the government, that government which has adorned and beautified this garden spot for your pleasure and the cultivation of your taste, which every year so lavishly expends her treasures in your behalf, you owe everything to the corps of professors over you, a corps admired throughout the country for its ability and élan; but, above all you owe faithful, honest, righteous lives to those who gave you life and to that Invisible One who gave us all life and who can take it away. Your country is proud of a son who is proud of her. Your duty, gentlemen, to your Heavenly Father should ever be diligently exercised, no matter what the comments of a vitiated public opinion. Do that and ye shall triumph "From Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strand."

CHERISH YOUR HONOR PURE AND SPOTLESS.

The corner stone of every man's character is honor—not an impulsive outbreak against insult and indignity, but a calm self sustaining dignity, whose divine essence is truth. Your education—that is, a naval education—is far in advance of what it used to be. Steam, with its many intricate appliances, is now a subject demanding thorough, diligent research. Navigation has risen to the dignity of a difficult science; engineering is an essential element of a naval training. To be a complete master of the ship you must be a complete master of engineering. The movements of the various Powers must demand your attention in order to keep posted in all the different changes in naval architecture and the advances and achievements of naval prowess. You must be complete drill-masters, soldiers, for you have dry land as your field of action as well as the watery deep. International law must be carefully studied. A naval Education, in fact, involves thorough professional as well as thorough academic training, a training admirably given you by your instructors, under the guiding influence of the Commodore, whose name is a household word throughout the land, and whose face attests the valuable service he has rendered his country, whose pure and elevated character lends a peculiar charm to this lovely spot, than which, perhaps there is no lovelier in our broad land. Its green swards its fountains, scattering a misty canopy of spray over the shrubbery; its cool, arched promenades, recognize the refining touch of this gallant old veteran.

GENTLEMEN OF THE GRADUATING CLASS,

remember ever that your diplomas are not the end of the life struggle. While man lives man learns; while man lives man sorrows. Brace you selves up, then, for a fearful struggle when you leave this peaceful retreat. You are custodians of our grand old flag, and though in your career hitherto you have recognized allegiance to your native States, recognize henceforth the common banner of our nation's pride—"Union now and forever, one and inseparable." Remember in your future career the past influences that hovered over you, this spot, consecrated by so many hallowed recollections and storied mementos of our nation's glory, the bright galaxy of instructors that have illumined your path; the old hero who has watched your progress with such tender interest; the distinguished members of the army and navy who are now present with me on the Board of Visitors, and above all, your country, who gazes on your conduct with anxious and earnest eyes. Farewell! The hopes and prayers of parents, sisters, brothers go with you. Beauty's dewy eyes shed a glistening tear as she presses your hands in an earnest, heartfelt adieu!

THE GRAND DRESS PARADE.

Such is an abstract of the eloquent and touching address so well delivered by the Chief Justice. It wrung the hearts of a good many fond mothers to hear the sad word of parting thus so pathetically said. The audience adjourned in delight and eager anticipation to the parade ground, where, to a brisk and lively quickstep, the cadets came trotting up into line. A grand dress parade was then held by Lieutenant Commander Soley. It was the last dress parade of the year, as the midshipmen probably leave on Monday. Many a bright eye was moist, many a diminutive heart beat quicker at the sad reflection that for four dismal months scarcely a brass button or a blue jacket would grace the pleasant retreats of the yard. "Lover's Lane" and "Spooney Hollow" would be deserted and dreary; no mellifluous strains floating softly out upon the moonlit air and quivering among the ivy leaves and clinging tendrils, no Saturday evening promenades—no pleasant croquet parties, fishing parties, yachting parties, boating parties or hops. All gone—gone, or at least about to go. This is our last taste. The cadets having gone through the manual with admirable ease and precision, the graduates, twenty six in all, were ordered to the front, in order to hear the

PARTING ADDRESS OF SECRETARY ROBESON.

That gentleman, under a big umbrella admirably manipulated by Chief Engineer Wood, grew warm and impassioned in his remarks. His voice is singularly pleasing, and the nature of his subject gave ample scope for the exercise of his ready talents for public speaking. He reminded the graduates of the responsible position in which they were now placed—being made associates of those who were formerly their instructors; advised them to cherish the attachments which they had doubtless formed for the fair sex—"the lode star of our existence," whose influence is interwoven in the woof and network of all actions in this life—an influence as pure and holy as any known to mortals or of mortal agency. He charged them to remember their duty as officers and gentlemen, and finally wound up with an eloquent peroration, in which he compared them to the patricians of Ancient Rome. The honorable speaker was particularly felicitous in his allusions, and elicited a great many tears from interested relatives in his remarks to the midshipmen concerning their duty to father and mother. It was quite ludicrous to notice how disdainfully the graduates cast on the sward their swords and belts—badges of their cadetship—when ordered to advance and receive their diplomas, the evidences of their being full fledged middies. The five midshipmen who passed best were first called forward, and their in regular order of merit. Their names as they stood are Freeman, Sutherland, Roper, Fox and James. The rest of the class were called up indiscriminately to prevent invidious distinctions. After parade was dismissed and the band had played an ancient tune concerning a "Widower," it was wondrous to contemplate how swiftly the graduates rushed into their quarters, dashed off their short, peak-tailed jackets and donned the long peak tails now allowed them as passed midshipmen. But, alas! they know not what they do! Wherefore do they rejoice? If they only knew their misery is but now about to commence! Said Commodore Rodgers, when contemplating this sight, "They're happier now than they'll ever be again."

THE ANNUAL BALL

given last night to the first class was an unequivocal success. Numbers of people were down from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. Among the notables were Mr. and Mrs. Robeson, General and Mrs. Fremont, Mrs. Dent, Mrs. Frick, Judge and Mrs. Moses, Commodore Rodgers, Rear Admiral Harwood, Chief Engineer Wood and General Robinson. The young ladies of New York were represented by Miss Hill, Philadelphia by Misses Reeves and Rush, Baltimore by the Misses Polaine, Williams, Hall, Frick, Gittings, Brandt and Stokes; Washington by Misses Fletcher and Jeffers. The affair terminated in broad daylight and headaches.

BURNED TO DEATH IN A POLICE CELL.

The Result of the Inquest on Daniel Webster Appleton, of Boston.

BOSTON, June 4, 1872.

The inquest called to investigate the cause of the death of Daniel Webster Appleton, after finding that he died from burns received in the police lockup in Neponset, close their verdict as follows:—

A careful review of the evidence shows the condition of D. W. Appleton on the afternoon in question, was one that demanded police interference; that the arrest and subsequent detention were conservative acts, and that ordinary care was exercised by the officer in searching the person and providing for the wants of the prisoner. The evidence also leads to show that the cell was designedly fired by the inmate, and for the purpose of obtaining his release, his isolated situation furnishing the opportunity, and the jury cannot too severely censure a system which permits the custodian to leave his charge unattended—a custom which must always entail danger, and one which, in this instance, cost a fellow citizen his life.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

On Monday night Dennis Casson went to see a friend in the Twenty-second ward. While going up Tenth avenue, it is alleged, he was attacked by a man named James McNab, who robbed him of a watch and chain worth $300. He offered to give McNab $20 if he would return the articles. The offer was, however, refused, unless he gave $30, which he declined. McNab, Peter Lynch, who was with him at the time of the robbery, and Bernard McIntee, a junk dealer, who bought the watch and chain for $5, were subsequently arrested and arraigned yesterday at the Yorkville Police Court. Justice Coulter held McNab in default of $2,000 bail and McIntee and Lynch in $500 each. Patrick Murphy, who accompanied McNab when he sold the stolen property, was remanded until this morning.
